

The Roman Canon in German Evangelical Masses (1522–1544)

This file gives the offertory and eucharistic rites of the orders in the Sehling corpus that keep pieces of the Roman Canon and of the priest's prayers of the Ordinary, or that put a prayer of their own in the Canon's place. They were found by a search of the whole corpus (§1.3) and are printed in order of date.

Each order is printed from the point where the offertory stood (after the Creed or the sermon) to the dismissal. For Kantz, the Kiel Mass and Bugenhagen, the priest's preparation at the altar is included as well. The original comes first and the English follows. Annotations name the Roman text each piece comes from.

Conventions

- Original text. This is Sehling's base text. His footnote numbers, sigla and variant apparatus are removed, and so are page and folio markers. Line-break hyphens are joined. Spelling, punctuation and Sehling's own supplied letters in square brackets (e.g. Nemen[t]) are kept. A cross (✠) marks where the print has a sign of the cross over the elements. Rubrics are in italics. "[...]" marks an omission (a hymn or lesson printed in full, or text given in another section). A few plain misprints are corrected, and the notes say where.
- English. The translation is formal-equivalence, in the idiom of the Authorized Version: word order and clause structure are kept where English allows, and nothing is smoothed away.
- Roman comparison texts. These are the standard texts of the late-medieval and Tridentine Ordo Missae. Diocesan missals of the 1520s–40s differ in small details. Where a German text follows a wording the Tridentine missal does not have, this is noted, but it is not attributed to a particular missal.

1. Summary of findings

The orders printed here run from Kantz's Nördlingen Mass of 1522 to Bugenhagen's Hildesheim order of 1544. Between them they show what the first generation of evangelical Masses kept of three things:

- the Roman Canon (Te igitur to the doxology Per ipsum);
- the prayers of the Ordinary around it: the offertory prayers, the embolism, the priest's prayers before and after communion, and the words of distribution;
- the rites that go with them: elevation, fraction, the Peace.

§1.1 summarises the findings in the order of the Mass. §1.2 gives the concordance tables. §1.3 says how the corpus was searched and which orders were examined but not printed.

1.1 Findings

The offertory.

- The offertory prayers. Luther rejected everything that "sounds of oblation" (§3.1). No order keeps Suscipe, sancte Pater, Offerimus tibi or Suscipe, sancta Trinitas.
- What does survive:
 - the offertory chant: Latin in Brandenburg 1540 (§12.1); Müntzer's German Ad te levavi (§4.1); a German hymn "for the offertory" in Lippe (§10) and Calenberg-Göttingen 1542 (§13.1);
 - a rubric for preparing the chalice: Döber (§8.1), Volprecht (§7.2), Bugenhagen's orders (§15.1);
 - the Orate fratres, recast as a request for prayer: Worms ("mein und ewer gebet", §6.1), Kantz and Bremen (§2.1, §9.2), and Strasbourg, where it becomes a bidding on Rom 12:1 to offer "our bodies" (§5.1, §5.3);
 - Veni, sanctificator* replaced by the Whitsun antiphon Veni, Sancte Spiritus and a collect: Kantz (§2.2), Bremen, Kiel (§11.1);
 - the Secret's closing *Per omnia saecula saeculorum. Amen, sung before the Preface dialogue: Müntzer (§4.1), Lippe (§10), Göttingen (§13.1).
- One prayer over the gifts. Only Pfalz-Neuburg 1543 has one: Osiander's prayer "Wir bringen ... dise deine gaben" (§14.2). It borrows from Quam oblationem, Unde et memores and Supplices, and asks for the Spirit. Sehling's editor, after P. Graff, calls it the first Lutheran order with a kind of epiclesis (Sehling 8, p. 45, n. 12).

The Preface and Sanctus.

- The common Preface in German: Worms, Kantz, Bremen.
- Proper Prefaces in German: Müntzer (Blessed Virgin, reworded so that God, not Mary, is praised), Strasbourg (Cross), Lippe (Trinity), Kiel and Göttingen (Easter).
- Luther's short Preface. Luther cut the Preface off at per Christum Dominum nostrum and joined the Verba to it (§3.2). The Nürnberg Latin Mass (§7.1), Döber (§8.2) and Volprecht (§7.2) follow him.
- The Sanctus after the Verba: Luther, Döber, Volprecht and Pfalz-Neuburg.

The Canon.

- The only continuous Canon is Worms 1524 (§6.3–6.9). It runs from Te igitur to Supplices te rogamus in German, abridged:
 - there are no saints in Communicantes (only its closing clause), no Memento of the dead, no Nobis quoque and no Per ipsum;
 - the sacrificial nouns become "bread and wine" and "our prayer";

- emperor and king replace pope and bishop.
- Elsewhere single Canon prayers survive:
 - Quam oblationem, recast as a petition that the bread and wine "may become unto us" the body and blood: Kantz (§2.4). Bremen changes it to a prayer that "we may firmly believe" this (§9.3).
 - Unde et memores, as a thanksgiving "after the elevation": Strasbourg (§5.1). A later hand wrote the Worms text of the prayer into the Strasbourg manuscript.
- The Canon's intercession (the petitions of Te igitur and the Memento) survives in three ways:
 - in the Canon's own place after the Sanctus: Strasbourg (§5.1); an optional prayer in Döber taken from Strasbourg (§8.11); four collects in Brandenburg (§12.2); three in Pfalz-Neuburg (§14.4); one in Göttingen (§13.1);
 - as one long prayer "anstatt des Canon": Strasbourg 1525 (§5.2);
 - as the general prayer after the sermon, which Bugenhagen calls "unse Canon" (§15.4).
- The Canon critique. The Brandenburg-Nürnberg order of 1533, repeated in Brandenburg 1540 and Pfalz-Neuburg 1543, demands that the offering clauses of the Canon be replaced by "Wir gedenken des opfers deines einigen Sons" (Appendix). Sehling's register points to this critique under "Embolismus" (11:183, 13:65), because his note there explains the Würzburg embolism's added saints.

The words of institution.

- Scripture or Canon. Most orders read the Verba from 1 Cor 11 or a harmony of the Gospels. A distinct line keeps the Canon's own Qui pridie: elevatis oculis, benedixit, novi et aeterni testamenti, sometimes mysterium fidei. The line runs through Kantz, the Nürnberg Latin Mass, Schwarz at Strasbourg, Müntzer, Bremen, Lippe and Kiel.
- Where Müntzer's wording travelled. It reached Lippe, Kiel and Göttingen's proper Masses through the Erfurt Kirchenämter of 1525–26 (§10, §13).
- The elevation is kept by Luther (at the Benedictus), Worms, the Nürnberg Latin Mass, Müntzer, Strasbourg (cup only), Brandenburg and Pfalz-Neuburg. Kantz moves it to the communion ("Secht ..."). Schleswig-Holstein 1542 permits it.

The Our Father and the embolism.

- Praeceptis salutaribus moniti is recast in German almost everywhere, e.g. "Last uns beten, wie uns der herr Christus Jesus befohlen hat ...".
- The embolism Libera nos, quaesumus. Luther struck it out. What remains elsewhere:
 - its conclusion only ("Durch unsern Herren Jesum ... lebt und herrscht"): Worms, Kantz, Bremen, Lippe;
 - its sung ending *Per omnia saecula ("Durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit"): Müntzer, Lippe;
 - one line of its body ("O Herr, erlös uns von allen sichtigen und unsichtigen feinden ..."): Döber (p. 54; Sehling: "Rest des Embolismus") and Strasbourg.

The fraction.

- Forbidden. Luther forbids the fraction and commixture: "nec frangatur hostia nec in calicem misceatur" (§3.3). Worms repeats the prohibition (§6.11).
- Kept in two orders only, at the Roman place (the close of the embolism, before the Peace), and neither with the commixture:
 - the 1524 edition of Kantz's Mass, "Hie neme der priester das brot und breche es, so vil ers bedarf" (§2.5);

- Müntzer's Allstedt order, where the priest "der communicanten halben das sacrament teilet" (§4.3).
- The *Deutsche Messe (1526) has no fraction.
- Reformed breaking of bread. Every other mention of breaking the bread in the corpus comes from Reformed orders from the 1550s on (à Lasco, the Palatinate, Anhalt, the Upper Palatinate, Hessen-Kassel). There the bread is broken at the distribution on the ground of 1 Cor 10:16 and Acts 2:42. It is a new rite, not a survival.

The Peace and the Agnus Dei.

- Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum survives widely: Worms, Luther (as a "public absolution"), the Nürnberg Latin Mass, Müntzer, Volprecht, Brandenburg, Pfalz-Neuburg, Lippe and Göttingen. Kantz moves it into the communion.
- The *Agnus Dei is kept in German or Latin by nearly all. Luther has it sung during communion.

The priest's prayers before communion.

- All three kept. Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti, Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi and Perceptio Corporis tui stay in Latin in Brandenburg (§12.5) and Pfalz-Neuburg (§14.6). Volprecht has all three in German (§7.2).
 - The "Libera nos" in these orders is the petition inside Fili Dei vivi ("Libera nos per hoc sacrosanctum corpus et sanguinem tuum"), made plural. It is not the embolism.
- Fili Dei vivi* alone is kept in German by:
 - Kantz and Bremen, abridged. Bremen changes "by this thy holy body and blood" to "by thy bottomless mercy".
 - Strasbourg, prayed by all.
 - Döber and Kiel, said by the people line by line after the priest (§8.8, §11.3).
- Domine, non sum dignus appears once, in German, in Kiel (§11.3).
- Qui dixisti becomes the closing collect of the Mass in Göttingen (§13.3).

The words of distribution.

- The *custodiat (Corpus Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam tuam in vitam aeternam) is the most widespread survival. It appears in about thirty orders of the corpus, from Worms and Volprecht (1524) to 1609:
 - Worms, Döber, Kantz, Bremen, the Nürnberg Form und Ordnung, Göttingen and many later orders;
 - most in the wording of the Albertine Saxon Agenda of 1539, "Der leib unsers herrn Jesu Christi, fur dich in tod gegeben, sterke und beware dich im glauben zum ewigen leben";
 - Brandenburg 1540 uses it only for the communion of the sick (Sehling 3, pp. 79–80).
- Calicem salutaris accipiam (Ps 116:13) survives in Worms, Kantz, Bremen and Volprecht.

After communion.

- Quod ore sumpsimus* and Corpus tuum, Domine. Luther made these two ablution prayers the postcommunion (§3.5). Brandenburg and Pfalz-Neuburg keep them in Latin; Volprecht has both in German; Strasbourg has Quod ore as its complenda.
- Roman postcommunions and collects reused:

- Döber's Largire sensibus nostris (Wednesday in Holy Week). Sehling thought Döber's prayer newly composed; the identification is new here.
- the Trinity Proficiat: Volprecht, Lippe;
- the collect Protector in te sperantium: Kantz.
- The priest's final *Placeat tibi, sancta Trinitas survives in Kantz, the sacrifice turned into "unser lob und dankagung" (§2.7).
- The *Nunc dimittis follows communion in Worms, Döber, Kantz and Bremen.

The priest's preparation and thanksgiving.

- Bugenhagen's preparatory prayer is the evangelical counterpart of the prayers at the foot of the altar (§15):
 - in Wolfenbüttel 1543 and Hildesheim 1544, the priest kneels with the sexton and prays the Pater noster and the versicles Domine, non secundum peccata nostra ... Aduva nos, Deus;
 - in Schleswig-Holstein 1542 he says the Confiteor privately and prays for preachers, king and realm.
- After Mass, Hildesheim and Schleswig-Holstein have him kneel again and "thank God secretly for himself".

How the orders are related.

- Kantz → Bremen (a Low German version) and the opening prayers of Kiel.
- Müntzer → (Erfurt Kirchenämter) → Lippe, Kiel, Göttingen.
- Strasbourg → Worms (the same Mass) and Döber's optional intercession.
- Luther's *Formula missae → the Nürnberg Latin Mass, Döber, Volprecht, Brandenburg.
- Nürnberg 1533 → the exhortation and Canon critique of Brandenburg 1540 and Pfalz-Neuburg 1543.
- Brandenburg 1540 → Calenberg-Göttingen 1542.

1.2 Concordance tables

One row per order, in date order; the section number is given with each. "—" means absent; italic means a rubric only or a permission. "Canon form" of the Verba means the wording of Qui pridie (elevatis oculis, benedixit, novi et aeterni testamenti), as against the wording of 1 Cor 11 and the Gospels.

1.3 Method, and orders examined but not printed

The corpus (eko.db, all volumes of Sehling) was searched with regular expressions for:

- the priest's prayers Qui dixisti, Fili Dei vivi, Perceptio, Domine non sum dignus, Corpus ... custodiat, Quod ore sumpsimus and Corpus tuum;
- Canon incipits and the Canon form of the Verba ("hub auf seine augen", "neuen und ewigen");
- offertory language and blessing of the gifts;
- the fraction ("breche", "teilet", frangatur, fractio);
- the embolism;
- Sehling's register entries Offertorium, Kanongebet, Messkanon, canon missae, Epiklese, Konsekration and Postcommunio.

Every hit was read in context. The following orders were examined and are not printed:

Order	Why not printed
Luther, Deutsche Messe , 1526 (Sehling 1, doc 3)	No Canon or Ordinary prayers (see §3.6).
Homberg, Reformatio ecclesiarum Hassiae , 1526 (Sehling 8, doc 2247, pp. 44–45)	Rules only: "Canon ille missarius, et universae orationes, in quibus reperitur sacrificii aut hostiae vox a nemine ultra in hac coena dicatur". Luther's German Mass is prescribed.
Braunschweig 1528, Hamburg 1529 / Lübeck 1531, Pomerania 1535 (Bugenhagen)	Latin Preface and Sanctus on feasts only, otherwise as §15.
Heilbronn 1530 (Sehling 17, doc 770, pp. 276–277)	Quotes Te igitur , Quam oblationem and Supra quae only to refute them.
Transylvania, Honterus, 1543/47 (Sehling 24, docs 1669–1670)	"reieto canone": Preface, Sanctus, Our Father and Verba, with the Saxon custodiat (1547).
Corvinus, Kirchenordnung 1542 (Sehling 21, doc 1460)	Luther's paraphrase and the Verba. The distribution "Nym hen, edt und gedencke ..." is Strasbourg's "Gedenckent, glaubent" type (§5.2), not the custodiat .
Schwäbisch Hall 1543 (Sehling 17, doc 762) and its communion of the sick, 1537 (doc 761)	Custodiat only ("Der Leib unsers Herrn Christi bewar dich zum ewigen leben").
Later Upper German orders, e.g. Sehling 16, V, 1560 (doc 742), after Basel 1526	A prayer before communion that echoes the Perceptio : "uf das wir dein Nachtmal uns nit zum gericht empfahren, sonder zu dem ewigen leben".
Reformed orders (Kurpfalz from 1563, Anhalt, Hessen-Kassel, à Lasco)	No Canon prayers; the breaking of bread is a new rite (§1.1).

2. Nördlingen, Kaspar Kantz, Von der Evangelischen Mesß, 1522

Von der Evangelischen Mesß. Mit schönen Christlichen Gebetten vor und nach der empfangung des Sacraments. Durch Caspar Kantz von Nördlingen. Sehling 12, VIII.1, pp. 285–288 (eko.db doc 369). Sehling's base text is the print of 1522. The apparatus gives the changes of the second edition, Die rechte evangelische und apostolische Mesß, 1524 ("II").

This is the earliest German evangelical Mass in the corpus. It is the source of the Bremen Mass of 1525 (§9), and its opening prayers reappear in the Kiel Low German Mass (§11). The Mass has no offertory. In its place Kantz puts:

- an address and absolution;
- a recast Orate fratres;
- the Veni Sancte Spiritus antiphon.

Then comes the common Preface and Sanctus. The Canon is cut down to one prayer, a recast Quam oblationem that flows into Qui pridie. The rubric in front of it says: "Only now does the evangelical Mass begin".

2.1 Address, absolution and the recast Orate fratres

Zum ersten soll der priester oder ein anderer ein ermanung tun von dem sacrament oder sunst etwas tröstlichs us dem heiligen evangelio sagen, wie im der Geist Gottes eingibt etc. Darnach mag er die beisitzer mit solchen oder andern Worten anreden: Allerliebsten in Christo! Uf das ir mit frölichem, begirigem herzen entpfahent den zarten fronleichenam und rosenfarbes blut unsers seligmachers Jesu Christi, so demütigent eure herzen gegen Gott, bekennent im eure sünd und gebrechen mit herzlicher begir und sänen nach seiner göttlichen gnad und hilf! So will ich jetzt, euer erwölter priester, euch mitteilen die heiligen absolution und Gott für euch bitten. Der allmechtig, barmherzig Gott vergeb euch euer sünd! Und ich, us bevelch unsers Herren Jesu Christi an statt der heiligen kirchen, sag euch frei, ledig und los aller euer sünden in dem namen des Vaters und Suns und des Heiligen Geists. Amen. Dieweil ich aber auch beschwert bin mit mancherlei gebrechen, so bitten Gott treulich für mich, das ich disen seinen dienst im zu lobe, euch und mir zu trost und heil möge fleißig usrichten und volenden. Psalm 123: Unser hilf soll sein in dem namen des Herren, der himmel und erden erschaffen hat.

First the priest, or another, shall make an exhortation concerning the sacrament, or else say somewhat comfortable out of the holy Gospel, as the Spirit of God giveth it him, etc. Thereafter he may address them that sit by with such or other words: Dearly beloved in Christ! That ye may with joyful and desirous hearts receive the tender body and rose-coloured blood of our Saviour Jesus Christ, humble your hearts before God, confess unto him your sins and infirmities with hearty desire, and long after his divine grace and help! So will I now, your chosen priest, impart unto you the holy absolution, and pray God for you. The almighty and merciful God forgive you your sins! And I, by the commandment of our Lord Jesus Christ, in the stead of the holy Church, pronounce you free, quit and loosed of all your sins, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. But forasmuch as I also am burdened with manifold infirmities, pray God faithfully for me, that I may diligently perform and finish this his service to his praise, to your comfort and mine, and to our salvation. Psalm 123: Our help shall be in the name of the Lord, who hath made heaven and earth.

Note.

- The absolution. Sehling's note: it is put together from the Indulgentiam at the beginning of the Mass and the absolution of private confession.
- The request for prayer. "Dieweil ich aber auch beschwert bin ... so bitten Gott treulich für mich" is, in Sehling's words, a "free recasting of the Orate, fratres". The Roman request is ut meum ac vestrum sacrificium acceptabile fiat. Here the priest asks for help to perform "this his service".
- The versicle. Adiutorium nostrum in nomine Domini (Ps 124:8, numbered 123 in the Vulgate) belongs to the prayers at the foot of the altar.
- The 1524 edition drops the lay minister ("oder ein anderer") and the psalm verse, and heads the absolution "Die absolution".

2.2 Veni Sancte Spiritus and collect (in place of Veni sanctificator)

Darnach soll der priester niderknien und sagen: Nu laßt uns beten; sprechend alle heimlich mit mir: Kumm, Heiliger Geist, erfülle die herzen deiner gläubigen und entzind in inen das feur deiner göttlichen liebe, der du durch manigfaltigkeit der zungen die völker der ganzen welt versamlet hast in einigkeit des glaubens. Alleluja. O Herr, allmechtiger Gott, hilf, das bei uns sei und wone dein Heiliger Geist, das er uns erleuchte und lern alle warheit, beschütze und sterke in aller widerwertigkeit, durch Christum, unsern Herren! Amen.

Thereafter the priest shall kneel down and say: Now let us pray; say ye all secretly with me: Come, Holy Ghost, fill the hearts of thy faithful, and kindle in them the fire of thy divine love, who through the diversity of tongues hast gathered the peoples of the whole world in the unity of the faith. Alleluia. O Lord, almighty God, grant that thy Holy Ghost may be and dwell with us, that he may enlighten us and teach us all truth, and defend and strengthen us in all adversity; through Christ our Lord! Amen.

Note.

- The antiphon. This is the Whitsun Vigil antiphon Veni, Sancte Spiritus, reple tuorum corda fidelium. Sehling notes that the diocese of Augsburg prayed it in the Mass in place of the offertory prayer Veni, sanctificator. The rubric keeps the posture of the offertory prayers (kneeling, "heimlich") but has the whole congregation say them.
- The collect. This is not a Roman offertory prayer. It resembles the Whitsuntide collect Adsit nobis, quaesumus, Domine, virtus Spiritus Sancti ... et ab omnibus tueatur adversis, with "lern alle warheit" from John 16:13. The same collect opens the Bremen (§9) and Kiel (§11) Masses.

2.3 Preface and Sanctus

Prefation oder vorred der meß: Erhebt euer herzen zu Gott und laßt uns danksagen Gott unserm Herren; denn das ist billich und recht! Ja, warlich ist es billich und recht, auch heilsam, das wir an aller orten und zu aller zeit dir, Herr, heiliger Vater, allmechtiger, ewiger Gott, danksagen durch Christum, unsern Herren, durch welchen alle engel und die himmelischen krefte anbeten, eeren und loben dein herrliche majestat. Mit denselbigen, bitten wir, wöllest zulassen und annemen unsere stimm, das wir dich auch loben und sprechen on ende: Sanctus: Heiliger, heiliger, heiliger Herre Gott Sabaoth; voll seind himmel und erd deiner herlichkeit. Osanna in den höchsten! Gebenedeit sei, der da kompt in dem namen des Herren. Glück und heil in den höchsten!

The Preface, or foreword of the Mass: Lift up your hearts unto God, and let us give thanks unto God our Lord; for that is meet and right! Yea, verily it is meet and right, and also wholesome, that we should in all places and at all times give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord, through whom all angels and the heavenly powers worship, honour and praise thy glorious majesty. With the same, we beseech thee, vouchsafe to admit and receive our voice, that we also may praise thee and say without end: Sanctus: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Sabaoth; heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Hosanna in the highest! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Luck and salvation in the highest!

Note.

- The dialogue. It is reduced to the priest's words, with the responses run in: Sursum corda ... Gratias agamus ... Dignum et iustum est.
- The Preface. This is the common Preface (Vere dignum ... per Christum Dominum nostrum. Per quem maiestatem tuam laudant Angeli, adorant Dominationes ... cum quibus et nostras voces ut admitti iubeas deprecamur). The ranks of angels are merged into "alle engel und die himmelischen krefte".
- The Sanctus. The second Hosanna is rendered "Glück und heil" (Ps 118:25, "O Lord, send now prosperity").

2.4 Quam oblationem and Qui pridie

Nun hebt sich erst die evangelisch meß an. O allergütigster Vater, barmherziger, ewiger Gott, hilf, das dises brot und der wein uns werde und sei der warhaftig leib und das unschuldig blut deines allerliebsten Suns, unsers Herren Jesu Christi, welcher an dem tag vor seinem leiden nam das brot in seine heiligen hende, sah auf gen himmel zu dir, seinem allmechtigen Vater, saget dank, segnet und brach das brot und gab es seinen jüngern sprechende: Nemet hin und essent! Das ist mein leib, der für euch geben wirt. Desgleichen nach dem obentmal, nam er den kelch in sein heilige hend, danket, segnet und gab in seinen jüngern und sprach: Nement hin und trinkent alle daraus! Das ist der kelch des neuen und ewigen testaments in meinem blut, das für euch und für vil vergossen wirt zu vergebung der sünden. Als oft ir das tut, so tuts in meiner gedechtnis!

Here beginneth first the evangelical Mass. O most gracious Father, merciful, everlasting God, grant that this bread and the wine may become and be unto us the true body and the innocent blood of thy most dear Son, our Lord Jesus Christ; who on the day before his passion took the bread into his holy hands, looked up to heaven unto thee, his almighty Father, gave thanks, blessed, and brake the bread, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take, and eat! This is my body, which is given for you. Likewise after the supper he took the cup into his holy hands, gave thanks, blessed, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take, and drink ye all of it! This is the cup of the new and everlasting testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins. As oft as ye do this, do it in remembrance of me!

Note.

- The rubric. "Nun hebt sich erst die evangelisch meß an": everything before is preparation. The Canon proper begins here, with the one Canon prayer that is kept.
- The recast Quam oblationem. Sehling calls it "the prayer after the conclusion of the Canon prayer Quam oblationem". The Roman text is Quam oblationem tu, Deus, in omnibus, quaesumus, benedictam, adscriptam, ratam, rationabilem acceptabilemque facere digneris: ut nobis Corpus et Sanguis fiat dilectissimi Filii tui Domini nostri Iesu Christi. Kantz keeps the petition ut nobis ... fiat and the superlative dilectissimi. He drops the oblation and its five adjectives. The object becomes "dises brot und der wein".
- Qui pridie keeps elevatis oculis in caelum ad te Deum Patrem suum omnipotentem ("sah auf gen himmel zu dir, seinem allmechtigen Vater"), both benedixit, and novi et aeterni testamenti. It drops mysterium fidei.
 - "für euch und für vil" is pro vobis et pro multis.
 - "Als oft ir das tut, so tuts in meiner gedechtnis" is Haec quotiescumque feceritis, in mei memoriam facietis.
- The 1524 edition has "nachtmal" for "obentmal", and "in sein eerwirdigen hende, saget aber dank, segnet ihn" (venerabiles manus).

2.5 Our Father with the conclusion of the embolism; Agnus Dei; Fili Dei vivi

Laßt uns beten: Vater unser, der du bist im himmel, geheiliget werd dein nam! Zukumm dein reich! Dein will der werd als im himmel und auf der erd! Unser täglich brot gib uns heut und vergib uns unser schuld, als wir vergeben unsern schuldigern! Und für uns nit in versuchung, sonder erlöse uns von übel! Durch unsern Herren Jesum, deinen Sun, welcher mit dir und dem Heiligen Geist, ein warer Gott, lebt und herrscht in ewigkeit. Amen. Agnus Dei: O du lamb Gottes, der du tregst die sünd der welt, erbarm dich unser und gib uns deinen frid! Amen. Ein andechtigs gebet vor der entpfahung des sakraments: O Herr Jesu Christe, du ewigs wort des Vaters, du Heiland der welt, du warer, lebendiger Gott und mensch, erlös uns durch disen deinen heiligen fronleichnam und rosenvarbes blut von allen sünden! Hilf, das wir erfüllen deine gebot zu aller zeit und von dir nit gescheiden werden in ewigkeit! Amen.

Let us pray: Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name! Thy kingdom come! Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth! Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors! And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil! Through our Lord Jesus, thy Son, who with thee and the Holy Ghost, one true God, liveth and reigneth for ever. Amen. Agnus Dei: O thou Lamb of God, that bearest the sin of the world, have mercy upon us and give us thy peace! Amen. A devout prayer before the receiving of the sacrament: O Lord Jesu Christ, thou everlasting Word of the Father, thou Saviour of the world, thou true, living God and man, deliver us by this thy holy body and rose-coloured blood from all sins! Help us that we may fulfil thy commandments at all times, and never be parted from thee for ever! Amen.

Note.

- The end of the embolism. As at Worms (§6.10), the Our Father runs straight into the conclusion of Libera nos, quaesumus ("Per eundem Dominum nostrum Iesum Christum, Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat in unitate Spiritus Sancti Deus"). The body of the embolism is gone.
- The fraction, in the 1524 edition only. The 1524 edition adds the doxology "denn dein ist das reich und die kraft und die herligkeit in ewigkeit. Amen." It then adds a rubric before the conclusion:

Hie neme der priester das brot und breche es, so vil ers bedarf, und sprech:

Here let the priest take the bread and break it, as much as he needeth, and say:

- Where the rubric falls. Sehling's note 7 points out that the Roman fraction came at these same words, at the end of the embolism. There the priest broke the host in three and dropped one piece into the chalice. In 1524 the conclusion "Durch unsern Herren ..." stands isolated after the doxology's Amen, so the breaking marks the old place.
- Was it new in 1524? Sehling judges (notes 7–9) that the 1522 edition did not know the fraction. There the priest shows "ein hostien", any host, while in 1524 he shows "die", the host just broken.
- No commixture. Neither edition drops a piece into the cup.
- The Agnus Dei. It is sung once, with dona nobis pacem.
- Fili Dei vivi*. The prayer before communion is an abridged Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi ... libera me per hoc sacrosanctum Corpus et Sanguinem tuum ab omnibus iniquitatibus meis et universis malis: et fac me tuis semper inhaerere mandatis, et a te numquam separari permittas.
 - The opening clause (qui ex voluntate Patris ...) gives way to a string of titles.
 - The prayer is plural throughout.
 - The 1524 edition heads it "Oratio".

2.6 Communion, with the custodiat and Calicem salutaris

Nach disem gebet entpfahet der priester das sakrament, ist er anders geschickt darzu, und nem darnach ein hostien in die hand, zeige oder weise die den communicanten und sprech also: Secht, allerliebsten, das ist warlich der heilig leichnam unsers Herren Jesu Christi, der für euch gelitten hat den bitteren tod. Nement hin und essent in, das er euch speis, neer und beware in das ewig leben! Amen. Der frid sei mit euch allen! So er sie nu alle communiciert hat mit dem heiligen fronleichnam Christi, sprech er also: Laßt uns auch trinken den kelch des heils und anrufen den namen unsers Herren! Und wenn er getrunken hat, soll er sich mit dem kelch oder becher zu inen keren und also sprechen: Secht, das ist warlich der teur schatz des kostbarlichen bluts unsers Herren Jesu Christi, damit ir erkaufte seit. Nement hin und teilents miteinander zu abwäschung euer sünden!

After this prayer let the priest receive the sacrament, if he be otherwise prepared thereto, and then take a host in his hand, show or point it to the communicants, and say thus: Behold, dearly beloved, this is verily the holy body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which suffered for you the bitter death. Take and eat it, that it may feed, nourish and preserve you unto everlasting life! Amen. Peace be with you all! When he hath now communicated them all with the holy body of Christ, let him say thus: Let us also drink the cup of salvation and call upon the name of our Lord! And when he hath drunk, he shall turn him to them with the chalice or cup, and say thus: Behold, this is verily the precious treasure of the costly blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherewith ye are bought. Take it, and divide it among you, to the washing away of your sins!

Note.

- "Secht ...". The showing of the host with "Behold" takes the place of the elevation (Sehling: "Die Elevation, die Kantz also vom Konsekrationsakt in die Kommunion verlegt hat"). It also recalls the Ecce Agnus Dei of the late-medieval communion of the people.
- "... das er euch speis, neer und beware in das ewig leben" is the custodiat formula (Corpus Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam tuam in vitam aeternam), spoken to all at once.
- "Der frid sei mit euch allen". The Pax Domini has moved from before the Agnus Dei to the communion. The 1524 edition makes it "Der frid sei mit dir!", said to each communicant.
- "Laßt uns auch trinken den kelch des heils ..." is the priest's Calicem salutaris accipiam, et nomen Domini invocabo (Ps 116:13), from his prayers at the sumption. It is turned into a plural invitation.
- The cup. "teilents miteinander" echoes Luke 22:17.

2.7 Thanksgiving: Nunc dimittis, Te Deum, collects

So das geschehen ist, soll der priester niderknien und danksagen: O Herr, nu laß im frid deine diener nach deinem wort; denn unsere augen haben gesehen dein Heiland, welchen du bereitet hast vor dem angesicht aller völker, ein liecht zu erleuchten die heiden und zu einer glori deins volks Israel. Dir sei lob, eer und dank, o du heilige, gebenedeite, herrliche dreivaltigkeit, Gott Vater, Sun und Heiliger Geist! Amen. Item zu danksagung mag man sprechen: Te Deum laudamus. Gott, dich loben wir; dich, Herr, bekennen wir. [...] Nunc dimittis servum tuum, Domine, secundum verbum tuum in pace [...]. Gloria Patri etc., sicut erat in principio et nunc et semper et in secula seculorum. Amen. O gütiger, barmherziger Got, ein sterk aller, die in dich hoffen, hilf, das wir also wandlen durch das zeitlich, uf das wir nit verlieren das ewig, durch Christum, unsern Herren. Amen. O du heilige dreivaltigkeit, laß dir wolgefallen unser lob und danksagung! Mach vest und stet das werk, das du in uns verbracht[!] hast! Hilf, das uns fruchtbar und fürderlich sei in das ewig leben! Amen.

When that is done, the priest shall kneel down and give thanks: O Lord, now lettest thou thy servants depart in peace according to thy word; for our eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples, a light to lighten the Gentiles, and to be the glory of thy people Israel. Unto thee be praise, honour and thanks, O thou holy, blessed, glorious Trinity, God the Father, Son and Holy Ghost! Amen. Item, for thanksgiving one may say: Te Deum laudamus. We praise thee, O God; we acknowledge thee to be the Lord. [...] Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word [...]. Glory be to the Father, etc., as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. O gracious and merciful God, the strength of all that hope in thee, help us so to walk through things temporal that we lose not the things eternal; through Christ our Lord. Amen. O thou holy Trinity, let our praise and thanksgiving be well-pleasing unto thee! Make firm and steadfast the work which thou hast wrought in us! Grant that it may be fruitful and profitable unto us unto everlasting life! Amen.

Note.

- The Nunc dimittis. Made plural ("deine diener", "unsere augen"). Sehling notes it was among the priest's silent prayers at this point in some German churches.
- The first collect. Sehling identifies it as the collect of the third Sunday after Pentecost, Protector in te sperantium, Deus ... ut sic transeamus per bona temporalia, ut non amittamus aeterna, not a postcommunion.
- The Trinity prayer is the Placeat. Sehling thought it "wohl von Kantz geschaffen". It is in fact the priest's last prayer of the Roman Mass, said before the blessing: Placeat tibi, sancta Trinitas, obsequium servitutis meae: et praesta, ut sacrificium, quod oculis tuae maiestatis indignus obtuli, tibi sit acceptabile, mihi que et omnibus, pro quibus illud obtuli, sit, te miserante, propitiabile.
 - "laß dir wolgefallen unser lob und danksagung" is placeat tibi ... obsequium.
 - The sacrifice offered becomes "das werk, das du in uns verbracht hast": God's work in us, not ours before him.
 - "fruchtbar und förderlich ... in das ewig leben" takes the place of propitiabile.
- What follows. The order ends by permitting the Latin Te Deum and the Magnificat "for thanksgiving". There is no blessing.

3. Wittenberg, Luther, Formula missae et communionis, 1523

Sehling 1, Martin Luther's Ordnungen Nr. 4, pp. 4–9 (eko.db doc 2; the database dates the document 1889, the year of Sehling's volume). The order is in Latin. It is included because it is the model the German Masses answer to. Brandenburg 1540 (§12) takes its Latin communion prayers from the permissions given here. The Nürnberg Latin order of 1524 (§7.1) takes its shortened Preface from it.

Luther states the rule first: everything that "sounds of oblation", with the whole Canon, is to go. What is "pure and holy" stays. The paragraphs below are numbered as in the print.

3.1 The rule, and the preparation of bread and wine

Octavo, sequitur tota illa abominatio, cui servire coactum est quicquid in missa praecessit, unde et offertorium vocatur. Et abhinc omnia fere sonant ac olent oblationem. [...] Proinde omnibus illis repudiatis quae oblationem sonant, cum universo canone, retineamus, quae pura et sancta sunt, ac sic missam nostram ordiamur. I. Sub symbolo vel post canonem apparetur panis et vinum ad benedictionem ritu solito, nisi quod nondum constitui mecum, miscendane sit aqua vino, quamquam huc inclino, ut merum potius vinum paretur absque aquae mixtura [...]. Tamen contra libertatem non introducā legem superstitiosam.

Eighthly, there followeth all that abomination, to which everything that went before in the Mass was forced to serve, whence also it is called the offertory. And from here on almost everything soundeth and savoureth of oblation. [...] Therefore, all those things being rejected which sound of oblation, together with the whole Canon, let us retain those things which are pure and holy, and so begin our Mass. I. During the Creed, or after the canon [sermon], let bread and wine be made ready for the blessing in the accustomed manner; save that I have not yet determined with myself whether water be to be mixed with the wine, though I incline to this, that pure wine rather be prepared without the mixture of water [...]. Yet I will not bring in a superstitious law against liberty.

Note.

- "post canonem". This is Sehling's reading. The Weimar edition (WA 12, 211) reads post concionem, "after the sermon". That fits the paragraph before, which lets the vernacular sermon come after the Creed.
- What goes. The offertory prayers (Suscipe, sancte Pater; Offerimus tibi; Veni, sanctificator; Suscipe, sancta Trinitas), the Orate fratres, the Secret and the whole Canon, as all "sounding of oblation".
- What stays is set out in §§II–VIII below.

3.2 Preface, Verba, Sanctus with elevation

II. Apparato pane et vino mox procedatur ad hunc modum: 'Dominus vobiscum', respon.: 'Et cum spiritu tuo'. 'Sursum corda', respon.: 'Habeamus ad dominum'. 'Gratias agamus domino deo nostro'. Respon.: 'dignum et iustum est. Vere dignum et iustum est, equum et salutare, nos tibi semper et ubique gratias agere, domine sancte, pater omnipotens, aeterne deus, per Christum dominum nostrum'. III. Deinde: 'Qui pridie quam pateretur, accepit panem gratias agens, fregit deditque discipulis suis dicens: Accipite, comedite, hoc est corpus meum, quod pro vobis datur. Similiter et calicem, postquam caenavit, dicens: Hic calix est novi testamenti in meo sanguine, qui pro vobis et pro multis effundetur in remissionem peccatorum. Haec quotiescunque feceritis, in mei memoriam faciatis.' Haec verba Christi velim modica post prefationem interposita pausa in eo tono vocis recitari, quo canitur alias oratio dominica in canone, ut a circumstantibus possit audiri, quamquam in his omnibus libertas sit piis mentibus, vel silenter vel palam ea verba recitare. IV. Finita benedictione Chorus cantet Sanctus et sub cantu Benedictus elevetur panis et calix, ritu hactenus servato, vel propter infirmos, qui hac repentina huius insignioris in missa ritus [mutatione] forte offenduntur, praesertim ubi per conciones vernaculas docti fuerint, quid ea petatur elevatione.

II. The bread and wine being made ready, let him straightway proceed after this manner: "The Lord be with you"; answer, "And with thy spirit". "Lift up your hearts"; answer, "Let us lift them up unto the Lord". "Let us give thanks unto the Lord our God". Answer: "It is meet and right. It is very meet and right, fitting and wholesome, that we should at all times and in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord". III. Then: "Who the day before he suffered took bread, giving thanks, brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take, eat; this is my body, which is given for you. Likewise also the cup, after he had supped, saying: This cup is the new testament in my blood, which shall be shed for you and for many for the remission of sins. As oft as ye shall do these things, ye shall do them in remembrance of me." These words of Christ I would have recited, after a short pause interposed after the Preface, in that tone of voice in which the Lord's Prayer is otherwise sung in the Canon, so that they may be heard by them that stand about; although in all these things let godly minds have liberty to recite those words either silently or aloud. IV. The blessing being ended, let the choir sing the Sanctus, and during the singing of the Benedictus let the bread and cup be elevated after the rite hitherto kept, chiefly for the sake of the weak, who might perhaps be offended by a sudden change of this more notable rite in the Mass, especially where they have been taught by sermons in the vulgar tongue what is sought by that elevation.

Note.

- The Preface. It is cut off after per Christum Dominum nostrum. The Verba follow as a relative clause on Christum ("Qui pridie ..."). This is the form Nürnberg took up in 1524 (§7.1) and the German orders of Volprecht (§7.2) and Döber (§8.2) translated.

- Qui pridie is reduced to the Gospel and Pauline wording.
 - Gone are in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas, elevatis oculis, benedixit, aeterni and mysterium fidei.
 - "quod pro vobis datur" (Luke 22:19) and "hic calix est novi testamenti in meo sanguine" (1 Cor 11:25) come from Scripture, not the Missal.
- "benedictio". Luther calls the recitation of the Verba the "benedictio".
- The Sanctus and elevation. The Sanctus, which in the Roman Mass comes before the Canon, is moved after the Verba. The elevation is kept "ritu hactenus servato", during the Benedictus.

3.3 Our Father; no embolism, no fraction; the Peace as absolution

V. Post haec legatur oratio dominica. Sic: 'Oremus. Preceptis salutaribus moniti etc.' ommissa oratione sequenti: 'Libera nos quesumus', cum omnibus signis, quae fieri solent super hostiam et cum hostia super calicem, nec frangatur hostia nec in calicem misceatur. Sed statim post orationem dominicam dicatur: 'Pax domini etc.' quae est publica quaedam absolutio a peccatis communicantium, vox plane evangelica, annuncians remissionem peccatorum, unica illa et dignissima ad mensam domini preparatio, si fide apprehendatur, non secus atque ex ore Christi prolata. Unde vellem eam nunciari verso ad populum vultu, quemadmodum solent episcopi, quod unicum est vestigium episcoporum priscorum in nostris episcopis.

V. After these things let the Lord's Prayer be read, thus: "Let us pray. Taught by wholesome precepts, etc.", the prayer following, "Deliver us, we beseech thee", being omitted, with all the signs that are wont to be made over the host and with the host over the chalice; and let the host not be broken, nor mixed into the chalice. But straightway after the Lord's Prayer let there be said "The peace of the Lord, etc.", which is a kind of public absolution from the sins of the communicants, a voice plainly evangelical, announcing remission of sins, that one and most worthy preparation for the Lord's table, if it be laid hold on by faith, no otherwise than as spoken from the mouth of Christ. Wherefore I would have it announced with the face turned to the people, as bishops are wont to do, which is the only trace of the ancient bishops left in our bishops.

Note.

- The embolism (Libera nos, quaesumus, Domine, ab omnibus malis ...) is struck out, with its signs of the cross made over the host and the chalice with a fragment.
- The fraction and commixture are forbidden. "nec frangatur hostia nec in calicem misceatur". Worms 1524 repeats this in German (§6.11). Of the Lutheran orders in the corpus, only Kantz's second edition (1524, §2.5) and Müntzer's Allstedt order (§4.2) break the bread at this point.
- The Peace. Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum is reinterpreted as a public absolution. Worms and Brandenburg keep it in that sense.

3.4 Communion: Agnus Dei, Fili Dei vivi, custodiat

VI. Deinde communicet tum sese, tum populum, interim cantetur Agnus dei. Quod si orationem illam: 'Domine Ihesu Christe, fili dei vivi, qui ex voluntate patris etc.' ante sumptionem orare voluerit, non male orabit, mutato solum numero singulari in pluralem, 'nostris' et 'nos' pro 'meis' et 'me'. Item et illam: 'Corpus domini etc. custodiat animam meam, vel tuam, in vitam aeternam'. Et 'sanguis domini nostri custodiat animam tuam in vitam aeternam'.

VI. Then let him communicate first himself, then the people; meanwhile let the Agnus Dei be sung. But if he will pray before the sumption that prayer, "O Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, who by the will of the Father, etc.", he shall not pray amiss, only changing the singular number into the plural, "our" and "us" for "my" and "me". Likewise also that other: "The body of the Lord, etc., preserve my soul, or thy soul, unto life eternal". And "The blood of our Lord preserve thy soul unto life eternal".

Note.

- What is permitted. Of the three prayers before the priest's communion, only Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi is allowed, and it is made plural. Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti and Perceptio corporis are not mentioned. Brandenburg 1540 nevertheless kept all three (§12.5).
- The custodiat. It serves both for the priest ("meam") and for each communicant ("tuam").
- The Agnus Dei. It is sung during communion, not before it.

3.5 Communion chant; Quod ore sumpsimus and Corpus tuum for the postcommunion;

Benedicamus; blessing

VII. Si communionem cantare libet, cantetur. Sed loco complendae seu ultimae collectae, quia fere sacrificium sonant, legatur in eodem tono oratio illa: 'Quod ore sumpsimus, domine'. Poterit et illa legi: 'Corpus tuum, domine, quod sumpsimus etc.' mutato numero in pluralem. 'Qui vivis et regnas etc.' 'Dominus vobiscum etc.' Loco 'Ite missa' dicatur: 'Benedicamus domino', adiecto (ubi et quando placet) alleluia in suis melodiis. Vel ex vespertinis 'Benedicamus' mutuentur. VIII. Benedictio solita detur. Vel accipiatur illa Numeri 6. quam ipse dominus digessit, d.: 'Benedicat nos dominus et custodiat nos, ostendat nobis faciem suam et misereatur nostri, convertat dominus faciem suam ad nos et det nobis pacem.' Vel illa psal. 96.: 'Benedicat nos deus deus noster, benedicat nos deus et metuant eum omnes fines terrae. Amen.'

VII. If it please them to sing the communion, let it be sung. But in the place of the complenda or last collect, because they almost all sound of sacrifice, let that prayer be read in the same tone: "What we have taken with our mouth, O Lord". That other also may be read: "Thy body, O Lord, which we have received, etc.", the number being changed into the plural. "Who livest and reignest, etc." "The Lord be with you, etc." In the place of "Ite, missa est" let there be said "Let us bless the Lord", with Alleluia added (where and when it pleaseth) in its own melodies; or let the Benedicamus be borrowed from Vespers. VIII. Let the accustomed blessing be given. Or let that of Numbers 6 be taken, which the Lord himself appointed, saying: "The Lord bless us and keep us, show us his face and have mercy upon us; the Lord turn his face unto us and give us peace." Or that of Psalm 96 [67]: "God, even our own God, bless us; God bless us, and let all the ends of the earth fear him. Amen."

Note.

- The postcommunion. The variable postcommunions (complenda) are rejected because "they almost all sound of sacrifice". The two priest's prayers said at the ablutions take their place, read aloud in the collect tone:
 - Quod ore sumpsimus, Domine, pura mente capiamus, et de munere temporali fiat nobis remedium sempiternum;
 - Corpus tuum, Domine, quod sumpsi, et Sanguis, quem potavi, adhaereat visceribus meis ..., made plural.

Brandenburg 1540 and Pfalz-Neuburg 1543 kept both in Latin (§12.8, §14.8). Volprecht (§7.2) and Strasbourg (§5.1) turned Quod ore into German.

- Benedicamus Domino replaces Ite, missa est.
- The blessing. Luther's use of Numbers 6 is the origin of the Aaronic blessing at the end of the Lutheran Mass.

3.6 The Deutsche Messe of 1526 (for comparison)

Luther's German Mass (Sehling 1, Nr. 8; doc 3) keeps none of the Canon or of the priest's prayers:

- In place of the Canon stands a public paraphrase of the Our Father, with an admonition to the communicants: "Nach der predigt sol folgen eine offentliche paraphrasis des vater unsers und vermanung an die so zum sacrament gehen wollen ...".
- The Verba. Luther suggested giving the bread straight after the bread-word, "ehe man den kilch segenet", and the cup after the cup-word.
- The elevation is kept: "Das aufheben wollen wir nicht abthun sondern behalten, darumb das es fein mit dem deutschen sanctus stimmet ...".
- No fraction, no Pax.
- The thanksgiving is a new collect, "Wir dancken dir, almechtiger herre gott, das du uns durch dise heilsame gabe hast erquicket ...". Bugenhagen's orders (§15) and Brandenburg 1540 (§12.8) carry it.

This is why most Lutheran orders after 1526 have no Canon remnants. The orders in this file are those that, like the Formula missae, kept something of the old text.

4. Allstedt, Thomas Müntzer, Deutsch evangelisch Messe, 1524, and Ordnung des teutschen ampts, 1523/24

- The Mass. Deutsch evangelisch messze, etwan durch die Bebstischen pfaffen im latein zu grossem nachteil des Christen glaubens vor ein opffer gehandelt ... Sehling 1, Nr. 46, pp. 497–503 (eko.db doc 51). It gives five Masses (Advent, Christmas, Passion, Easter, Whitsun) with their propers set to the old chant. The ordinary is printed in full with the first, the Advent Mass, on pp. 500–501. It is given here.
- The commentary. Ordnung und berechnunge des teutschen ampts zu Alstadt, 1523, printed at Allstedt 1524. Sehling 1, Nr. 47, pp. 504–506 (doc 52). It explains the Mass item by item and gives the rubrics the Mass itself lacks.

Müntzer was no Lutheran, but his German Mass is the most conservative in the corpus in wording. It keeps:

- the offertory chant, with the Secret's Per omnia saecula saeculorum;
- the full proper Preface;
- the Roman Qui pridie with mysterium fidei;
- the end of the embolism, with the fraction (per the Ordnung);
- Pax Domini.

His wording was taken over in the Lippe Mass (§10), the Kiel Low German Mass (§11) and, for the Preface dialogue, Calenberg-Göttingen 1542 (§13).

4.1 Offertory, Preface, Sanctus (Advent)

O herr, zu dir hab ich erhaben meine sele; o gott, mein gott, auf dich vorlass ich mich und werd nit zu schanden, das mich meine feinde nicht bespotten, durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. Amen. Der herre sei mit euch. Und mit deinem geiste. Unser herzen in die hœ. Haben wir zu dem herren. Wir sagen dank dem herren, unserem gotte. Es ist wurdig und ist recht. Warlich, es ist billich und recht und ist heilsam, das wir dir, herr, o heiliger vater, almechtiger, ewiger got, allzeit und allenthalben danksagen. Dann du dein heilige menscheit von der junkfrauen Maria hast empfangen durch die umbschetigung des heiligen geistes, das sie mit unvorruckter keuscheit das ewige licht zur welt gebracht hat, Jesum Christum, unseren herren. Durch wilchen loben die engel dein herligkeit und ehr erbierten die engel, do du innen hirschest; es entsetzten sich die gewaltigen engel; dozu die himmel und der himmel krefte und die heiligen seraphin preisen dich on unterlass mit einmütiger freuden. Drumb bitten wir dich, o herr, das du woltest unsere stimmen mit in zu lassen, das wir dich mit warem bekenntnis mügen loben one ende, sagende: Heilger, heilger, heilger herre gott Sabaoth. Himmel und erde seint erfüllet mit deinem preise. Ozianna in dem höchsten. Gesegnet sei, der do kumpt im namen des herren. Ozianna in den höchsten.

O Lord, unto thee have I lifted up my soul; O God, my God, in thee I trust, and shall not be put to shame, that mine enemies mock me not; world without end. Amen. The Lord be with you. And with thy spirit. Our hearts on high. We have them unto the Lord. We give thanks unto the Lord our God. It is worthy and it is right. Verily it is meet and right and it is wholesome that we should at all times and in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God. For thou hast received thy holy manhood of the Virgin Mary by the overshadowing of the Holy Ghost, that she with unblemished chastity brought forth unto the world the everlasting light, Jesus Christ our Lord. Through whom the angels praise thy glory, and the angels in whom thou reignest do thee honour; the mighty angels tremble; and the heavens and the powers of the heavens and the holy seraphim praise thee without ceasing with one accord of joy. Therefore we beseech thee, O Lord, that thou wouldest let our voices be admitted with them, that we may praise thee with true confession without end, saying: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Sabaoth. Heaven and earth are filled with thy praise. Hosanna in the highest. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest.

Note.

- The offertory chant. "O herr, zu dir hab ich erhaben meine sele ..." is the offertory chant of the first Sunday of Advent, Ad te, Domine, levavi animam meam: Deus meus, in te confido, non erubescam: neque irrideant me inimici mei (Ps 25:1–2). The Ordnung says "Wir halten kein opfer in der geheim gotis": the offertory prayers are gone, but not the chant.
- "durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. Amen." This is Per omnia saecula saeculorum. Amen, the audible end of the silent Secret, which led into the Preface dialogue. The Secret itself is gone; its last words remain. The same place in Lippe (§10) has it as the first words of the "Prefatio", and Göttingen 1542 (§13) has "Gott sey preis von ewigkeit zu ewigkeit. Amen."
- The Preface is the Preface of the Blessed Virgin, not the Advent or Christmas Preface. Its text is Et te in [festivitate] beatae Mariae semper Virginis collaudare ... Quae et Unigenitum tuum Sancti Spiritus obumbratione concepit: et virginittis gloria permanente, lumen aeternum mundo effudit, Iesum Christum Dominum nostrum. Per quem maiestatem tuam laudant Angeli, adorant Dominationes, tremunt Potestates. Caeli caelorumque Virtutes, ac beata Seraphim, socia exsultatione concelebrant.
 - Müntzer takes out the praise of Mary. God himself becomes the subject: "du [hast] dein heilige menscheit ... empfangen".
 - The Virgin's virginitatis gloria permanente becomes "mit unvorruckter keuscheit".

- The ranks of angels are rendered one by one: Dominationes "die engel, do du innen hirschest"; tremunt Potestates "es entsetzten sich die gewaltigen engel".
- "mit warem bekentnis" is supplici confessione.

4.2 The Verba, the Our Father, the end of the embolism, the Peace, Agnus Dei

Einen tag zu vorn, do Jesus wolte leiden, nam er das brot in seine heiligen hende und hub auf seine augen in himmel zu dir, gott seinem almechtigen vater, und sagte dir dank und gesegnete es und brach es und gab es seinen jüngern, sagende: Nempt hin und esset darvon. Das ist mein leichnam, der vor euch dargegeben wirt. Des selbigen gleichen, do man gessen hatte, nam er den kelch in seine heiligen wirdigen hende und sagete dir dank und gesegnete den und gab in seinen jüngern, sagende: Nempt hin und trinket all daraus. Dis ist der kilch meines blutes des neuen und ewigen bundes, ein geheimnis des glaubens, der vor euch und vor viel vorgossen wirt in vorgebunge der sunde. So oft ir dis thut, solt ir meiner dobei gedenken. Dorumb last uns alle bitten, wie uns Jesus Christus, der sohn gotes, hat geleret, sagende: Vater unser, der du bist in himmeln, geheiligt werde dein name, zu kum dein reich, dein will geschee als im himmel und auf erden. Unser teglich brot gib uns heute und vorlass uns unsere schulde, wie wir vorlassen unsern schuldign. Und fur uns nicht in vorsuchunge, sondern erlöse uns von übel. Amen. Durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. Amen. Der fride des herren sei allzeit mit euch. Und mit deinem geist. O lamp gotes, wilchs do tregt die sunde der welt, erbarm dich unser. O lamp gotes, wilchs do tregt die sunde der welt, gib uns deinen fride.

The day before, when Jesus would suffer, he took the bread into his holy hands, and lifted up his eyes to heaven unto thee, God, his almighty Father, and gave thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take, and eat thereof. This is my body, which is given for you. In like manner, when they had eaten, he took the cup into his holy and worthy hands, and gave thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take, and drink ye all thereof. This is the cup of my blood of the new and everlasting covenant, a mystery of faith, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As oft as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby. Therefore let us all pray, as Jesus Christ, the Son of God, hath taught us, saying: Our Father, which art in the heavens, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. Amen. World without end. Amen. The peace of the Lord be alway with you. And with thy spirit. O Lamb of God, which beareth the sin of the world, have mercy upon us. O Lamb of God, which beareth the sin of the world, give us thy peace.

Note.

- The Verba are the Roman Qui pridie, not the Scriptural text. "Einen tag zu vorn, do Jesus wolte leiden" is Qui pridie quam pateretur. The following are all kept:
 - in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas ("in seine heiligen [wirdigen] hende");
 - elevatis oculis in caelum ad te Deum Patrem suum omnipotentem ("hub auf seine augen in himmel zu dir, gott seinem almechtigen vater");
 - tibi gratias agens ("sagete dir dank"), still addressed to the Father in the second person;
 - benedixit ("gesegnete es");
 - Accipite et manducate ex hoc omnes ("esset darvon");
 - novi et aeterni testamenti ("des neuen und ewigen bundes");
 - mysterium fidei ("ein geheimnis des glaubens");
 - Haec quotiescumque feceritis, in mei memoriam facietis.

Only "der vor euch dargegeben wirt" (Luke 22:19) is added. The Ordnung (below) has the same text, with crosses at the two blessings.

- "Dorumb last uns alle bitten, wie uns Jesus Christus ... hat geleret, sagende" is Oremus: Praeceptis salutaribus moniti, et divina institutione formati, audemus dicere.
- "Durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. Amen." after the Our Father is Per omnia saecula saeculorum. Amen, the sung ending of the embolism Libera nos. The embolism is gone and its ending stays. The Ordnung puts the fraction here (§4.3).
- "Der fride des herren sei allzeit mit euch. Und mit deinem geist" is Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum. Et cum spiritu tuo, with the Roman response.
- The *Agnus Dei is printed twice in the Mass and three times in the Ordnung.

4.3 The Allstedt Ordnung on the Sacrament: Verba, elevation, fraction

Zum neunten: So singet man die form der termung oder des abentessens im tone der prefation, lauts diser wort folgende: Einen tag zuvorn, do Jesus wolte leiden, nam er das brot in seine heiligen, wirdigen hende, und hub auf seine augen in himmel zu dir, got, seinem almechtigen vater, sagete dir danke und gesegnete ✠ das und brach es, und gab es seinen jugern, sagende: Nemet hin und esset all darvon. Elevando manu dicit: Das ist mein leichnam, der vor euch dargegeben wirt. Vertens se minister, accipiens calicem coram vulgo dicit: Desselbigen gleichen do man gessen hatte, nam er den kelch in seine heiligen, wirdigen hende, und sagete dir dank, und gesegnete ✠ den und gab in seinen jugern, sagende: Dis ist der kelch meines blutes, des neuen und ewigen testamentes, ein geheim des glaubens, der vor euch und vor viel vorgossen wirt in vorzeihunge der sunde. Rursus vertens se ad altare dicit: So oft und dick ir das thut, solt ir meiner darbei gedenken etc. Zum zehenden. Balt nach der elevation singet man im selben ton flux drauf also: Darumb last uns alle bitten, wie uns Jesus Christus, der warhaftig son gotis, hat geleret, sagende: Vater unser, der du bist in himmeln etc.; und alles volk singet drauf: Amen. Darnach wirt es stille, ein wenig, athem zu holen, unter wilcher zeit der priester der communicanten halben das sacrament teilet und singet: Durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. So antwort das gemein volk: Amen. Der priester wider: Der fride des herren sei alzeit mit euch. So antwort das volk: Und mit deinem geist. Bald nach disem, auf das ein geheim gotis, der tod und auferstehung Christi betrachtet werde, das selbe weiter zu erkleren, singet alles volk das gezeugnis Joannis des teufers Christi zu dreimal: O lamb gottes, wilchs du weg nimpst die sunde der welt etc.; do zu singt man aus dem evangelio Luce 17: Erbarme dich unser, und zum letzten: Gib uns deinen fride. [...] Auf solchen glauben gibt man dann den leuten das hochwirdigste sacrament unter dem agnus dei, on die bepstische heuchlische beicht.

Ninthly: Then is sung the form of the consecration, or of the supper, in the tone of the Preface, according to these words following: The day before, when Jesus would suffer, he took the bread into his holy and worthy hands, and lifted up his eyes to heaven unto thee, God, his almighty Father, gave thanks unto thee, and blessed ✠ it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take, and eat ye all thereof. Lifting it up with his hand he saith: This is my body, which is given for you. The minister turning, and taking the cup, saith before the people: In like manner, when they had eaten, he took the cup into his holy and worthy hands, and gave thanks unto thee, and blessed ✠ it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: This is the cup of my blood, of the new and everlasting testament, a mystery of faith, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. Turning again to the altar he saith: As oft and often as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby, etc. Tenthly. Soon after the elevation one singeth straightway in the same tone thus: Therefore let us all pray, as Jesus Christ, the true Son of God, hath taught us, saying: Our Father, which art in the heavens, etc.; and all the people sing thereupon: Amen. Thereafter it becometh still a little while, to take breath, during which time the priest divideth the sacrament for the sake of the communicants, and singeth: World without end. Then the common people answer: Amen. The priest again: The peace of the Lord be alway with you. Then the people answer: And with thy spirit. Soon after this, that a mystery of God, the death and resurrection of Christ, may be considered, and to explain the same further, all the people sing the witness of John the Baptist of Christ three times: O Lamb of God, which takest away the sin of the world, etc.; thereto is sung out of the Gospel, Luke 17: Have mercy upon us; and at the last: Give us thy peace. [...] Upon such faith the people are then given the most worthy sacrament under the Agnus Dei, without the popish hypocritical confession.

Note.

- The fraction. "unter wilcher zeit der priester der communicanten halben das sacrament teilet und singet: Durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit". This is exactly the Roman place and manner: the priest broke the host during the last words of the embolism and sang Per omnia saecula saeculorum over the broken host before the Pax.
 - The reason is new. The priest breaks "der communicanten halben", for the sake of the communicants, to share the bread. It is not a rite of the Mass for its own sake.
 - No commixture is mentioned.
 - Luther had forbidden the fraction in the same year (§3.3).
- "termung". This is Müntzer's word for the consecration ("die wort der termung"; "die consecration ein termung, wilche nicht allein von einem, sonder durch die ganze vorsamlete gemein geschicht"). Sehling does not gloss it.
- The elevation. The bread is elevated at the bread-word ("Elevando manu"). The cup is shown to the people ("coram vulgo").
- Communion is given during the Agnus Dei, "on die bepstische heuchliche beicht". The Ordnung adds that after communion "sagt man got dank uber das volk und gesegnet den herrn etc.": the postcommunion and the Benedicamus (§4.4).

4.4 Postcommunion and Benedicamus (Advent Mass)

O herr gott, steh hart bei uns, das wir von unsern greulichen lastern mügen abzichtung thun, nach dem wir uns durch den geist Christi, deines sohnes, mit dir unwiderruflich verbunden haben durch dis heilige zeichen seines zarten fleischs und teuren blutes, der mit dir lebet und regiret in einigkeit des heiligen geistes etc. Last uns gesegnen den herren. Gott sei ewiglich dank.

O Lord God, stand hard by us, that we may make renunciation of our grievous vices, forasmuch as we have bound ourselves irrevocably unto thee through the spirit of Christ, thy Son, by this holy sign of his tender flesh and precious blood; who with thee liveth and reigneth in the unity of the Holy Ghost, etc. Let us bless the Lord. Thanks be to God for ever.

Note.

- The postcommunion. It is not a Roman text. The sacrament as a "heiliges zeichen" of a covenant bond fits Müntzer's teaching. "Zart fleisch und teures blut" are the vocabulary of late-medieval eucharistic devotion (compare Kantz's "zarten fronleichnam und rosenfarbes blut", §2.1).
- Benedicamus Domino* / *Deo gratias replaces Ite, missa est, as in the Formula missae.
- The Whitsun postcommunion. The other Masses have their own postcommunions. The Whitsun one ("O herr vorlei uns die gnad des heiligen geists, auf das der thau deiner güte, unsern grund des herzens in seiner besprengung fruchtbar mache", Sehling 1, 504) renders the Roman Whitsun postcommunion Sancti Spiritus, Domine, corda nostra mundet infusio: et sui roris intima aspersione fecundet. Calenberg-Göttingen 1542 took it over (§13.4).

5. Strasbourg, the early German Masses, 1524–1525

Sehling 20, Straßburg, Nr. 3 "Die frühen Agenden", pp. 120–162 (eko.db doc 1279). Sehling prints six forms:

Form	Pages
a Theobald (Diebold) Schwarz's manuscript agenda, "Anfang der evangelischen meß", 1524	120–123
b Teutsche Meß und Tauff, wie sye yetzund zu Straßburg gehalten werden , 1524	130–134
c Ordenung und inhalt Teutscher Mess , Augsburg reprint, 1524	135
d Teutsch Kirchenampt mit lobsgengen , 1524/25	136–141
e Ordnung des Herren Nachtmal, so man die mesß nennet , 1525	142–150
f Straßburger kirchen ampt , 1525	151–162

The Worms Mass (§6) is the Strasbourg Mass of 1524 in use at Worms. Its Canon prayers (Te igitur to Supplices) are not in Schwarz's text. A later hand added one of them, the Unde et memores, to the manuscript, along with mysterium fidei (noted in §5.1). Döber took his optional intercession from Strasbourg (§8.11).

Across these six forms the Canon is replaced step by step:

- a–d: a single intercession in the place of Te igitur, with the Verba and a short prayer after the elevation.
- e (1525): one long prayer "anstatt des Canon" after a shortened common Preface and Sanctus. The Verba are read afterwards as a lesson, and there is no elevation.
- f: the same prayer, revised, with no Preface or Sanctus at all.

5.1 Schwarz's Mass, 1524 (form a)

Ad populum versus dicat: Lieben brüder und schwestern, bitten Gott, den vatter, durch unsern hernn Jesum Christum, das er uns den heiligen geist, den tröster, zuschicke, das er mache unser leib zu eim lebendigen, heiligen, wolgefälligen opfer, das do ist der vernunftig gotts dienst, der Gott gefelt. Das beschehe uns allen, Amen. Versus populum adhuc stans dicat: Der herr sey mit euch. Prefatio Erhebt euwere hertzenn. Sagen danck dem herren, unserem Gott. Es geburt sich furwor und ist billich, recht und heilsam, das wir dir alweg an allen orten danck sagen. O herr, heiliger, almechtiger vatter, ewiger Gott, der du unser heil durch das holtz des creutzes verschafft hast, uff das das leben von solchem keme, von welchem der todt uffgangen ist, und uff das der feyndt, so durch das holtz übertretung uns alle in Adam überwunden hatt, wider uß gehorsam, so am holtz geleistet ist, bestritten wurde, durch Christum Jesum, unsern hern, durch welches maiestat und herlichkeyt dich die engel und alle hymmelsche ritterschafft loben, mit glichem frolocken samenthafft ryemen und preysen, zu welchen du auch unsere stymmen annemen wöllest, bitten wir mit undertheniger bekanntnuß und sagen: Sanctus Sanctus. Heiliger, heiliger herr, Gott der herscharen, voll synd die hymmel und erden von deiner herlichkeyt. Ach, mach uns selig in der höhe. Benedictus Er ist zu loben, der do kumpt im namen des herren. Ach, selige uns in der höhe.

Turned toward the people let him say: Dear brethren and sisters, pray God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ, that he send us the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, that he may make our bodies a living, holy, well-pleasing sacrifice, which is the reasonable service of God that pleaseth God. May this befall us all, Amen.

Toward the people, still standing, let him say: The Lord be with you. The Preface Lift up your hearts. Let us give thanks unto the Lord our God. It becometh us truly, and is meet, right and wholesome, that we should alway and in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy, almighty Father, everlasting God, who hast wrought our salvation through the wood of the cross, that life might come from thence whence death arose, and that the enemy who by the transgression of the tree had overcome us all in Adam might be vanquished again by the obedience rendered on the tree; through Christ Jesus our Lord, through whose majesty and glory the angels and all the heavenly host praise thee, and together with like exultation extol and magnify thee; with whom we pray thee to receive our voices also, with humble confession, saying: Sanctus Sanctus. Holy, holy Lord, God of hosts, the heavens and earth are full of thy glory. Ah, save us in the highest. Benedictus Praised be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Ah, save us in the highest.

Note.

- The bidding replaces the Orate fratres. The Roman request that "my sacrifice and yours may be acceptable" becomes a prayer for the Spirit, who makes "our bodies" the sacrifice (Rom 12:1). The only sacrifice named is that of the worshippers.
- The Preface is the Preface of the Cross (Passiontide): qui salutem humani generis in ligno Crucis constituisti: ut unde mors oriebatur, inde vita resurgeret: et qui in ligno vincebat, in ligno quoque vinceretur: per Christum Dominum nostrum. Per quem maiestatem tuam laudant Angeli Form b prints further proper Prefaces (Christmas, Epiphany, Easter, Ascension, Whitsun) "for when thou hast read ... Ewiger Gott".
- The Sanctus. "Ach, mach uns selig" and "Ach, selige uns" translate Hosanna.

Laventur manus. Tacite. Deinde stans per modum orantis: Levatis, si placet, manibus: Almechtiger, barmhertziger vatter, die weil dein sun, unser herr Jesus, zugesagt hatt, was wir bitten in synem namen, das werdest du uns geweren, und zu dem, dyweil dein geist auch bevolhen hatt, das wir fur unser oberkeyt bitten sollen, bitten wir von hertzen, du wollest die gemütter des keysers, der fursten und herren, vorab unser hern und öberen eins ersamen raths, zu erkantnuß dyner guthe und des evangelions bewegen, auch das du deynem sun durch den heiligen geist underthenig machest alle volcker, uff das sie selbs willigk seyn verheissung erkennen, annemen und behutten. Und vor ab disser gemeyn verleyhe, das sie zuneme in erkantnuß des evangelions und seynes sussen jochs und gemachsamen burden. Dyweyl nun, almechtiger, ewiger Gott, geliebter und barmhertziger vatter, Welcher am nechsten tag vor seym lyden das brott nam in sein heilige hend und dir, Gott, seynem hymmelschen vatter, dancksaget, segnets, brachs und gabs seynen jungern und sprach: Nemmet hien und essend. Das ist meyn lyb, der fur euch geben wurt. Ad calicem: Des glichen noch dem nachtmal nam er den kelch in sein heilige hende und danckt und sprach: Nement hien und trinckent alle daruß. Das ist der kelch meins bluts, des neuwen und ewigen testaments, das fur euch und vil vergossen wurt zu vergebung der sunden. Elevatio calicis: Als oft ir das thunt, so thut es in meynen gedechtnuß.

Let the hands be washed. Silently. Then standing in the manner of one praying: With hands lifted up, if it please: Almighty, merciful Father, forasmuch as thy Son, our Lord Jesus, hath promised that whatsoever we ask in his name thou wilt grant us; and moreover, forasmuch as thy Spirit also hath commanded that we should pray for our rulers: we pray thee from our hearts that thou wouldest move the minds of the emperor, the princes and lords, and first of all of our lords and superiors of the honourable Council, to the knowledge of thy goodness and of the Gospel; and also that thou wouldest make all peoples subject to thy Son through the Holy Ghost, that they themselves may willingly know, receive and keep his promise. And above all grant unto this congregation that it may increase in the knowledge of the Gospel and of his sweet yoke and easy burden. Forasmuch now, almighty, everlasting God, beloved and merciful Father, — Who on the next day before his passion took the bread into his holy hands, and gave thanks unto thee, God, his heavenly Father, blessed it, brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take, and eat. This is my body, which shall be given for you. At the cup: Likewise after the supper he took the cup into his holy hands, and gave thanks, and said: Take, and drink ye all thereof. This is the cup of my blood, of the new and everlasting testament, which shall be shed for you and many for the forgiveness of sins. The elevation of the cup: As oft as ye do this, do it in remembrance of me.

Note.

- The lavabo. "Lavatur manus. Tacite" keeps the priest's washing of hands from the offertory, moved to after the Sanctus.
- The posture. "Levatis ... manibus", "per modum orantis": the priest stands with raised hands, as for the Canon.
- The intercession replaces Te igitur. It stands where Te igitur stood, and like Te igitur it prays for the Church and its rulers, with emperor and council in place of pope and bishop.
 - It breaks off at "Dyweyl nun, almechtiger, ewiger Gott, geliebter und barmhertziger vatter," and the relative "Welcher" of Qui pridie follows. The sentence is left unfinished in the manuscript. A second hand added a continuation (Sehling's apparatus q, later struck out): "O aller gnedigster vatter, dein einiger sun ... welche du der welt geben hast durch Christum Jesum, unsern herren." This is the germ of the long 1525 prayer (§5.2).
 - Döber prints the same intercession as an option "nach der prefation oder für das Sanctus" (§8.11). Form d calls it "Almechtiger, barmhertziger vatter, Dieweil dein sun ...".
- Qui pridie keeps "am nechsten tag vor seym lyden" (pridie quam pateretur), "segnets" (benedixit) and novi et aeterni testamenti.
 - It adds "der fur euch geben wurt" (1 Cor 11:24).
 - A later hand adds after the cup-word "Die heimlikeit des gloubens", mysterium fidei.
 - The bread is not elevated. The cup is elevated at Haec quotiescumque.
- Form b's rubrics. Form b marks this passage "Anfang der rechten, woren mess" and, after it, "Ende der mess oder des nachtmals Christi, dann vor- und nachgeende wort seind alle zuo bewegung und zuo erfrischen den glauben und nit als hauptstück der mess ingefürt". That is: only the Verba are the Mass. All that stands before and after is there to move and refresh faith, and may be changed or left out.

Post elevationem Wie groß ist dein güthe, das du uns on allen unsern verdienst die sund nit allein verzeihen hast, sonder uns zu einer versicherung verlossen den leib und blut unsers herren Jesu Christi under dem brot und weyn. Wie dan sonst alle andere verheissungen du alwegen mit eusserlichen zeichen betzeugt hast. Darumb haben wir itzundt grosse, unwidertreibliche sicherheyt deiner gnaden und wissen, das wir dein kinder sind, dein erben und miterben Christi, und mögen frey betten, wie uns dein eingeborner sun gelernet hat, und sagen: Vatter unser, der du bist in dem hymelen, geheiligt werd dein nam. Zu kum dein rych. Dein wil geschehe, als im hymmel und uff erden. Unser teglich brot gib uns heut. Und vergib uns unsere schuld, also und wir vergeben unsern schuldigern. Und nit infure uns in versuchung, sonder erlöse uns vom ubel, Amen. Herr, erlöse uns von allen sichtbaren und unsichtbaren feinden, von dem teuffel, der welt, vor unserm eignen fleisch, durch Christum Jesum, unsern hern, Amen. Agnus dei Du lemblin Gottes, der du hiennymbst die sund der welt, erbarm dich unser. Du lemblin Gottes, verlyhe uns den friden.

After the elevation How great is thy goodness, that without any merit of ours thou hast not only forgiven us our sins, but hast left us for an assurance the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ under the bread and wine; as thou hast alway witnessed all other promises besides with outward signs. Therefore have we now great and irresistible assurance of thy grace, and know that we are thy children, thine heirs and joint-heirs with Christ, and may freely pray, as thine only-begotten Son hath taught us, and say: Our Father, which art in the heavens, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, even as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, Amen. Lord, deliver us from all enemies visible and invisible, from the devil, the world, and from our own flesh; through Christ Jesus our Lord, Amen. Agnus Dei Thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us. Thou Lamb of God, grant us peace.

Note.

- "Post elevationem". The prayer stands where Unde et memores stood, after the consecration. It thanks God for the body and blood left "under the bread and wine" as a pledge, and leads into the Our Father like Praeceptis salutaribus ("mögen frey betten" is audemus dicere).
- The later hand at Strasbourg. At this point it wrote into the margin the German Unde et memores that Worms prints: "Des halben, here, wier, dine diener, bedrachten des selbigen dines sünes ... liden und sterben, ufferstendnis von der helle und auch die erlich uffart zu den himlen diner götlichen maiestat, da mit anbietten unser diemiettiges gebet, daruf du mit genaedigen heitteren augen schauen ..." (compare §6.8).
 - It also corrected "den leib und blut" to "die gedechtniß des leibs und blut", and "under" to "in".
 - It added the doxology to the Our Father.
- The embolism. "Herr, erlöbe uns von allen sichtbaren und unsichtbaren feinden ..." is the embolism reduced to one line. Döber has the same line (§8.5), and Sehling calls it there "Rest des Embolismus". There is no fraction.

Adhortatio ad populum brevis. Communicatio Laßt unß bitten: Herr Jesu Christe, du sun des lebendigen Gotts, der du uß vetterlichem willen und mitwürckung des heiligen geists durch dein todt die welt zum leben bracht hast, erlöbe uns durch dißen deinen heyiligen leib und blut von allen unsern ungerechtigkeiten und boßheyten und verlyhe, das wir alweg gehorsamen deinen gebotten und von dir nyemer ewigklich abgesundert werden, Amen. Complenda Laßt uns bitten: Das wir mit mund haben zu uns genomen, verlyhe uns, herr, uff das wir dasselbig mit reynem gemüt annemen, und das uns von der zeytlichen goben werde eyne ewige artzenyg, durch Christum Jesum, unsern herrn, Amen. Vel aliam aliquam, que Christiana videtur. Ad populum: Der herr sey mit euch. Benedictio Der seggen Gott, des vatters ✠ und des suns ✠ und des heiligen geists ✠, sey mit uns und bleib alweg, Amen.

A short exhortation to the people. The communion Let us pray: Lord Jesu Christ, thou Son of the living God, who by the Father's will and the working of the Holy Ghost hast through thy death brought the world to life: deliver us by this thy holy body and blood from all our iniquities and wickednesses, and grant that we may alway obey thy commandments, and never for ever be separated from thee, Amen. The complenda Let us pray: What we have taken to us with the mouth, grant us, Lord, that we may receive the same with a pure mind, and that of the temporal gift there may be made unto us an everlasting medicine; through Christ Jesus our Lord, Amen. Or some other which seemeth Christian. To the people: The Lord be with you. The blessing The blessing of God, the Father ✠ and the Son ✠ and the Holy Ghost ✠, be with us and remain alway, Amen.

Note.

- Fili Dei vivi is said aloud as the prayer of all ("Laßt unß bitten") before the communion. Form b adds the rubric "Hie teylt man auß dem volck ... beyde sacrament, den leyb und bluot des herrn under brot und weyn". Döber (§8.8) and the Kiel Mass (§11) have the same German text, said by the people after the priest.
- The complenda is Quod ore sumpsimus in full. It is the "complenda" Luther had recommended (§3.5).
- The blessing keeps three crosses.
- Form d (the Kirchenampt) adds after the Agnus a rubric for the exhortation: "darinn sy allein tringen uff die fruchtbar gedechnuß und heilsam verkündung des tods Christi". At the distribution the priest says "alleyn die wort des nachtmals". Luther's "Gott sei gelobet" follows as the communion hymn, then the Aaronic blessing. The complenda is gone.

5.2 The Ordnung des Herren Nachtmal, 1525 (form e): the prayer "anstatt des Canon"

Darnach bereit der diener den kelch und spricht dann zu dem Volck: Liebe brüder und schwestern, bitten alle Gott, unsern vatter, das er uns sende seinen heylgen geist, der uns lere uff opfferen die opffer Gottes, ein zerbrochnen geist und zerschlagen hertz, und daß wir unsere leib zum opffer geben, das da lebendig, heylig und ym wolgefellig ist, welches unser vernunftiger gottsdienst ist, damit wir Got auch danck sagen und preiß uff opfferen, und er uns zeig sein heyl. Der herr wil eüch alle erhören. So laßt uns nun uffheben unsere hertzen zu dem herren und danck sagen ym, unserm herren und Got. Dann es ist ye recht, billich und heilsam, das wir dir allzeyt und allenthalben lob und danck sagen. Heylger herr, allmechtiger vatter, ewiger gott, Und das durch Jesum Christum, unsern heyland, durch welchen dich auch die engel loben und alle hymliche krefft preisen, mit welchen wir auch bitten und flehen, wellest auch unser stymmen zu lassen, die wir mit demütiger verjechung sprechen: Sanctus Heylig, heylig, heylig bistu, der herr und Gott der herscharen, Vol sind himel und erden deiner herrlichkeit. Hosianna, hilff uns, aller höchster. Gebenedeyt bist du auch, der du kumpst in dem namen des herren, ein sun David. Hosianna, ach hilff uns, aller höchster, das dein reich zu nemm und werd gesterckt.

Thereafter the minister prepareth the chalice, and then speaketh to the people: Dear brethren and sisters, pray ye all God our Father that he send us his Holy Ghost, who may teach us to offer up the sacrifices of God, a broken spirit and a contrite heart; and that we give our bodies a sacrifice, living, holy and well-pleasing unto him, which is our reasonable service; that we may also offer up thanks and praise unto God, and he may show us his salvation. The Lord will hear you all. So let us now lift up our hearts unto the Lord, and give thanks unto him, our Lord and God. For it is indeed right, meet and wholesome that we should at all times and in all places give praise and thanks unto thee, holy Lord, almighty Father, everlasting God, and that through Jesus Christ our Saviour, through whom the angels also praise thee and all the heavenly powers magnify thee; with whom we also pray and beseech thee that thou wouldest admit our voices also, who with humble confession say: Sanctus Holy, holy, holy art thou, the Lord and God of hosts; full are heaven and earth of thy glory. Hosanna, help us, most Highest. Blessed art thou also, that comest in the name of the Lord, a son of David. Hosanna, ah help us, most Highest, that thy kingdom may increase and be strengthened.

Note.

- The bidding is expanded with Ps 51:17 ("die opffer Gottes, ein zerbrochnen geist") and Heb 13:15 ("danck sagen und preiß uff opfferen"). The Orate fratres has become a prayer to offer the sacrifices Scripture allows.
- The Preface is the common Preface, reduced to its frame. The dialogue is folded into one sentence spoken by the minister.

Und anstatt des Canon braucht man diß nachgend gebett: Allmechtiger Gott und vatter unsers heylands Jesu Christi, der du uns durch den selbigen allerliebsten sun, unsern herren, verheissen hast, was wir dich bitten in seinem namen, wöllest uns geweren, und aber durch deinen heyiligen geist bevolhen hast, zu bitten für alle oberkeit und alle menschen, So bitten wir dich von hertzen, durch den selbigen, deinen allerliebsten sun, unsern heylandt, du wöllest das hertz aller fürsten und herren und sunderlichen unser oberkeit, eins ersamen raths, erleuchten mit erkantnüß deines heyiligen Evangelii, uff das sy dich für iren rechten, einigen oberherren erkennen und uns, werck deiner hend und schefflin deiner weyd, nach deinem willen und gefallen regieren. Und allen menschen wöllestu verleyhen, zu erkantnüß deiner warheit zu kummen, Und diser deiner gemein, hye zu gegen in deinem namen versamlet seind, deinen heyiligen geist, den tröster, der dein gsatz in unsere hertzen schreibt, damit hyn genommen werd unsere angeborne blintheit und thumkeit, durch die wir unser sünd und übel nit allein nit mögen erkennen, sunder gefallen uns selbs wol darin. Darumb, o barmhertziger Gott, aller liebster, mach in uns durch deinen heyiligen geyst unsere sünd lebendig, uff das wir ir enpfinden und ire schnödigkeit und schand erkennen mögen, Und dahär, sint dem mal wir in uns selber nichts dann sünd, todt und hell befinden, zu deiner gnad und barmhertzigkeit woren hunger und durst überkummen, damit wir doch zum teil bedencken mögen, mit recht gschaffnem glauben annemen unnd mitt ewiger danckbarkeit preysen deine überschwenckliche, unermeßliche gnad und güte, die du uns in dem bewysen hast, das du deinen eingebornen sun hast wöllen mensch (das ist, uns armen sündern gleich) werden, für uns leiden und sterben und durch seinen todt uns von sünden, todt und hell erlösen. So gib uns nun, himlischer vatter, das wir dises todts, durch welchen wir von allem übel zum ewigen leben erlöst sind, Heylsame gedechtnüß nimmer auß hertzen lassen, damitt auch wir mit ym, unserm heylandt, den sünden absterben, zu leben der gerechtigkeit, in aller gedult und lieb gegen dem nechsten, mitt frölicher warnung, Harrende auff die selige hoffnung unnd zukunfft des selbigen, unsers lieben Herren unnd erlösers. Und verlyhe, das wir uff dißmal auch zu solcher heilsamer, nottiger gedechtnüß sein heyligs nachtmal halten mögen mit solchem hertzen, das wir nitt das zeytlich noch unsers söchen, dann den auffgang deyn reychs, beger der sünden loß unnd zu aller frumkeit gefürdert zu werden, Damit unser keiner schuldig werd an dem leib noch blut unsers heylandts Jhesu Christi, noch ym selb das gericht noch verdamnüß niese, Wo er sich hye bekant, ein glidt Christi zu syn, und glauben, daß er allein durch das opffer, so er einmal für uns am creütz dir, o vatter, uff geopffert hat sein leib und blut, und aber solcher glaub, der durch die lieb gegen meniglich tätig ist, nit hett, und tryb also so vil an ym das gespöt mit dem nachtmal unsers herren, sunder das wir aller hyemit im woren glauben sein todt, für uns gelitten, bedencken und uffnemen, Das wir gewißlich glauben, du wöllest unser gnediger, barmhertziger vatter sein, der du uns zu kindern und erben hast uffgenommen, gleichförmig zu werden deinem aller liebsten und erstgebornen sun Jhesu Christo, wiewol mir noch hie wie in sünden also auch in stäter trübsal leben, das wir auch uns alle durch einander als wore brüder und deine kinder halten, bereyt, dir zu gefallen, guts zethun, auch dein ruth und bewerung mit aller gedult allweg uffzunemen, und also gantz gutwillig erwarten, wann du uns vom leib der sünden erlöst. Disen glauben, hoffnung und lieb wöllestu, himlischer vatter, in uns stercken und befestigen, uff das wir in der warheit und rechten geist zu dir ruffen und bitten mögen, wie uns unser einiger leermeister gelert hat, und sprechen: Unser vatter in dem hymel, Dein namm sey heylig. [...] Dann dein ist das reich und die krafft und die herrligkeit in ewigkeit, Amen.

And instead of the Canon the following prayer is used: Almighty God, and Father of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who by the same thy most dear Son, our Lord, hast promised that whatsoever we ask thee in his name thou wilt grant us, and hast moreover by thy Holy Ghost commanded us to pray for all rulers and all men: we beseech thee from our hearts, through the same thy most dear Son, our Saviour, that thou wouldest enlighten the heart of all princes and lords, and specially of our rulers, the honourable Council, with the knowledge of thy holy Gospel, that they may acknowledge thee for their right and only Sovereign, and govern us, the work of thy hands and the sheep of thy pasture, according to thy will and pleasure. And vouchsafe unto all men to come to the knowledge of thy truth; and unto this thy congregation, here present and gathered in thy name, thy Holy Ghost, the Comforter, who writeth thy law in our hearts, that our inborn blindness and folly may be taken away, whereby we not only cannot know our sin and evil, but are well pleased with ourselves therein. Therefore, O merciful God, most dear, make our sin alive in us by thy Holy Ghost, that we may feel it and know its vileness and shame; and that thence, seeing we find in ourselves nothing but sin, death and hell, we may obtain a true hunger and thirst for thy grace and mercy, that we may yet in part consider, receive with rightly-formed faith, and praise with everlasting thankfulness thy overflowing, unmeasurable grace and goodness, which thou hast shown us in this, that thou wouldest have thine only-begotten Son become man (that is, like unto us poor sinners), suffer and die for us, and by his death redeem us from sin, death and hell. Grant us now therefore, heavenly Father, that we may never let the wholesome remembrance of this death, whereby we are redeemed from all evil unto everlasting life, go out of our hearts; that we also with him, our Saviour, may die unto sin and live unto righteousness, in all patience and love toward our neighbour, with joyful watching, awaiting the blessed hope and coming of the same our dear Lord and Redeemer. And grant that we may at this time also keep his holy Supper unto such wholesome and needful remembrance with such a heart that we seek not things temporal nor our own, but the rising of thy kingdom, and desire to be loosed from sin and furthered unto all godliness; that none of us become guilty of the body or the blood of our Saviour Jesus Christ, nor eat judgement and damnation to himself, if he here confess himself to be a member of Christ, and believe that alone by the sacrifice which he once offered up for us on the cross unto thee, O Father, his body and blood, and yet had not such faith as is active through love toward all, and so made a mockery with the Supper of our Lord; but that we all herewith in true faith may consider and receive his death suffered for us; that we may surely believe that thou wilt be our gracious and merciful Father, who hast taken us to be children and heirs, to be conformed to thy most dear and first-begotten Son Jesus Christ, although we still live here as in sins, so also in continual tribulation; that we also may all hold one another as true brethren and thy children, ready to do good to please thee, also to take up thy rod and trial away with all patience, and so to wait altogether willingly for the time when thou shalt deliver us from the body of sin. This faith, hope and love vouchsafe, heavenly Father, to strengthen and establish in us, that we may call and pray unto thee in truth and in right spirit, as our only Master hath taught us, and say: Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. [...] For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever, Amen.

Note.

- The rubric. "Und anstatt des Canon braucht man diß nachgend gebett". The heading says outright what the prayer is for.
- How it grows out of Schwarz. It begins with Schwarz's Te igitur substitute (§5.1) and continues with the second hand's addition there. It runs into the Our Father, as Schwarz's Post elevationem did, but without Verba between.
- Canon themes, recast:
 - intercession for rulers and "diser deiner gemein, hye zu gegen" (Te igitur, Memento ... omnium circumstantium);
 - the remembrance of the Son's death, resurrection and coming ("dises todts ... heylsame gedechtnüß", "harrende auff ... zukunfft"), which does the work of the anamnesis of Unde et memores;
 - a petition for a fruitful communion (Supplices ... ut quotquot ... sumpserimus), turned into a warning against eating judgement (1 Cor 11:27–29).

- The one sacrifice. The only sacrifice named is Christ's own, "so er einmal für uns am creütz dir, o vatter, uff geopffert hat sein leib und blut" (Heb 9:28; 10:14). Here the critique the Brandenburg-Nürnberg order would make in 1533 is already in the prayer itself (see the Appendix).
- No Verba. This prayer is not followed by the Verba but by the Our Father. The Verba come after an admonition (below), read as a lesson from 1 Cor 11. There is no elevation.

Nach disem gebet ermanet der diener das volck, zu betrachten das leyden des herren nach yngegebnen gnaden, und beschleüßts gwonlich also: So wöllen nun vernemen, wie der herr sein nachtmal gestalten hab, und was er zu thun befolhen hat. Unnd liset die wort des nachtmals auß der ersten Epistel Pauli am 11. capitel zu den Corinthern mit dapffern Worten wie hye nach: Der herr Jhesus, in der nacht, da er verraten ward, nam er das brot und, als er gedanckt hatt, brach ers unnd gab es seinen jüngerem und sprach: Nement hyn unnd essen. Diß ist mein leib, der für euch hyn gegeben wirt. Solchs thunt zu meiner gedechtnüß. Des selben gleichen auch den kelch, nach dem sye zu obent gessen hatten, und sprach: Diß ist der kelch, das neüw Testament in meinem blut, das für euch unnd für vil zu ablösung der sünd vergossen würt. Sollichs thut, so oft ir gedrinckt, in meiner gedechtnüß. Darnach spricht der diener zu dem volck: So kumment nun här, die ir wöllent mitt mir des herren nachtmal halten und entpfahen. Er wöl uch dazu geschickt machen und verleyhen, sein todt mit rechtem glauben zu bedencken und mit warer danckbarkeit verkünden. Und in dargebung des brots und des kelchs des herren spricht er also: Gedenckent, glaubent, verkündent, das Christus für uch gestorben ist.

After this prayer the minister exhorteth the people to consider the passion of the Lord, according to the grace given, and commonly concludeth it thus: Let us now hear how the Lord ordained his Supper, and what he hath commanded to be done. And he readeth the words of the Supper out of the first Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, the eleventh chapter, with earnest words, as here followeth: The Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was betrayed, took the bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take, and eat. This is my body, which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also the cup, when they had supped at evening, and said: This is the cup, the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the loosing of sin. This do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. Thereafter the minister saith to the people: Come ye now hither, that will with me keep and receive the Supper of the Lord. May he make you meet thereto, and grant you to consider his death with right faith and to show it forth with true thankfulness. And in the giving of the bread and of the cup of the Lord he saith thus: Remember, believe, and show forth that Christ died for you.

Note.

- The Pax. "So kumment nun här ..." takes the place of the Pax and the invitation to communion.
- "Gedenckent, glaubent, verkündent ..." replaces the custodiat. Form f keeps it.

5.3 Straßburger kirchen ampt, 1525 (form f)

The last form drops the Preface and Sanctus. After the Creed comes an explanatory rubric and a still longer bidding:

Noch endung des glaubens, uff das die unchristlichen opffermessen dem volck nitt ein anstoß bringen und auff das verstanden werde, wie Christus für uns ein mal geopfert sey zur vollkommen gnugthuung unser sünd, Spricht der pfarher zu zeyten also: Lieben brüder unnd schwester, Bitten Gott, den vatter, durch unsern herrn Jesum Christum, der in todt zur erlösung unser seelen geben ist, das er uns den heyligen geyst zusende, der uns lere auffopffern nit Christum, der sich selb ein mal für uns geopffert hatt unnd von niemane mag geopffert werden, sonder die gottgefelligen waren opffer, alls ein zerbrochnen geist, ein zerschlagen hertz, und das wir unser leyb zum opffer, das lebendig, heylig und im wolgefellig sey, begeben, Welchs unser vernünfftiger gotts dienst ist, in dem wir Gott eer, preyß und dancksagung opfferen. Der herr wölle eüch erhören und sein heyl erzeygen, Amen.

After the ending of the Creed, that the unchristian sacrificial Masses may not be a stumbling-block to the people, and that it may be understood how Christ was once offered for us for the full satisfaction of our sins, the pastor sometimes speaketh thus: Dear brethren and sisters, pray God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ, who was given into death for the redemption of our souls, that he send us the Holy Ghost, who may teach us to offer up, not Christ, who offered himself once for us and can be offered by no man, but the true sacrifices well-pleasing to God, as a broken spirit, a contrite heart; and that we yield our bodies a sacrifice, living, holy and well-pleasing unto him, which is our reasonable service, wherein we offer unto God honour, praise and thanksgiving. The Lord hear you and show you his salvation, Amen.

Note.

- The last trace of the Orate fratres. It is now a polemic against the Mass-sacrifice. Sehling refers to Bucer's argument from Hebrews in the same years.
- What follows. "Der herr sey mit eüch. Lassent uns bitten:" introduces the revised prayer of form e, "Almechtiger, barmhertziger Got und vater ...". It is shorter on the magistrates and longer on the unity of the members of Christ's body ("des glider wir alle sein ... durch die gelenck der liebe, mitt dem band des fridens ... ingeleibt").
- The Supper itself. The Our Father; an exhortation (a specimen from St. Peter the Younger, Reminiscere 1525, is printed); the Verba from 1 Cor 11; the invitation; the distribution with "Gedencken, glauben und verkünden ...".
- The end of the Canon at Strasbourg. Nothing of the Roman Canon is left but its intercession and its remembrance, both prayed in the congregation's own words.

6. Worms, Deutsche Messe, 1524

Form und Ordnung der Evangelischen deutschen Messen, wie sie zu Worms gehalten wird. Sehling 19, III, Nr. 1, pp. 124–129.

The preface says this Mass is kept "zu Straßburg und Worms". This is the Strasbourg German Mass of 1524 (§5) in use at Worms, with the Canon prayers that Schwarz's Strasbourg manuscript lacks.

It keeps more of the Canon than any other order in the corpus. The Canon runs in its proper order from Te igitur to Supplices te rogamus, each prayer translated and trimmed. There are three kinds of change:

- Sacrificial nouns replaced.
 - haec dona, haec munera, haec sancta sacrificia illibata becomes "diß dein brot und wein";
 - hostiam puram becomes "unser demütiges gebet";
 - hanc oblationem becomes "uns und ... unser gebet".
- Office-holders replaced. Pope and bishop give way to emperor, king and rulers.
- Saints dropped. The saints, the dead and the doxology Per ipsum are gone.

The Canon still stands between the Sanctus and the Our Father, where it belongs.

6.1 Preparation of the chalice (Orate fratres)

Bereytung des kelchs. Liben Brüder und schwestern, bitten got, das mein und ewer gebet angemem sei. Der herr sei mit euch. Antwort: Und mit deinem geyst.

The preparing of the cup. Dear brethren and sisters, pray God that my prayer and yours may be acceptable. The Lord be with you. Answer: And with thy spirit.

Note. This is Orate, fratres, ut meum ac vestrum sacrificium acceptabile fiat apud Deum Patrem omnipotentem, with sacrificium replaced by gebet. It follows the Creed directly. There is no offertory chant and there are no offertory prayers.

6.2 Preface and Sanctus

Prefatio. Erhebt euwer hertzen zu gott. Antwort: Wir erhebens zu gott. Last unns dancksagen gott unßerem herren. Antwort: Das ist billich unnd recht. Ja, Warlich ist es billich und recht, auch heylsam, das wir an allen orten zu aller zeit dir, heyliger vater, Almechtiger, ewiger got, dancksagen durch Christum unsern herren: Durch welchen alle Engel und die himmlischen kräft anbetten, Eren unnd lobenn dein herliche maiestat, mit den selbigen bittenn wir, wöllest zuloßenn unnd annemen unßer stimm, das wir dich auch loben unnd sprechen on endt: Heyliger, Heyliger, Heyliger herr gott Sabaoth, vol sind hymmel und erde deiner herlickeyt. Osianna in den höchsten. Bene ✠ deiet sei, der do kümpft in dem namen des herren. Glück und heyl in den höchsten.

The Preface. Lift up your hearts unto God. Answer: We lift them up unto God. Let us give thanks unto God our Lord. Answer: It is meet and right. Yea, verily it is meet and right, and also wholesome, that we should in all places and at all times give thanks unto thee, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord: through whom all the angels and the heavenly powers worship, honour and praise thy glorious majesty; with the same we beseech thee that thou wouldest admit and accept our voice, that we also may praise thee and say without end: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Sabaoth; full are heaven and earth of thy glory. Hosanna in the highest. Bless ✠ ed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Prosperity and salvation in the highest.

Note. This is the common Preface. Per quem maiestatem tuam laudant Angeli, adorant Dominationes, tremunt Potestates ... cum quibus et nostras voces ut admitti iubeas deprecamur is condensed. The second Hosanna is translated as "Glück und heyl" (prosperity and salvation). The sign of the cross at Benedictus is kept.

6.3 Te igitur

Darumb, aller göttigster vatter, bitten und begeren wir undertheniglich durch Jesum Christum, deinen sun, unsern heren, du wöllest diß dein brot und wein anschawen, gesegnen und bene ✠ deien. Auch unser gebet, so wir zu dem ersten für deine heylige Christliche kirchen thun, genediglichen annemen, dieselbigen befriden, behüten, vereynigen und regieren, durch den gantzen umbkreyß der welt mit keyser, künig und allen unseren öbersten, mit sampt allen deinen Christgläubigen.

Wherefore, most gracious Father, we humbly pray and desire through Jesus Christ thy Son our Lord, that thou wouldest look upon, bless and ble ✠ ss this thy bread and wine; and also graciously accept our prayer, which we make in the first place for thy holy Christian Church, and give peace to the same, keep, unite and govern it throughout the whole compass of the world, with the emperor, the king and all our rulers, together with all thy faithful Christians.

Note. Compare Te igitur, clementissime Pater, per Iesum Christum Filium tuum Dominum nostrum supplices rogamus ac petimus, uti accepta habeas et benedicas haec dona, haec munera, haec sancta sacrificia illibata, in primis quae tibi offerimus pro Ecclesia tua sancta catholica: quam pacificare, custodire, adunare et regere digneris toto orbe terrarum: una cum famulo tuo Papa nostro N. et Antistite nostro N. et omnibus orthodoxis ...

- Gifts and offering. The gifts become "diß dein brot und wein". "Quae tibi offerimus" becomes the prayer "so wir ... thun".
- Office-holders. Pope and bishop give way to emperor, king and "all our rulers".
- Verbs for the Church. The four verbs for the Church (pacificare, custodire, adunare, regere) are kept exactly.
- Blessing. Accepta habeas et benedicas is translated twice over ("gesegnen und bene ☩ deien"), as a bless-and-bless doublet.

6.4 Memento of the living, with the end of Communicantes

O herr, gedenck aller deiner diener und dienerin und aller umstender, deren glauben und andacht dir wyssen ist, für der selen und leibs heyl wir dich bitten, uff das wir alle durch hilff deines schirms bewaret werden durch Jesum Christum, unseren herren.

O Lord, remember all thy servants and handmaidens, and all that stand round about, whose faith and devotion is known unto thee, for whose health of soul and body we pray thee; that we all may be preserved by the help of thy protection; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Note. This is Memento, Domine, famulorum famularumque tuarum N. et N., et omnium circumstantium, quorum tibi fides cognita est et nota devotio.

- Offering removed. Pro quibus tibi offerimus: vel qui tibi offerunt hoc sacrificium laudis becomes "für ... wir dich bitten".
- Ending borrowed from Communicantes. The ending "uff das wir alle durch hilff deines schirms bewaret werden" is the last clause of Communicantes: ut in omnibus protectionis tuae muniamur auxilio.
- Saints dropped. The list of saints between these two points is gone.

6.5 Hanc igitur

Darumb bitten wir: O herr, wöllest dich unser und aller unser gebet genediglich annemen und alle unsere zeit noch deinem friden ordnen, von ewiger verdamniß erlösen und under die scharen deiner außerwelten zelen durch Christum, unseren herren, Amen.

Wherefore we pray: O Lord, vouchsafe graciously to take unto thee us and all our prayer, and to order all our days in thy peace, to deliver us from eternal damnation, and to number us among the flocks of thine elect; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Note. This is Hanc igitur oblationem servitutis nostrae ... quaesumus, Domine, ut placatus accipias: diesque nostros in tua pace disponas, atque ab aeterna damnatione nos eripi, et in electorum tuorum iubeas grege numerari. "Oblationem" becomes "uns und aller unser gebet".

The same words, "von der ewigen verdamnus erlösen", are what the 1533/1543 critique singles out as sacrificial (Appendix).

6.6 Quam oblationem

O aller gütigster vatter, barmhertziger, ewiger got, hilff und schaff, das dises brot und der wein uns werd und sei der warhafftig leib und das unschuldig blut deines aller liebsten suns, unsers herren Jesu Christi.

O most gracious Father, merciful, everlasting God, help and grant that this bread and the wine may become and be unto us the true body and the innocent blood of thy most dearly beloved Son, our Lord Jesus Christ.

Note. This is Quam oblationem tu, Deus, in omnibus, quaesumus, benedictam, adscriptam, ratam, rationabilem, acceptabilemque facere digneris: ut nobis Corpus et Sanguis fiat dilectissimi Filii tui Domini nostri Iesu Christi.

"Uns werd und sei" renders nobis ... fiat exactly. The five adjectives of offering are dropped.

6.7 Qui pridie, Simili modo, Haec quotiescumque

Welcher an dem tag vor dem, als er gelitten hat, Nam er das brot, saget danck, Segnet ☩ und brach das brot und gab es seinen jüngerem, sprechend: Nemen[t] hinn und essent, das ist mein leib, der für euch geben wirt. Auffhebung des Sacraments. Des gleichen nach dem abentmal. Nam er den kelch, dancket, Segnet ☩ und gab ien seinen jüngerem und sprach: Nement hinn, drincket alle daruß, das ist der kelch des newen und ewigen testaments in meinem blut, das für euch und für vil vergossen wirt, zu vergebung der sünden. Dises, so manches mal ir das thut, so thut das mir zu eyner gedechtnuß. Auffhebung des kelchs.

Who, on the day before he suffered, took the bread, gave thanks, bless ☩ ed and brake the bread, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and eat, this is my body, which is given for you. The elevation of the Sacrament. Likewise after the supper he took the cup, gave thanks, bless ☩ ed, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take, drink ye all thereof; this is the cup of the new and everlasting testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins. This, as oft as ye do it, do it in remembrance of me. The elevation of the cup.

Note. The Verba keep the Roman Canon's frame:

- "an dem tag vor dem, als er gelitten hat" renders Qui pridie quam pateretur;
- "des newen und ewigen testaments" renders novi et aeterni testamenti;
- "Dises, so manches mal ir das thut" renders Haec quotiescumque feceritis.

Two things are dropped: elevatis oculis in caelum and mysterium fidei. "Der für euch geben wirt", from Luke and Paul, is added to the bread word.

6.8 Unde et memores and Supra quae

Des halbenn, herr, wir deine diener betrachten des selbigen deines suns, unsers herren Jesu Christi leiden und sterben, auferstentnuß von der hellenn unnd auch herliche auffart zu den hymmelen, deiner götlichen maiestat, da mit anbieten unser demütiges gebet, daruff du mitt genedigem gütigen angesicht schawen und dir das gefallen lassest durch Jesum Christum, unsern herren.

Wherefore, O Lord, we thy servants, considering the passion and death of the same thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ, his resurrection from hell, and also his glorious ascension into the heavens, do therewith offer unto thy divine majesty our humble prayer; whereupon thou wouldest look with a gracious and kindly countenance, and let it be well-pleasing unto thee; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Note. This is Unde et memores, Domine, nos servi tui ... eiusdem Christi Filii tui Domini nostri tam beatae passionis, nec non et ab inferis resurrectionis, sed et in caelos gloriosae ascensionis: offerimus praeclarae maiestati tuae de tuis donis ac datis hostiam puram ..., joined to Supra quae propitio ac sereno vultu respicere digneris: et accepta habere

- What is offered. The Canon's offerimus is kept ("anbieten"), but what is offered is "unser demütiges gebet", not the hostia.
- Literal rendering. "Aufferstentnuß von der hellenn" renders ab inferis resurrectionis literally.
- Types dropped. The Old Testament types (Abel, Abraham, Melchizedek) are gone.

6.9 Supplices te rogamus

Almechtiger got, wir bitten dich demütiglichen, schaff, das unser gebet unnd begird uff den höchsten altar für das angesicht deiner götlichenn maiestat fürbracht werdt, da mitt wir alle so von diesem aller heyligsten abentmol des leibs, fleysch und bluts deines sunes entpfahen, mitt allem götlichen segen und gnaden erfüllet werdenn. Durch den selben Jesum Christum, unseren herren. Amen.

Almighty God, we humbly beseech thee, grant that our prayer and desire may be brought upon the highest altar before the face of thy divine majesty; that we all, who from this most holy supper receive the body, flesh and blood of thy Son, may be filled with all divine blessing and grace. Through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Note. This is Supplices te rogamus, omnipotens Deus: iube haec perferri per manus sancti Angeli tui in sublime altare tuum, in conspectu divinae maiestatis tuae: ut quotquot ex hac altaris participatione sacrosanctum Filii tui Corpus et Sanguinem sumpserimus, omni benedictione caelesti et gratia repleamur. Per eundem Christum ...

- What is carried up. "Haec" (the gifts) becomes "unser gebet unnd begird".
- The angel. The angel who carries them is dropped.
- The altar. Ex hac altaris participatione becomes "von diesem aller heyligsten abentmol".

6.10 Our Father, with the conclusion of the embolism

Last uns betten. Auß ermanung der seligen gebot und götlicher ordnung underwißen, dörffen wir sagen: Vatter unser, der du bist in den hymmeln. etc. Durch Jesum Christum, unsern herren, deinen sun, welcher mit dir und dem heyligen geyst, eyn warer got, lebt und herschet. Amen.

Let us pray. Out of the admonition of the blessed commandments, and by divine ordinance instructed, we are bold to say: Our Father, which art in the heavens, etc. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, thy Son, who with thee and the Holy Ghost, one true God, liveth and reigneth. Amen.

Note. The introduction to the Our Father is Praeceptis salutaribus moniti, et divina institutione formati, audemus dicere.

The doxology after it is the ending of the embolism, Per eundem Dominum nostrum Iesum Christum Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat in unitate Spiritus Sancti Deus. The body of the embolism (Libera nos, quaesumus, Domine, ab omnibus malis ..., with its saints) is dropped. Only its conclusion remains.

6.11 Fraction forbidden; the Peace as absolution

Der prister darff die hostia nit brechen, noch in kelch fellen. Der frid des herren sei alwegen mit euch. Das ist die rechte Evangelische absolucio, so den glaubigen der sünd ablas verkündet, die eynige und würdigste bereitung zu der entpfengnis des leibs und bluts Christi. Möcht wol vom prister, gegen dem volck gekört, gesprochen werdenn.

The priest may not break the host, nor let it fall into the cup. The peace of the Lord be alway with you. This is the right evangelical absolution, which proclaimeth unto the faithful the remission of sin, the only and most worthy preparation for the receiving of the body and blood of Christ. It may well be spoken by the priest turned toward the people.

Note. The fraction and the commixture (Haec commixtio ...) are forbidden. Sehling compares Luther's Formula missae. Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum is kept, and the rubric explains it as a public absolution.

6.12 Agnus Dei and communion

Agnus dei. Du lemlin gottes, das du hinnimpst die sund der welt, Erbarm dich uber uns. Und verleihe uns den friden. Hie teyle der prister den leib und blut denen, so es begeren. Er selbs niess es nit, er hab dan sonderlichen hunger dazu. Secht, aller liebsten, das ist warlichen der heylig leychnam unsers herren Jesu Christi, der für euch gelitten hat den biteren todt. Nemet hinn und essen ien, das er euch speiß, nere und bewar in das ewig leben. Der leib des herren Jesu Christi behüt dein seel in das ewig leben. Nimpt der prister den kelch und spricht: Last uns auch drincken den kelch des heyls und anrufen den namen des herren. Secht, das ist warlichen der thewer schatz des kostbarlichen bluts unsers herren Jesu Christi, da mit ir erkaufft seindt. Nement hinn und theylens mitt eynander zu abweschung ewrer sündt. Amen. Das blut unsers herren Jesu Christi behüt dein seel und mein seel in das ewig leben.

Agnus Dei. Thou little Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us. And grant us peace. Here let the priest distribute the body and blood to them that desire it. He himself shall not partake of it, unless he have a special hunger thereto. Behold, dearly beloved, this is verily the holy body of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath suffered for you the bitter death. Take and eat it, that it may feed, nourish and preserve you unto everlasting life. The body of the Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul unto everlasting life. The priest taketh the cup and saith: Let us also drink the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord. Behold, this is verily the dear treasure of the precious blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherewith ye are bought. Take and divide it among yourselves, unto the washing away of your sins. Amen. The blood of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul and my soul unto everlasting life.

Note.

- Communion formulas. "Der leib ... behüt dein seel in das ewig leben" is Corpus Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam tuam in vitam aeternam. The cup formula is Sanguis Domini nostri ... in the same way.
- The priest's cup verse. "Last uns auch drincken den kelch des heyls" is the priest's Calicem salutaris accipiam, et nomen Domini invocabo (Ps 116:13), put into the plural.
- "Secht". Each "Secht" (Ecce) introduces a showing of the element to the people.
- "Theylens mitt eynander". This is Luke 22:17.
- The priest's own communion. The priest communicates only "if he have a special hunger thereto".

6.13 Postcommunion, Benedicamus, blessing, Nunc dimittis

Der herr sei mitt euch. Antwort: Und mitt deinem geist. Last uns betten: O herr Jesu Christe, dein aller heyligster leib, den wir handt genossen, und dein unschuldiges blut, das wir haben gedruncken, wel uns nitt sein zu der verdamnuß, noch zu dem gericht, sonder nach deiner gütte zu eyennem schirm und artznei der selen und des leibs, eyn fürdernuß zu dem ewigen leben, der du lebest und regierst in ewigkeyt. Amen. Der herr sei mit euch. Antwort: Und mitt deinem geyst. Last uns gott gebenedeien. Danck, lob, ere unnd preiß sei gott durch Christum, unsern herren, Amen. Benedictio: Der segen des Almechtigen gottes, vatters, suns und heyligen geyst, sei mit euch und bleib alweg bei euch. Amen. Nunc dimittis: O her, laß im frid deinen diener noch deinem wort, Dann unsere augen haben gesehen dein heylandt, welchen du bereyt hast vor dem angesicht aller völcker, das liech[t] zu erleuchten die heyden und zu eyner glori deines völcks Israel, dir sei lob, ere und danck, gebenedeiet, heilige dreivaltickeyt, got vatter, sun und heyliger geyst. Amen.

The Lord be with you. Answer: And with thy spirit. Let us pray: O Lord Jesus Christ, may thy most holy body which we have partaken, and thy innocent blood which we have drunk, be unto us neither unto damnation nor unto judgement, but, according to thy goodness, unto a defence and medicine of the soul and of the body, a furtherance unto everlasting life; who livest and reignest for ever. Amen. The Lord be with you. Answer: And with thy spirit. Let us bless God. Thanks, praise, honour and glory be to God through Christ our Lord. Amen. The Blessing: The blessing of Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, be with you and remain alway with you. Amen. Nunc dimittis: O Lord, let thy servant depart in peace according to thy word; for our eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples, the light to lighten the Gentiles and to be the glory of thy people Israel. To thee be praise, honour and thanks, blessed, holy Trinity, God Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Amen.

Note.

- The postcommunion. It joins two of the priest's communion prayers. The first is Perceptio Corporis tui, Domine Iesu Christe ... non mihi proveniat in iudicium et condemnationem: sed pro tua pietate prosit mihi ad tutamentum mentis et corporis, et ad medelam percipiendam. The second is Corpus tuum, Domine, quod sumpsi, et Sanguis, quem potavi Both are made into a public collect.
- The dismissal. "Last uns gott gebenedeien" is Benedicamus Domino, and the response is an expanded Deo gratias.
- The blessing. It is Benedicat vos omnipotens Deus, Pater et Filius et Spiritus Sanctus.

7. Nürnberg, 1524–1525: the parish churches, Volprecht, and the Form und Ordnung

Three Nürnberg orders sit alongside Döber's Mass (§8):

Order	Sehling	eko.db doc	Pages
Gottesdienstordnung der Pfarrkirchen (St. Sebald, St. Lorenz), June 1524, Latin	11, I.5	249	46–47
Deutsche Messe des Priors Volprecht (Augustinians), 1524	11, I.3	247	41–42
Form und Ordnung einer Christlichen Messe , 1525	11, I.7	251	57

The parish order is Latin and follows the Formula missae closely. Volprecht's German Mass is the most conservative in the corpus after Worms. It keeps all three of the priest's prayers before communion and both ablution prayers, translated.

7.1 The parish churches, 1524 (Latin)

Symbolo finito, offertorio ac canone minore omissis incipit Celebrans: Dominus vobiscum. Sursum corda. Gratias agamus Domino Deo nostro. Vere dignum et iustum est, equum et salutare, nos tibi semper et ubique gratias agere, Domine sancte pater omnipotens, eterne Deus, per Christum Dominum nostrum. Hic finitur prefatio. Chorus: Sanctus, sanctus. Celebrans autem subiungit legendo: Qui pridie, quam pateretur, accepit panem in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas et elevatis oculis in celum ad te, Deum Patrem omnipotentem, tibi gratias agens benedixit, fregit, dedit discipulis suis dicens: Accipite et manducate ex hoc omnes! Hoc est enim corpus meum. Elevatur panis. Simili modo, postquam cenatum est, accipiens et hunc preclarum calicem in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas, item tibi gratias agens benedixit, dedit discipulis suis dicens: Accipite et bibite ex eo omnes! Hic est enim calix sanguinis mei, novi et eterni testamenti, misterium fidei, qui pro nobis et pro multis effundetur in remissionem peccatorum. Elevatur calix. Finito Osanna in excelsis celebrans incipit, Oremus preceptis salutaribus moniti etc.: Pater noster, qui est in etc. Posthac admonetur populus sacramentum sumpturus his verbis: [...] Subiungit deinde celebrans: Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum. Chorus respondet. Incipiatur dein populus comunicari, officiante panem prebente et ministro calicem. Sub comunione chorus canit: Agnus Dei et comunione. Tardius aut velocius iuxta hominum communicantium numerum administrato sacramento, siquid superest a celebrante et ministrantibus sumitur. Demum offitium cum oratione, quam complendam vocant, concludatur.

The Creed ended, the offertory and the lesser canon being omitted, the celebrant beginneth: The Lord be with you. Lift up your hearts. Let us give thanks unto the Lord our God. It is very meet and right, fitting and wholesome, that we should at all times and in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord. Here the Preface endeth. Choir: Holy, holy. But the celebrant addeth, reading: Who the day before he suffered took bread into his holy and venerable hands, and with eyes lifted up to heaven unto thee, God the almighty Father, giving thanks unto thee, blesseth, brake, gave to his disciples, saying: Take and eat ye all of this! For this is my body. The bread is elevated. In like manner, after they had supped, taking also this excellent cup into his holy and venerable hands, again giving thanks unto thee, he blessed, gave to his disciples, saying: Take and drink ye all of it! For this is the cup of my blood, of the new and everlasting testament, the mystery of faith, which shall be shed for us and for many unto the remission of sins. The cup is elevated. The Hosanna in excelsis being ended, the celebrant beginneth, Let us pray: Taught by wholesome precepts, etc.: Our Father, which art in, etc. After this the people who are to receive the sacrament are admonished in these words: [...] Then the celebrant addeth: The peace of the Lord be alway with you. The choir answereth. Then let the people begin to be communicated, the officiant offering the bread and the minister the cup. During the communion the choir singeth the Agnus Dei and the communion. The sacrament having been administered more slowly or more quickly according to the number of persons communicating, if anything remaineth it is consumed by the celebrant and the ministers. Lastly let the office be concluded with the prayer which they call the complenda.

Note.

- "offertorio ac canone minore omissis". Sehling explains that the offertory part of the Mass was often called the canon minor, the Canon proper being the canon maior. Both are left out.

- The Preface is cut short at per Christum Dominum nostrum, as in the Formula missae (§3.2). But here the Sanctus is sung after it.
- Qui pridie is the full Roman text, mysterium fidei included. It is read quietly ("legendo") during the Sanctus and Benedictus, with the two elevations. Sehling (note 17) reads the rubric so: in June 1524 the words were still said in Latin and quietly, as the Formula missae allowed ("vel silenter vel palam"). By March 1525 Nürnberg reported that they were sung aloud "in dem tone oder melodei der pefation", with the Sanctus after them.
 - The print reads "pro nobis", where the Roman text has pro vobis.
 - "paterctur" and "cafix" are corrected here.
- The exhortation is the Nürnberg one printed at §8.7.
- Pax Domini follows the exhortation, as in Döber.
- No embolism, no fraction.
- The postcommunion. The complenda is the proper postcommunion of the day. Luther had rejected the variable postcommunions (§3.5).

7.2 Volprecht, 1524

Hic sacerdos praeparat calicem. Statim eo praeparito [!] dicat: Der Herr sei mit euch! Antwort: Und mit deinem gaist! Briester: Hebt auf die herzen! Antwort: Wir hebens zum Herrn! Briester: Laßt uns danksagen Gott unsern Herren! Antwort: Das ist billig und recht. Prefatio: Warlich ist es billich und recht. Das ist ziemlich und hailwertig, das wir allwegen und allzeit danksagen, du heiliger Herr, allmechtiger Vater, ewiger Gott, durch Christum unsern Herrn, welcher in der nacht, da er verraten ward, hat er genummen das brot, dank gesagt Gott seinem himlischen Vater, das brochen und geben seinen jungern sprechende: Kommet und esset! Das ist mein leib, der fur euch dargeben wird. Das tut zu meiner gedechtnus! Deshalben gleichen nahm er auch den kelch, nachdem sie zu abent gessen hetten, saget dank Gott seinem himlischen Vater und gab in inen sprechende: Nemet hin! Trinket aus im alle! Das ist der kelch, das neu testament in meinem blut, welches fur euch und fur vil vergossen wird zu verzeihung der sund. Solches tut, so oft ihrs trinkt, zu meiner gedechtnus! Heilig, heilig, heilig ist Gott der Herr allmechtig. Himmel und erden sein voll deiner glori. Mach uns selig in der hohe! Gebenedeiet sei, der da kumpt in dem namen des Herrn! Mach uns selig in der hohe!

Here the priest prepareth the chalice. As soon as it is prepared let him say: The Lord be with you! Answer: And with thy spirit! Priest: Lift up the hearts! Answer: We lift them up unto the Lord! Priest: Let us give thanks unto God our Lord! Answer: That is meet and right. Preface: Verily it is meet and right. It is seemly and wholesome that we should always and at all times give thanks, thou holy Lord, almighty Father, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord; who in the night in which he was betrayed took the bread, gave thanks unto God his heavenly Father, brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Come and eat! This is my body, which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me! After the same manner he took also the cup, when they had eaten at evening, gave thanks unto God his heavenly Father, and gave it to them, saying: Take! Drink ye all of it! This is the cup, the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. This do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me! Holy, holy, holy is God the Lord almighty. Heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Save us in the highest! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Save us in the highest!

Note.

- The chalice. "Hic sacerdos praeparat calicem" is all that is left of the offertory, as in Döber (§8.1). It stands after the Creed, where the Roman offertory stood.

- The Preface and Verba. The Preface cut off at per Christum Dominum nostrum runs into the Verba on the pattern of the Formula missae. Sehling: "selbständige Übersetzung der von Luther geschaffenen Einleitung des Einsetzungsberichtes". The Verba are from 1 Cor 11 and the Gospels, not from Qui pridie.
- The Sanctus comes after the Verba. "Mach uns selig" translates Hosanna (Sehling: "Hilf doch!").

Briester: Last uns bitten durch heilsame gebet erinnert: Vater unser, der du bist in dem himmel, geheiligt werd dein nam! Zukum dein reich! Dein will der geschee als im himmel und auf erden! Unser täglich brod gieb uns heut und vergib uns unser schuld als wir vergeben unser schuldignern! Und nit einfur uns in versuchung, sonder erlös uns vom ubl! Amen. Der briester kert sich zum volk sprechende: Der frid des Herren sei allzeit mit euch! Antwort: Und mit deinem geist! O du lemlein Gottes, welches du weg nimbst die sund der welt, erbarm dich unser! O du lemlein Gottes, welches du weg nimbst die sund der welt, erbarm dich unser! O du lemlein Gottes, welches du weg nimbst die sund der welt, erbarm dich unser und gib uns den frid!

Priest: Let us pray, admonished by wholesome precepts: Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name! Thy kingdom come! Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth! Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors! And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil! Amen. The priest turneth to the people, saying: The peace of the Lord be alway with you! Answer: And with thy spirit! O thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us! O thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us! O thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us and give us peace!

Note.

- "Last uns bitten durch heilsame gebet erinnert". This is Oremus: Praeceptis salutaribus moniti, with praecepta ("precepts") read as "gebet".
- The Pax is kept with its Roman response. There is no embolism and no fraction.

O Herr Jesu Christe, du hast gesagt deinen jungern: Den frid gebe ich euch; meinen frid laß ich euch; nit gib ich ihn euch, wie die welt gibt, Hirumb, mein Herr, sich nit an unser sund, sonder den glauben deiner christlichen kirchen, die wir dan glauben und nit sehen, welche du nach deinem gottlichen willen, bewaren, vereinigen, regiren wollest mit deinem himlischen Vater und dem Heiligen Geist in ewigkeit. Amen. Alia oratio: O Herr Jesu Christe, du Sun des lebendigen Gottes, der du aus dem willen deines Vaters mit mitwirkung des Heiligen Geistes durch deinen tod die welt widerumb lebendig gemacht hast. Erlos uns durch die nemung deines leibs und bluts von allen unsern sunden und von allem ubl und gieb uns, das wir allzeit deinen göttlichen gepoten anhangen und nimmermer von dir geschiden werden! Der du mit Gott, deinem himlischen Vater und dem Heiligen Geist lebst und regirst in ewigkeit. Amen. Alia oratio: Die empfangung deines fleisch und bluts, Jesu Christe, das wir arme sündler nießen in vergebung unser sünd, gestatt uns nit zu einem urtel oder verdambnus, sonder sei unser beschirmung hie und dort in ewigkeit! Amen.

O Lord Jesu Christ, thou hast said unto thy disciples: Peace I give unto you; my peace I leave with you; not as the world giveth, give I it unto you. Wherefore, my Lord, look not upon our sins, but upon the faith of thy Christian Church, which we believe and see not; which vouchsafe thou, according to thy divine will, to keep, unite and govern, with thy heavenly Father and the Holy Ghost, for ever. Amen. Another prayer: O Lord Jesu Christ, thou Son of the living God, who by the will of thy Father, with the working together of the Holy Ghost, hast by thy death made the world alive again: deliver us by the taking of thy body and blood from all our sins and from all evil, and grant us that we may at all times cleave unto thy divine commandments, and never more be parted from thee! Who with God thy heavenly Father and the Holy Ghost livest and reignest for ever.

Amen. Another prayer: Let the receiving of thy flesh and blood, Jesu Christ, which we poor sinners partake unto the forgiveness of our sins, not be suffered to turn to us unto judgement or damnation, but be our defence here and there for ever! Amen.

Note. These are the priest's three prayers before communion, in German, twenty years before Brandenburg kept them in Latin (§12.5). Sehling thought only one of them was meant to be chosen ("Alia oratio").

1. Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti.

- John 14:27 is given in full, including "not as the world giveth" (not in the Roman prayer).
- "die wir dan glauben und nit sehen" is added.
- The Tridentine verbs are pacificare et coadunare. Volprecht's "bewaren, vereinigen, regiren" are instead the custodire, adunare et regere of Te igitur, as in Brandenburg's Latin (§12.5).

2. Fili Dei vivi.

- Per hoc sacrosanctum Corpus et Sanguinem tuum becomes "durch die nemung deines leibs und bluts", "by the taking". The deliverance comes through receiving, not through the consecrated elements.
- Inhaerere is kept ("anhangen").
- The prayer is plural.

3. Perceptio Corporis tui. The body and blood are named ("fleisch und bluts").

- Praesumo disappears; "in vergebung unser sünd" is added.
- Tutamentum mentis et corporis, et ad medelam percipiendam is shortened to "beschirmung hie und dort".

Hic sumit corpus Christi dicendo: Der leib unsers Herrn Jesus Christi, der für uns dargeben ist, bewar mein sel in das ewig leben! Amen. Last uns auch trinken den kelch des heils und anrufen den namen des Herrn! Hic sumit sanguinem dicendo: Das blut unsers Herrn Jesu Christi, das fur uns vergossen ist, bewar mein sel in das ewig leben! Amen. Statim dicat: Das wir haben empfangen mit dem mund, gib, allmechtiger Gott, das wirs auch empfahren mit reinem herzen, das aus einer zeitlichen gab uns werd ein ewigs erznei! Alia oratio: Der leib und das blut des Herrn, das wir empfangen haben, hang allzeit inwendig an unsern herzen und gib, allmechtiger Gott, das in uns nit bleib ein makel der sünd, der du uns hast gespeist mit deinem heiligen sacramenten!

Here he receiveth the body of Christ, saying: The body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is given for us, preserve my soul unto everlasting life! Amen. Let us also drink the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord! Here he receiveth the blood, saying: The blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is shed for us, preserve my soul unto everlasting life! Amen. Straightway let him say: What we have received with the mouth, grant, almighty God, that we may receive it also with a pure heart, that of a temporal gift it may become unto us an everlasting medicine! Another prayer: May the body and the blood of the Lord, which we have received, cleave always inwardly unto our hearts; and grant, almighty God, that there remain not in us a stain of sin, who hast fed us with thy holy sacraments!

Note.

• The priest's communion.

- Custodiat. "Bewar mein sel in das ewig leben" is Corpus Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam meam in vitam aeternam. "der für uns dargeben ist" is added.
- Calicem salutaris. "Last uns auch trinken den kelch des heils" is Calicem salutaris accipiam (Ps 116:13), plural, as in Kantz (§2.6).

• The ablution prayers.

- Quod ore sumpsimus is complete: Quod ore sumpsimus, Domine, pura mente capiamus: et de munere temporali fiat nobis remedium sempiternum.
- Corpus tuum is made plural: Corpus tuum, Domine, quod sumpsi, et Sanguis, quem potavi, adhaereat visceribus meis: et praesta, ut in me non remaneat scelerum macula, quem pura et sancta refecerunt sacramenta. "Visceribus" becomes "inwendig an unsern Herzen".
- Sehling again thinks only one of the two was meant.
- No communion of the people is provided for in the text. The exhortation printed after the Mass (the Nürnberg exhortation, §8.7) is for those who "zu Gottes disch wollten gein, vor oder unter der mess".

Communio: Wir loben Gott der himmel und bekennen vor allermeniglich lebendigen, das er mit uns gehandelt hat nach seiner barmherzigkeit. Briester: Der Herr sei mit euch! Antwort: Und mit deinem geist! Briester: Last uns bitten! Die empfahung deines sacraments, o Herr, unser Gott, welchen wir haben genumen, kum uns zu hail laibs und auch der selen und zu bekenntnis der ewigen heiligen Trivaltigkeit und unzertailten Einigkeit durch unsern Herrn Jesum Christum, deinen Sohn, der mit dir lebt und herrscht in einigkeit des Heiligen Geists immer und ewiglich! Amen. Briester: Der Herr sei mit euch! Antwort: Und mit deinem geist! Darnach spricht der priester den segnen also: Der Herr gesegne euch und behüt euch! Der Herr erleucht sein angesicht über euch und sei euch gnedig! Der Herr heb sein angesicht auf euch und geb euch den frid! Antwort: Amen. Briester: Last uns den Herrn lob und dank sagen! Antwort: Gott sei gedankt. Finis misse.

Communion: We praise the God of heaven, and confess before all that live, that he hath dealt with us according to his mercy. Priest: The Lord be with you! Answer: And with thy spirit! Priest: Let us pray! May the receiving of thy sacrament, O Lord our God, which we have taken, come unto us for the health of body and also of soul, and for the confession of the eternal holy Trinity and undivided Unity; through our Lord Jesus Christ, thy Son, who with thee liveth and reigneth in the unity of the Holy Ghost, ever and everlastingly! Amen. Priest: The Lord be with you! Answer: And with thy spirit! Thereafter the priest speaketh the blessing thus: The Lord bless you and keep you! The Lord make his face shine upon you and be gracious unto you! The Lord lift up his countenance upon you and give you peace! Answer: Amen. Priest: Let us give praise and thanks unto the Lord! Answer: Thanks be to God. The end of the Mass.

Note.

- The Mass is that of Trinity Sunday, from the Bamberg missal. The communion chant is Benedicimus Deum caeli, et coram omnibus viventibus confitebimur ei: quia fecit nobiscum misericordiam suam (Tob 12:6).
- The postcommunion is the Roman postcommunion of Trinity Sunday: Proficiat nobis ad salutem corporis et animae, Domine Deus noster, huius sacramenti susceptio: et sempiternae sanctae Trinitatis, eiusdemque individuae Unitatis confessio. Lippe uses it too (§10).
- The ending. "Last uns den Herrn lob und dank sagen / Gott sei gedankt" is the Benedicamus Domino / Deo gratias. The Aaronic blessing (Luther's suggestion, §3.5) stands before it.

7.3 Form und Ordnung einer Christlichen Messe, 1525

Nach dem hebt der priester die prefation an, dominicaliter: Dominus vobiscum! Chorus: Et cum spiritu tuo! Sursum corda etc. bis daher, per Christum Dominum nostrum. Darnach hebt er das Qui pridie an und, alsbald der priester elevirt hat, hebt der chor das Sanctus an. Nach demselben singt der priester das Pater noster, mit dem anfang: Oremus praeceptis salutaribus etc. Nach dem Pater noster list der priester oder ministrant die exhortation gegen dem volk: Mein allerliebsten in Gott etc. So dasselbig ein end hat, kert sich der priester gegen dem volk und singt: Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum! Chorus: Et cum spiritu tuo! Darnach hebt der chor das Agnus Dei an, wie dann hernach volgt. Diweil communicirt der priester das volk und spricht mit ersten: Der leib unsers Herrn Jesu Christi bewar dein seel zum ewigen leben! Darnach: Das blut unsers Herrn Jesu Christi beware dein seel zum ewigen leben! [...] Nach dem Agnus Dei von stund an hebt der chor ein psalm an für das commun oder sunst ein lied. Nach demselbigen beschleußt der priester die meß mit einer collecten. Darnach mit dem Benedicamus Domino, dominicaliter.

After that the priest beginneth the Preface, in the Sunday tone: The Lord be with you! Choir: And with thy spirit! Lift up your hearts, etc., as far as "through Christ our Lord". Thereafter he beginneth the Qui pridie, and as soon as the priest hath elevated, the choir beginneth the Sanctus. After the same the priest singeth the Pater noster, with the beginning: Let us pray: Taught by wholesome precepts, etc. After the Pater noster the priest or minister readeth the exhortation toward the people: My dearly beloved in God, etc. When that is ended, the priest turneth toward the people and singeth: The peace of the Lord be alway with you! Choir: And with thy spirit! Thereafter the choir beginneth the Agnus Dei, as followeth hereafter. Meanwhile the priest communicateth the people and saith first: The body of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul unto everlasting life! Then: The blood of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul unto everlasting life! [...] Immediately after the Agnus Dei the choir beginneth a psalm for the communion, or else a hymn. After the same the priest concludeth the Mass with a collect. Thereafter with the Benedicamus Domino, in the Sunday tone.

Note.

- The shape. This is the Mass of the parish churches (§7.1) as sung by 1525: shortened Preface, Qui pridie (Sehling: presumably sung in Latin), elevation, Sanctus, Praeceptis salutaribus and the Our Father, the exhortation, Pax Domini.
- What is new is the German custodiat at the distribution, in the second person.
- What follows in the print. The German Sanctus and Agnus Dei printed after the rubrics ("Lamb Gottes, das du wek nimbst die sünd der welt ...") are omitted here.

8. Nürnberg, Döber's Deutsche Messe, 1525

Andreas Döber's German Mass for the Neues Spital, Nürnberg. Sehling 11, I.6, pp. 52–55.

Döber follows the order Luther proposed in the Formula missae (1523), as Nürnberg's parish churches had done in 1524. There is no offertory. A truncated Preface runs straight into the Verba, and the Sanctus follows the Verba. Of the Canon, only the Verba remain in place. The Roman prayers after the Our Father survive as three things: a remnant of the embolism, a German Agnus Dei, and the Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi, which is turned into a prayer for the people to repeat.

8.1 Preparation of the gifts (after the Gradual)

Nach der epistel volgt das gradual. Nach demselben bereit der priester den kelch mit sambt dem brot. [...] Nach dem alleluia fragt der priester den ministranten, ob sich jemand hab angesagt, das heilig sacrament zu empfangen. Darauf bereit er zu und, so dasselbig geschehen ist, wendt er sich zum volk oder legts buch aufs pult und lists evangelion Johan 6.

After the Epistle followeth the Gradual. After the same the priest prepareth the cup together with the bread. [...] After the Alleluia the priest asketh the server whether any have announced himself to receive the holy sacrament.

Thereupon he maketh ready; and when that is done, he turneth himself to the people, or layeth the book upon the desk, and readeth the Gospel, John 6.

Note. This is all that is left of the offertory: a silent preparation, moved in front of the Gospel, with no prayers. The Nicene or Apostles' Creed follows the Gospel. The Mass then goes on at once to the Preface.

8.2 Preface

Nach dem hebt der priester die prefation an: Der Herr sei mit euch! Das volk: Und mit deinem geist! Der priester: Erhebet euer herzen zu Got! Das volk: Wir haben unser herzen erhaben. Der priester: Last uns danksagen Got, unserm Herrn! Das volk: Es ist billich und recht. Der priester: Ja warlich, es ist billich und recht, auch heilsam, das wir an allen orten dir, Herr, heiliger Vater, almechtiger, ewiger Gott, dank sagen durch Christum unsern Herren. Amen.

After that the priest beginneth the Preface: The Lord be with you! The people: And with thy spirit! The priest: Lift up your hearts unto God! The people: We have lifted up our hearts. The priest: Let us give thanks unto God our Lord! The people: It is meet and right. The priest: Yea verily, it is meet and right, and also wholesome, that we should in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Note. This is Luther's shortened Preface from the Formula missae. It was meant to end at per Christum Dominum nostrum and to run straight into the relative clause Qui pridie. Sehling notes that Döber's "Amen" breaks that join, and shows that Döber "did not understand its sense".

8.3 The Verba

Darnach spricht der priester und nimbt brod in die hend: Welcher in der nacht, do er verraten ward, nam er das brot in sein heilige hend, saget dank seinem himlischen Vater, segnets, brachs und gabs seinen jüngern und sprach zu ihnen: Nembt hin und esset! Das ist mein leib, der für euch dargeben würd. Das tut zu meiner gedechtnus! Und zeigts dem volk. Nun nimbt er den kelck in die hand: Desgleichen auch nam er den kelch in sein heilige händ, saget dank seinem himlischen Vater, segnets und gabs seinen jüngern und sprach: Nembt hin und drinkt aus disem alle! Das ist der kelch des neuen testaments mit meinem plut, das für euch und für vil vergossen wirt zur verzeihung der sünden. Also oft ir das tut, so tuts zu meiner gedechtnus! Und zeigts dem volk.

Thereafter the priest saith, and taketh the bread into his hands: Who, in the night in which he was betrayed, took the bread into his holy hands, gave thanks unto his heavenly Father, blessed it, brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said unto them: Take and eat! This is my body, which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me! And he showeth it to the people. Now he taketh the cup into his hand: Likewise also he took the cup into his holy hands, gave thanks unto his heavenly Father, blessed it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take and drink ye all of this! This is the cup of the new testament with my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As oft as ye do this, do it in remembrance of me! And he showeth it to the people.

Note. The frame is the Canon's:

- "in sein heilige hend" renders in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas;
- "saget dank seinem himlischen Vater" renders ad te Deum Patrem suum omnipotentem, tibi gratias agens;
- "Also oft ir das tut" renders Haec quotiescumque feceritis.

The opening, though, is Paul's "in der nacht, do er verraten ward" (1 Cor 11:23), not Qui pridie. In the 1524 order of the parish churches (Sehling 11, I.5, p. 47) the Verba were still said in Latin, Qui pridie ... Hoc est enim corpus meum ... mysterium fidei.

8.4 Sanctus

Nach diesem spricht er das Sanctus, wie hernach volgt. Das sanctus: Heiliger, heiliger, heiliger Herr Got Sabaoth. Vol sind die himel und ertrich deiner glori und herrlicheit. Ach, mach uns selig in der höhe! Gebenedeiet sei der da kumbt im namen des Herrn! Selig mach uns in den höhen!

After this he saith the Sanctus, as followeth. The Sanctus: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Sabaoth. Full are the heavens and the earth of thy glory and majesty. Ah, save us in the height! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Save us in the heights!

Note. Hosanna is translated by its meaning, "help/save us" ("mach uns selig"), as in Volprecht's Mass of 1524.

8.5 Our Father and the remnant of the embolism

Darnach soll der priester sprechen, wie Matthei am 6. stehet: Als die jüngern zu dem Herrn Jesu kamen, baten in, er solt sie beten leren, do sprach er: Wenn ihr beten wölt, so solt ir nit vil plappern, wie die heuchler tun; denn sie meinen, wenn sie vil wort machen, so werden sie erhört. Sonder sprecht also wie denn hernach volgt: Vater unser, der du bist in den himeln, geheiligt werd dein name! Zukum uns dein reich! Dein wil geschehe als im himel und auf erden! Unser teglich brot gib uns heut und vergibe uns unsere schuld, als und wir vergeben unsern schuldigern! Und nit einfür uns in versuchung, sonder erlös uns von übel! Amen. Und spricht weiter: O Herr, erlös uns von allen sichtigen und unsichtigen feinden, von dem Teufel, von der welt, von unserm eigen fleisch durch Christum Jesum, unsern Herren. Amen.

Thereafter the priest shall say, as it standeth in Matthew the sixth: When the disciples came unto the Lord Jesus and besought him that he should teach them to pray, he said: When ye will pray, ye shall not babble much, as the hypocrites do; for they think that when they make many words they shall be heard. But say thus, as hereafter followeth: Our Father, which art in the heavens, hallowed be thy name! Thy kingdom come unto us! Thy will be done as in heaven and in earth! Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors! And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil! Amen. And he saith further: O Lord, deliver us from all visible and invisible enemies, from the devil, from the world, from our own flesh; through Christ Jesus our Lord. Amen.

Note.

- The introduction to the Our Father. Praeceptis salutaribus moniti is replaced by Christ's own warrant (Mt 6:7; Lk 11:1). Sehling calls it an "Umgestaltung der Einleitung".
- The embolism. The prayer after the Our Father is what Sehling calls the "Rest des Embolismus". It keeps the Libera nos ... Domine form and the Per ... Christum ending. The "evils past, present and to come", the saints and the petition for peace give way to the Lutheran triad of devil, world and flesh.

8.6 Salutation and Agnus Dei

Darnach wendt sich der priester zum volk und spricht: Der Herr sei mit euch! Das volk: Und mit deinem geist! Nach dem spricht der priester: Du lamb Gottes, das du weknimbst die sünd der welt, erbarm dich unser! Du lamb Gottes, das du weknimbst die sünd der welt, gib uns den frid!

Thereafter the priest turneth to the people and saith: The Lord be with you! The people: And with thy spirit! After that the priest saith: O thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, have mercy upon us! O thou Lamb of God, that takest away the sin of the world, give us peace!

Note. Dominus vobiscum stands where Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum stood.

8.7 The exhortation (Osiander)

Nach disem wend sich der priester zum volk und spricht die exhortation, wie dann hernach volgt. Mein allerliebsten in Got! Dieweil wir jetzo das abentessen unsers Herren Jesu Christi wöllen bedenken und halten, darin uns sein flaisch und plut zur speis und zum trank, nicht des leibs, sondern der selen gegeben wirt, sölle wir pillich mit großem vleiß ain jedlicher sich selbs prüfen, wie Paulus sagt, und alsdann von disem prot essen und von disem kelch trinken. Dann es soll nicht dann nur ain hungerige seel, die ir sünd erkennt, Gottes zorn und den tod fürcht und nach der gerechtigkeit hungerig und durstig ist, dis heilig sacrament empfahe. So wir aber uns selbs prüfen, finden wir nichts in uns dann sünd und tod, kunden auch uns selbs in keinen weg daraus helfen. Darumb hat unser lieber Herr Jesus Christus sich über uns erparmet, ist umb unsertwillen mensch worden, das er für uns das gesetz erfüllet und lide, was wir mit unsern sünden verschuldet hetten, und daß wir das je festiglich glauben und uns frölich darauf verlassen möchten, nam er nach dem abentessen das prot, saget dank, prachs und sprach: Nempt hin und esset! Das ist mein leib, der für euch dar gegeben wirt, als wölt er sagen: Daß ich mensch bin worden und alles, was ich tu und leide, das ist alles euer aigen, für euch und euch zu gut geschehen. Des zu gewissen warzaichen gib ich euch mein leib zur speis. Desgleichen auch den kelch und sprach: Nempt hin, und trinkt aus disem alle! Das ist der kelch des neuen testaments mit meinem plut, das für euch und für vil vergossen wirt, zur verzeihung der sünd. So oft ir das tut, solt ir mein darbei gedenken! Als wölt er sprechen: Dieweil ich mich euer angenommen, und euer sünd auf mich geladen hab, will ich mich selbs für die sünde in den tod opfern, mein plut vergießen, gnad und vergebung der sünd erwerben und also ain neu testament aufrichten, darin der sünd ewig nicht soll gedacht werden. Des zum gewissen warzeichen gib ich euch mein plut zu trinken. Wer nun also von disem prot isset, und von disem kelch trinket, das ist: Wer diesen worten, die er horet, und disen zaichen, die er empfahet, festiglich glaubet, der bleibt in Christo und Christus in im und lebet also ewiglich. Darbei sölle wir an seines tods gedenken und ime darumb danksagen, ain jedlicher sein creuz auf sich nemen und ime nachfolgen und zuvor ainer den andern lieb haben, wie er auch uns geliebt hat, dann wir vil sein ain prot und ain leib, die wir alle aines prots taihaftig sein und aus ainem kelch trinken. Das verleihe uns Got allen, das wirs wirdiglich empfahe. Amen.

After this the priest turneth to the people and saith the exhortation, as hereafter followeth. My dearly beloved in God! Forasmuch as we will now consider and keep the supper of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherein his flesh and blood are given us for meat and for drink, not of the body but of the soul, we ought rightly with great diligence every one to examine himself, as Paul saith, and so to eat of this bread and drink of this cup. For none but a hungry soul, which knoweth its sin, feareth God's wrath and death, and is hungry and thirsty after righteousness, ought to receive this holy sacrament. But when we examine ourselves, we find nothing in us but sin and death, and could in no wise help ourselves out thereof. Therefore hath our dear Lord Jesus Christ had mercy upon us, and for our sakes is become man, that he might fulfil the law for us and suffer that which we had deserved with our sins. And that we might steadfastly believe this and joyfully rely thereupon, he took after the supper the bread, gave thanks, brake it, and said: Take and eat! This is my body, which is given for you; as if he would say: That I am become man, and all that I do and suffer, that is all your own, done for you and for your good. For a sure token thereof I give you my body for meat. Likewise also the cup, and said: Take and drink ye all of this! This is the cup of the new testament with my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As oft as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby! As if he would say: Forasmuch as I have taken your cause upon me and laden your sins upon myself, I will offer myself unto death for sin, shed my blood, obtain grace and forgiveness of sins, and so set up a new testament, wherein sin shall be remembered no more for ever. For a sure token thereof I give you my blood to drink. Whosoever now eateth thus of this bread and drinketh of this cup, that is, whosoever firmly believeth these words which he heareth and these signs which he receiveth, he dwelleth in Christ and Christ in him, and so liveth for ever. Hereby shall we remember his death and give him thanks therefor, every one take up his cross and follow him, and above all love one another, as he also hath loved us; for we being many are one bread and one body, who are all partakers of one bread and drink of one cup. God grant us all this, that we may receive it worthily. Amen.

Note. Sehling does not reprint the text here. He points to the order of the parish churches of 1524 (Sehling 11, I.5, p. 48), whose base text is Osiander's exhortation from the provosts' Grundt und ursach (1524).

The text above is that base text with Döber's readings (Sehling's siglum D) taken from his apparatus:

- Mein allerliebsten;
- kunden auch uns selbs in keinen weg;
- das er für uns;
- zur verzeihung;
- ewig nicht soll gedacht;
- zum gewissen warzeichen;
- in Christo without dem Herren;
- lieb haben;
- the closing sentence Das verleihe uns Got allen ..., which p. 54 confirms.

One point is uncertain. For "Des zu [ainem] gewissen warzaichen" (the bread) the apparatus is garbled; it seems to say D lacks ainem.

In Nürnberg this exhortation stood where the Latin Verba had been read silently. Once the Verba were sung aloud in German, Sehling notes, the exhortation "doubled" them.

8.8 Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi, said by the people

Nach diser exhortation wendt sich der priester zum altar und spricht zum volk: Sprech mir nach: O Herr Jesu Christe, du ewigs wort des Vaters, du Heiland der welt, du warer, lebendiger Got und mensch, erlöse uns durch deinen heiligen fronleichnam und rosenfarbes blut von allen sünden! Hilf, das wir erfüllen deine gebot zu allen zeiten und von dir nicht gescheiden werden in ewigkeit! Amen.

After this exhortation the priest turneth to the altar and saith to the people: Say after me: O Lord Jesus Christ, thou eternal Word of the Father, thou Saviour of the world, thou true, living God and man, deliver us by thy holy body and rose-red blood from all sins! Help that we may fulfil thy commandments at all times, and be not separated from thee for ever! Amen.

Note. This is Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi, qui ex voluntate Patris, cooperante Spiritu Sancto, per mortem tuam mundum vivificasti: libera me per hoc sacrosanctum Corpus et Sanguinem tuum ab omnibus iniquitatibus meis, et universis malis: et fac me tuis semper inhaerere mandatis, et a te numquam separari permittas. Sehling calls it "leicht umgestaltet", as in Volprecht's Mass.

- Opening. The Trinitarian opening is replaced by titles of Christ.

- Number and speaker. Me becomes uns.
- Words for body and blood. Fronleichnam is the old word for the Lord's body (as in Fronleichnamsfest, Corpus Christi). Rosenfarbenes blut is a late-medieval devotional epithet.
- Who says it. The priest's private preparation before his communion is now said by the people after him.

8.9 Communion

Nun communicirt er das volk von ersten, ob er will, und so er in den leib Christi darreicht, spricht er zu in: Der leib Christi bewar dein seel zum ewigen leben! Desgleichen spricht er auch, wenn ers nimbt. Und darnach nimbt er den kelch und spricht: Das blut unsers lieben Herren Jesu Christi, das für mich und für euch vergossen ist in vergebung der sünde, bewar mein seel zum ewigen leben! Und wenn er sumirt hat, bind er den kelch ein.

Now he communicateth the people first, if he will; and when he reacheth them the body of Christ, he saith unto them: The body of Christ preserve thy soul unto everlasting life! The same he saith also when he taketh it himself. And thereafter he taketh the cup and saith: The blood of our dear Lord Jesus Christ, which is shed for me and for you unto the forgiveness of sins, preserve my soul unto everlasting life! And when he hath consumed, he bindeth up the cup.

Note. These are Corpus Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam tuam in vitam aeternam and the priest's Sanguis Domini nostri Iesu Christi custodiat animam meam ..., with "das für mich und für euch vergossen ist in vergebung der sünde" added.

"Bind er den kelch ein" means he wraps the chalice in its bag.

8.10 Nunc dimittis, postcommunion, dismissal and blessing

Nach demselben spricht er zum volk: Sprech mir nach: O Herr, nun laß im frid deinen diener nach deinem wort; dann unsere augen haben gesehen deinen heiland, welchen du bereitet hast vor dem angesicht aller völker, ein licht, zu erleuchten die heiden und zu einer glori deines volks Israhel. Dir sei lob, ehr und dank, o du heilige, gebenedeite, herliche Dreifeldigkeit, Got Vater, Got Sun und Heiliger Geist! Amen. Nach disem kert sich der priester zu dem volk und spricht also: Der Herr sei mit euch! Das volk: Und mit deinem geist! Darnach die collecten spricht zum volk: Last uns bitten: O Herr, allmechtiger Got, verleihe uns in unser gemüt und herzen, das wir durch den zeitlichen tod deines Suns, welche dise wirdige geheimnus bedeuten, das wir getrauen, das du uns geben hast das ewig leben durch den Christum, unsern Herrn. Amen. Zu dem letzten kert er sich umb zum volk und spricht: Der Herr sei mit euch! Das volk: Und mit deinem geist! Der priester: Saget dank dem Herren! Das volk: Got sei lob und dank! Der priester: Neigt eur herz zu Got, so will ich euch den seggen geben! Und spricht: Der Herr gebenedei dich und behüt dich und erleucht sein angesicht über dich und erbarm sich dein und wend sein angesicht zu dir und geb dir den ewigen frid im namen des Vaters und Suns und des Heiligen Geists! Amen. Gehet hin im frid des Herren! Nun gehet der priester hinweg vom altar. So habt ir das end diser evangelische meß. Got wöl uns verleihen, was uns nütz sei zu seel und leib! Amen.

After the same he saith to the people: Say after me: O Lord, now let thy servant depart in peace according to thy word; for our eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples, a light to lighten the Gentiles and to be the glory of thy people Israel. To thee be praise, honour and thanks, O thou holy, blessed, glorious Trinity, God the Father, God the Son and Holy Ghost! Amen. After this the priest turneth to the people and saith thus: The Lord be with you! The people: And with thy spirit! Thereafter he saith the collect to the people: Let us pray: O Lord, almighty God, grant unto us in our mind and heart that, through the temporal death of thy Son, which these worthy mysteries signify, we may trust that thou hast given us everlasting life; through the Christ our Lord. Amen. Last of all he turneth about to the people and saith: The Lord be with you! The people: And with thy spirit! The priest: Give thanks unto the Lord! The people: God be praise and thanks! The priest: Incline your hearts unto God, and I will give you the blessing! And he saith: The Lord bless thee and keep thee, and lighten his countenance upon thee, and have mercy upon thee, and turn his countenance unto thee, and give thee everlasting peace; in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost! Amen. Go ye in the peace of the Lord! Now the priest goeth away from the altar. So have ye the end of this evangelical Mass. God grant us that which is profitable for soul and body! Amen.

Note.

- The collect. It follows the Roman postcommunion of Wednesday in Holy Week: Largire sensibus nostris, omnipotens Deus: ut per temporalem Filii tui mortem, quam mysteria veneranda testantur, vitam te nobis dedisse perpetuam confidamus. Sehling calls it "anscheinend neu geschaffen"; the Roman source is identified here for the first time. Note that testantur ("bear witness to") is rendered bedeuten.
- The dismissal. "Saget dank dem Herren ... Got sei lob und dank" answers to Benedicamus Domino / Deo gratias. Sehling reads "Gehet hin im frid des Herren" as a paraphrase of Ite, missa est.

8.11 Optional intercession in the place of Te igitur

Es volgt ein gemein gebet, an einem feiertag zu sprechen, wenn vil volks da ist, nach der prefation oder für das Sanctus, wie man wil. Almechtiger, ewiger Got und barmherziger Vater. Dieweil dein Sun, unser Herr Jesus Christus, zugesagt hat, was wir bitten in seinem namen, das werdestu uns gewehren, und zu dem, dieweil dein Geist auch bevohlen hat, das wir für unser oberigkeit bitten sollen, bitten wir von herzen, du wöllest die gemüter des kaisers, der fürsten und herrn, vorab unser herren und öbern ains ersamen rats zu erkantnus deiner güte und des evangelions bewegen, auch das du deinem Sun durch den Hailigen Gaist undertenig machest alle völker, auf das si selbs willig sein verheißung erkennen, annemen und behüten, und vorab diser gemein verleihe, das si zuneme in erkantnus des evangelions und seines süßen jochs und gemachsamen bürden. Diweil nu, almechtiger, ewiger Got, geliebter und barmherziger Vater, dein ainiger Sun, unser Herr Jesus, in die welt kumen ist zu ainem arzt der kranken und nit der gesunden und aber unser blindheit die gegenwertige schand der sunden durch sich selbs nit sehen noch für krankhait erkennen mag, dann wir leider vergift sind und in unser irrung und übertretung uns selbs gefallen, die gebot Gottes hassen, die laster lieben, so biten wir, du wöllest durch Got den Heiligen Geist dein gesatz in unser herzen schreiben und die verborgen sünd in uns lebendig machen und also uns verleihen, das wir brüfen und empfinden mögen, wie unmüglich es uns ist, guts zu tun, damit wir ein hunger und durst gewinnen zu der genaden und gerechtigkeit, so vor dir allein gilt, welche du der welt geben hast durch Christum Jesum unsern Herren. Nach disem volgt das Qui pridie. Gott sei lob!

There followeth a common prayer, to be said on a feast day when much people is present, after the Preface or before the Sanctus, as one will. Almighty, everlasting God and merciful Father: forasmuch as thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ hath promised that whatsoever we ask in his name, thou wilt grant it us; and moreover, forasmuch as thy Spirit also hath commanded that we should pray for our magistrates: we beseech thee from our hearts that thou wouldest move the minds of the emperor, the princes and lords, and above all of our lords and superiors of an honourable council, unto the knowledge of thy goodness and of the Gospel; and also that thou wouldest make all peoples subject unto thy Son through the Holy Ghost, that they themselves may willingly acknowledge, receive and keep his promise; and above all grant unto this congregation that it may increase in the knowledge of the Gospel, and of his sweet yoke and easy burden. Forasmuch now, almighty, everlasting God, beloved and merciful Father, as thine only Son our Lord Jesus is come into the world to be a physician of the sick and not of the whole, and yet our blindness cannot of itself see the present shame of sin nor know it for a sickness, for we are, alas, poisoned, and please ourselves in our error and transgression, hate the commandments of God and love vices: we pray thee that thou wouldest, through God the Holy Ghost, write thy law in our hearts and make the hidden sin alive in us, and so grant us that we may prove and perceive how impossible it is for us to do good; that we may gain a hunger and thirst after the grace and righteousness which alone availeth before thee, which thou hast given to the world through Christ Jesus our Lord. After this followeth the Qui pridie. God be praised!

Note. Sehling traces the prayer to the Strasbourg order of 1524. Its rubric puts it exactly where Te igitur stood: after the Preface, before the Sanctus in Döber's order, and leading into Qui pridie. It intercedes for the emperor, princes and council, for all peoples, and for "this congregation". These are the intentions of Te igitur and the Memento, turned into an evangelical prayer for faith and for the knowledge of sin.

9. Bremen, Eyne evangelysche Misse, 1525 (Kantz in Low German)

Eyne evangelysche Misse myt etlijke schone gebede ... Bremen 1525. Sehling 7, III, Nr. 1, pp. 403–407 (eko.db doc 2216).

The Mass itself is Kantz's order of 1522 (§2) in Low German. Before it stand three devotional prayers for the communicant. The second is a "betrachtunge by der Misse", a meditation during Mass. Its opening confession of the Real Presence is the nearest thing in the order to a Canon.

The foreword warns that the prayers are no rule: they are meant to show "what faith and desire are needed to receive the testament of Christ in a Christian manner".

9.1 The meditation during Mass

Eyn betrachtunge by der Misse Almechtige, ewige Got, mijn here Jesu Christe, Ick gelove, dat in dussem brode jegenwordich sy dijn hillige ware licham unde in dussem wijne dijn durbar blot angenamen hefst, um Adam unde al syne nakomelinge to verlosen van den ewigen dode. Unde heft uns gelaten in dussem hochwerdigen Sacramente eyn seker, wisse teken dijner waraftiger beloftenisse, de sunden to vergeven, dat dijne worde betugen, de in der Missen gesproken werden: Nemet hen unde etet. Dat is mijn licham, dat voer iw gegeven wert. Nemet hen unde drincket dar alle af. Dit is mijn bloet, dat vor iw vergaten wert to vergevinge der sunden. Up sulken trosteliken toseggen begere ick wt mynen gantsen herten, in rechter tovorsicht unde guden vortruwen, dat du my nicht latest leddich unde hongerich ungespiset van hier gan, sunder spisen wilt unde laven myt dijn levendige woert, Welker uns vercundiget vergevinge unser sunden dorch dyn licham unde bloet, Uppe dat ick in warer liften jegen dy unde broderlike trwe jegen mynen nechsten bevestiget mach werden.

A meditation at the Mass Almighty, everlasting God, my Lord Jesu Christ, I believe that in this bread is present thy holy true body, and in this wine thy precious blood, which thou hast taken upon thee to redeem Adam and all his posterity from everlasting death. And thou hast left us in this most worthy Sacrament a sure and certain sign of thy true promise to forgive sins, which thy words witness that are spoken in the Mass: Take and eat. This is my body, which is given for you. Take and drink ye all thereof. This is my blood, which is shed for you for the forgiveness of sins. Upon such comfortable promise I desire from my whole heart, in right confidence and good trust, that thou let me not go hence empty and hungry, unfed, but wilt feed and refresh me with thy living word, which proclaimeth unto us the forgiveness of our sins through thy body and blood; that I may be established in true love toward thee and brotherly faithfulness toward my neighbour.

Note.

- Who is addressed. The prayer is addressed to Christ as "Almechtige, ewige Got" and confesses the Real Presence "in dussem brode ... in dussem wijne".
- The Verba are quoted from "the words spoken in the Mass": the priest's words are now heard by the congregation.
- The Roman background. It is the priest's private preparation for communion, of the kind in the late-medieval Praeparatio ad missam, given to the laity.

9.2 The Mass: preparation

The preparation follows Kantz (§2.1–2.2) closely:

- the exhortation "Alderlevesten in Christo, Uppe dat gy myt vroliken unde begerliken herten entfangen mogen den kosteliken schat unde dat testamente des vlesches unde bloddes Christi Jesu ...";
- the absolution;
- "Bicht des presters", the recast Orate fratres: "biddet oeck Got trwelick vor my, dat he my mijne sunden vergevende, bequeme make iw syn tekene to delen" ("that he ... make me meet to distribute his signs to you");
- Ps 124:8;
- the Veni Sancte Spiritus antiphon, said "hemelick" by all;
- Kantz's collect, "O Here, almechtige Got, help, dat by uns sy unde wane dyn hillige geist ...".

9.3 Preface, Sanctus, Quam oblationem and Qui pridie

Prefacio ofte vorrede der Missen Vorhevet iw herten to Gade unde latet uns danckseggen Gade, unsen heren. Went et is billick, recht unde heilsam, dat wy in allen orden unde to aller tyt dy here, hillige vader, almechtige, ewige Got, danckseggen dorck Christum, unsen leven heren, Dorch welken alle engelen unde hemmelsche crachte anbeden, eren unde laven dyne hillige maiesteit. Myt den sulvigen bidden wy, wilt to laten unde annemen unse stemme, dat wy dy oeck laven unde spreken sunder ende: Sanctus: Dat is: Hillige, Hillige, Hillige, here Got der herscaren. Vul synt hemmel unde erde dijner herlicheit. Osanna in den hogesten. Gebenediet sy, de dar kumpt in den name des heren. Gelucke unde heil in den hogesten. Hier hevet sick erst de Evangelische Misse an Eyn gebeth vor an to Gade O Alder guedigeste vader, barmhertige, ewige Got, giff uns, dat wy vast geloven, dat dit brot unde wijn wert dat waraftige lijf unde blot dijnes alder levesten sonnes, unses heren Jesu Christi, Welcker an deme dage vor synem lijdent nam dat brot in sijne hilligen hande, sach up to dem hemmel to dy, synem almechtigen vader, sede danck unde brack dat brot unde gaf dat synen jungeren, sprekende: Nemet hen unde etet, dat is mijn licham, dat vor iuw gegeven wert. Des gelijken, na dem aventmal, nam he den kellick in syne hillige hande, danckede synen vader unde gaf synen jungeren unde sprak: Nemet hen unde drincket alle daruth, dat is de kellick des nijgen unde ewigen testaments in mijnen blode, dat vor iuw unde vor vele vorgaten wert to vorgevinge der sunden. So vaken alse gy dat doet, so doet dat in mijne gedechtenisse.

The Preface, or foreword of the Mass Lift up your hearts to God, and let us give thanks unto God our Lord. For it is meet, right and wholesome that we should in all places and at all times give thanks unto thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, through Christ our dear Lord, through whom all angels and heavenly powers worship, honour and praise thy holy majesty. With the same we beseech thee, vouchsafe to admit and receive our voice, that we also may praise thee and say without end: Sanctus: That is: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts. Full are heaven and earth of thy glory. Hosanna in the highest. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Luck and salvation in the highest. Here beginneth first the Evangelical Mass A prayer to God beforehand O most gracious Father, merciful, everlasting God, grant us that we may firmly believe that this bread and wine becometh the true body and blood of thy most dear Son, our Lord Jesus Christ; who on the day before his passion took the bread into his holy hands, looked up to heaven unto thee, his almighty Father, gave thanks, and brake the bread, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and eat, this is my body, which is given for you. Likewise, after the supper, he took the cup into his holy hands, thanked his Father, and gave it to his disciples, and spake: Take and drink ye all thereout, this is the cup of the new and everlasting testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As often as ye do this, do it in my remembrance.

Note.

- The recast Quam oblationem. Sehling's note: "Dieses Gebet entspricht weitgehend dem Gebet Quam oblationem des Missale Romanum". Kantz's petition "hilf, das dises brot und der wein uns werde und sei ..." (ut nobis ... fiat) has become "giff uns, dat wy vast geloven, dat dit brot unde wijn wert ...". The prayer no longer asks that the bread become the body. It asks that we believe that it does.
- The Verba. Kantz's two benedixit ("segnet") are dropped.

9.4 Our Father, Agnus Dei, Fili Dei vivi, communion, Nunc dimittis

Lat uns bidden: Unse vader, de du bist in den hemmel. Gehilget werde dijn name. Tokamen sy uns dijn ryke. Dijn wille de gesche also in den hemmel, so oeck up der erden. Unse dagelikes brot gif uns huden. Unde vorgif uns unse schult, also wy vorgeven unse schuldeneren. Unde vore uns nicht in vorsokinge, Sunder vorlose uns van allen quaden. Dorch unsen heren, Jesum Christum, dijn sone, de myt dy unde dem hilligen geiste, eyn war Got, levet unde regneret in ewicheit. Agnus Dei O du lam Gades, de du dregest de sunde der welt, vorbarme dy unser unde gif uns dijn vrede. Eyn gebet vor der entfanginge des hochwerdigen Sacramentes O Here Jesu Christe, du ewige wort dijnes vaders, Du heilant der werlt, levendig Got, vorlose uns dorch dijne grondelose barmherticheit van allen sunden. Help, dat wy vorvullen dijne gebade to aller tijdt unde van dy nicht gescheden werden in ewicheit. Hier na scal de priester dat hochwerdige Sacrament geven den, de dat myt eynen hungerigen, sundigen herten begerent, also sprekende: Wes getrostet. Wente siet, dit is dat licham unses heren Jesu Christi, dat vor iw geleden heft den bitteren doet. Nemet hen unde etet, uppe dattet iw spise unde beware in dat ewige levent. Also se alle berichtet synt myt den licham Christi, so scal de prester nemen den kellick myt den durbar blode Christi unde spreken also: Nu wil wy oeck drincken den kelick des heils unde anropen den namen des heren. Siet, gy bedrofde, sundige herten, unde weset getrostet. Wente dit is de durbar, kostelike scat des blodes uns heren Jesu Christi, darmede gij gekoft sint. Nemet dit unde delet under malkanderen to afwasschinge iwer sunden. Went dit alles geschen is, so scal de prester myt der gantzer Christen gemene dancken unde laven den heren myt dussen lavesanck seggende: O Here, nu latet in vrede dijn knecht na dijn worden, want unse ogen hebben gesien dijn heilant, den du bereidet hefst voer den angesichte alles volckes, Eyn lecht, to vorluchtende de heiden unde to eyner glorie dijnes volkes Ysrahel. Dy sy lof unde danck, o du hillige, benedide drevoldicheit, Got vader, sonne, hillige geist.

Let us pray: Our Father, which art in heaven. Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come unto us. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so also on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debt, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from all evil. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, thy Son, who with thee and the Holy Ghost, one true God, liveth and reigneth for ever. Agnus Dei O thou Lamb of God, that bearest the sin of the world, have mercy upon us and give us thy peace. A prayer before the receiving of the most worthy Sacrament O Lord Jesu Christ, thou everlasting Word of thy Father, thou Saviour of the world, living God, deliver us through thy bottomless mercy from all sins. Help us that we may fulfil thy commandments at all times, and never be parted from thee for ever. Hereafter shall the priest give the most worthy Sacrament to them that desire it with a hungry, sinful heart, saying thus: Be comforted. For behold, this is the body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which suffered for you the bitter death. Take and eat, that it may feed you and preserve you unto everlasting life. When they have all been communicated with the body of Christ, the priest shall take the cup with the precious blood of Christ, and say thus: Now will we also drink the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord. Behold, ye troubled, sinful hearts, and be comforted. For this is the precious, costly treasure of the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherewith ye are bought. Take this and divide it among yourselves to the washing away of your sins. When all this is done, the priest shall with the whole Christian congregation thank and praise the Lord with this song of praise, saying: O Lord, now let thy servant depart in peace according to thy words, for our eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people, a light to lighten the Gentiles and for a glory of thy people Israel. To thee be praise and thanks, O thou holy, blessed Trinity, God the Father, Son, Holy Ghost.

Note.

- As in Kantz (§2.5–2.7):
 - the conclusion of the embolism after the Our Father;
 - one Agnus Dei;
 - an abridged Fili Dei vivi;
 - the custodiat ("spise unde beware in dat ewige levent");
 - Calicem salutaris;
 - the Nunc dimittis with a Trinitarian doxology.
- What changes from Kantz:
 - Fili Dei vivi*. Kantz's "erlös uns durch disen deinen heiligen fronleichnam und rosenvarbes blut" (per hoc sacrosanctum Corpus et Sanguinem tuum) becomes "dorch dijne grondelose barmherticheit". Bremen removes the one phrase that ascribed the deliverance to the consecrated elements.
 - The communicants are "de dat myt eynen hungerigen, sundigen herten begerent".
 - Omitted. The showing of the host and the Pax are gone. No fraction, as in Kantz's first edition.
- What follows. A German Te Deum.

10. Lippe, Deutsche Messe, [1525–1538] (Müntzer in Low German)

Sehling 22, IX (Lippe, Nachtrag), Nr. 1, pp. 565–569 (eko.db doc 1549). It is a manuscript Mass with notes, for Trinity Sunday.

Its eucharistic part is Müntzer's German Mass (§4) in Low German:

- the Per omnia saecula before the Preface;
- the Roman Qui pridie with "hoff up syne ogen" and "eyn gheheymnys des ghelavens";
- "Darumme ladt uns alle bydden als uns Jhesus Christus ... heyfft gheleret";
- the Per omnia saecula after the Our Father;

- Pax Domini.

Its propers are those of Volprecht's Trinity Mass (§7.2): Rom 11:33–36, John 15:26–16:4, the Alleluia Benedictus es, Domine, Deus patrum nostrorum, and the Proficiat postcommunion.

Müntzer's own German Mass has no Trinity Mass. The Erfurt Kirchenamt of 1525, which reprinted Müntzer's Masses, added one (Sehling 6, III, p. 812 n. 26, to Calenberg-Göttingen 1542, §13). An Erfurt print of this kind is the likely source of the Lippe text.

Dat offertorium Vor dat offertorium synget me eyn geystlick leidt, dat ys eyn psalme. Prefatio Durch alle ewicheit der ewicheit amen. De here sy myt iw. Und myt dynem geiste. Unse herten yn de hoge. Hebben wy tho dem heren. Wy seggen danck dem heren, unserem Gade. Edt ys byllyck unde recht. Warlyck, edt is byllyck unde recht, dartho ock yst seer heilsam, dat wy dy altydt und yn allen enden danck seggen. Here, heillyge vader, almechtige, ewyge Godt, welcker du myt dynem eyngelbornen soen und dem hilligen geiste eyn enyge Godt bist, eyn enyger here bist. Nicht yn eynycheit der personen, sonder yn der enycheit eynes sunderliken wesens. Den dat wy durch dyn sulvest apenbarynge von dyner herlicheit gheloven, even dat sulffte holden wy onderscheiden van dynem sone und dem hilligen geiste, up dat yn der bekentnyse der waren und ewyghen godtheit de eghenschop yn den personen und enyccheit [!] yn dem wesen und de ghelicheit yn der majestat recht werde anghebetet, welke de engel laven, erwerdigen de ertzeengel, dartho Cherubin und Seraphin, de ane unterlادت myt eyndrechtiger stemmen syngen: Heillich, hyllich, hillich bist her Godt der herscharen, hymmel und erde syndt vorfullet myt dynem prise. Ach, help uns, de du byst yn den hochsten. Ghesegnet sy, de dar kumt ym namen des heren. Ach gyff gheluck und heyl yn den hochsten.

The offertory For the offertory a spiritual song is sung, that is, a psalm. The Preface World without end. Amen. The Lord be with you. And with thy spirit. Our hearts on high. We have them unto the Lord. We give thanks unto the Lord our God. It is meet and right. Verily it is meet and right, and moreover very wholesome, that we should always and in all places give thanks unto thee, Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, who with thine only-begotten Son and the Holy Ghost art one only God, art one only Lord; not in the oneness of a person, but in the oneness of a single being. For that which by thine own revelation we believe of thy glory, even the same we hold, without difference, of thy Son and of the Holy Ghost; that in the confession of the true and everlasting Godhead, the propriety in the persons and the unity in the being and the equality in the majesty may be rightly worshipped; which the angels praise, the archangels honour, and thereto Cherubim and Seraphim, who without ceasing sing with one accord of voice: Holy, holy, holy art thou, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are filled with thy praise. Ah, help us, thou that art in the highest. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Ah, give luck and salvation in the highest.

Note.

- The offertory. It keeps its name and its place, as a German hymn.
- "Durch alle ewicheit der ewicheit amen" heads the "Prefatio". It is the Per omnia saecula saeculorum. Amen that ended the silent Secret, as in Müntzer (§4.1).
- The Preface is the Trinity Preface, rendered fully:
 - Qui cum unigenito Filio tuo et Spiritu Sancto unus es Deus, unus es Dominus: non in unius singularitate personae, sed in unius Trinitate substantiae ...;
 - ... et in personis proprietates, et in essentia unitas, et in maiestate adoretur aequalitas. Quam laudant Angeli atque Archangeli, Cherubim quoque ac Seraphim

"In der enycheit eynes sunderliken wesens" renders in unius Trinitate substantiae loosely.

- The Sanctus. "Ach, help uns" is Hosanna.

Eynen dach thovoren, do Jhesus wolde lyden, nam he dat brodt yn syne hilligen hende und hoff up syne ogen yn den hemmel tho dy, Godt, synem almechtigen vader, und sachte dy danck und segende dat und brack dat und gaff dat synen jungeren, seggende: Nemet hen und ethet darvan, dat ys myn lichnam, de vor iw dar gegeben wert. Hyr ghyfft he den luden dat sacrament, de syk willen berichten laten. Darna nympt he den kelck in de handt und spreckt: Des sulven gheliken, als me ghetten hadde, nam he den kelck yn syne hilligen, werdigen hende und sachte dy danck und seghende en und gaff en synen jüngerem, seggende: Nempt hen und dryncket all dar uth. Dat ys de kelck mynes blodes, des nyggen und ewygen bundes, eyn gheheymnys des ghelavens, de vor iw und vor viel vorgatten wert yn vorgevynghe der sunde. Also vaken gy dat doen, so schol ghy myner darby gedencken. Hyr ghyfft he den lüden, de syk berichten laten, ok den kelck, under des synget me dat leydt: Godt sy gelavet edder: Jhesus Christus unse heylandt edder dat diidesche sanctus.

The day before, when Jesus would suffer, he took the bread into his holy hands, and lifted up his eyes to heaven unto thee, God, his almighty Father, and said thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and eat thereof, this is my body, which is given for you. Here he giveth the sacrament to the people who will be communicated. Thereafter he taketh the cup in his hand and saith: In like manner, when they had eaten, he took the cup into his holy and worthy hands, and said thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and drink ye all thereof. This is the cup of my blood, of the new and everlasting covenant, a mystery of faith, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As often as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby. Here he giveth the people who are communicated the cup also; meanwhile the hymn "Gott sei gelobet" is sung, or "Jesus Christus unser Heiland", or the German Sanctus.

Note.

- The Verba are word for word Müntzer's Qui pridie (§4.2), with mysterium fidei.
- The order of communion. As Luther proposed in the Deutsche Messe, the bread is given after the bread-word and the cup after the cup-word. So the Our Father, the Pax and the Agnus Dei come after communion.

Darumme ladt uns alle bydden als uns Jhesus Christus, de sone Gades, heyfft gheleret, seggende: Wader unse, de du byst yn den hemmelen, ghehylliget werde dyn name, tho kame dyn rike. Dyn wylle ghesche up erden also ym hemmel. Unse dachlike brodt gyff uns hute und vorgyff uns unse schuldt, als wy vorgeven unsen schuldeners, und vore uns nicht yn vorsokynghe, sonder vorlose uns van dem ovel, amen. Dat ghesche dorch unsen heren Jhesum Christum, dynen soen, welker myt dy und dem hyllighen geiste eyn waer Godt, levet und herschet yn ewicheit, amen. Durch alle ewycheit der ewicheit amen. De fryde des heren sy altydt myt iwe und myt dynem geiste. O laem Gades, de du dregst de sunde der werlt, erbarm dick unser. O lam Gades, de du dregst de sunde der werlt, gyff uns dynen frede. Dat commun Vor dat commun synget me eynen psalme edder geistlick lavesanck. Darna sprickt de pharher tho dem volcke: De here sy myt iw. Antwert: Unde myt dynem geiste. O here Godt, ladt uns tho nütte komen des lyves unde der seelen, de entfangynghe des hyllighen Sacramentes und de ewighe bekentnyse der hillyghen und der sulffstendigen unghedeilden dreyvoldycheit, de du levest und regerest eyn enych Godt dorch alle ewicheit thor ewicheit, amen. Ladt uns benedyen den hern, Gade sy ewich danck. De here benedye dy unde behode dy unde erluchte syn anghesichte aver dy unde erbarme syck dyner unde wende syn anghesichte tho dy unde gheve dy den frede, amen.

Therefore let us all pray, as Jesus Christ, the Son of God, hath taught us, saying: Our Father, which art in the heavens, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debt, as we forgive our debtors, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, amen. This be done through our Lord Jesus Christ, thy Son, who with thee and the Holy Ghost, one true God, liveth and reigneth for ever, amen. World without end. Amen. The peace of the Lord be alway with you, and with thy spirit. O Lamb of God, that bearest the sin of the world, have mercy upon us. O Lamb of God, that bearest the sin of the world, give us thy peace. The communion For the communion a psalm or spiritual song of praise is sung. Thereafter the pastor saith to the people: The Lord be with you. Answer: And with thy spirit. O Lord God, let the receiving of the holy Sacrament, and the everlasting confession of the holy and self-subsistent undivided Trinity, profit us for body and soul; who livest and reignest one only God, world without end, amen. Let us bless the Lord; thanks be to God for ever. The Lord bless thee and keep thee, and make his face shine upon thee, and have mercy upon thee, and turn his face unto thee and give thee peace, amen.

Note.

- The embolism's two endings. Lippe has both:
 - Kantz's "Dat ghesche dorch unsen heren ...", the conclusion Per eundem Dominum;
 - Müntzer's "Durch alle ewycheit der ewicheit", the chant ending Per omnia saecula.

There is no fraction rubric.

- Pax Domini is kept with its response. The response is run on in the manuscript.
- The postcommunion is the Roman Proficiat of Trinity Sunday, as in Volprecht (§7.2).
- The blessing. "Ladt uns benedyen den hern, Gade sy ewich danck" is Müntzer's Benedicamus. The Aaronic blessing follows.

11. Schleswig-Holstein, a Low German Mass from Kiel, [after 1526]

Sehling 23, A, Nr. 1, pp. 55–57 (eko.db doc 1576; introduction in doc 1568, p. 39). The manuscript, with notes, was bound into a book of the Kiel preacher Rudolf von Nimwegen († 1542). Sehling's editor dates it after 1526 because it draws on Döber (1525) and on Luther's Deutsche Messe (1526).

The order also draws on:

- Kantz (§2): the Veni Sancte Spiritus and its collect.
- Müntzer (§4): the Roman Qui pridie, with "hoff up syne ogen".
- Döber (§8): the Fili Dei vivi said by the people after the priest.

It is the only order in the corpus with a German Domine, non sum dignus.

11.1 Before the altar: absolution by the sexton, Veni Sancte Spiritus, collect

Minister legit: Myseriator. De coster list: Miseriator. De almechtyge, barmhartyge Got vorgeve uns unße sunde. Unde yck, uth bevele unßes heren Jesu Christi, segge jwe, de gy Gades gnaden truwen unde loven synen worden, frigh, leddich unde loß alle jwe sunde. Im name des vaders unde des sones unde des hylgen geistes. De prester: Amen. De prester lyst: Kum, hilge geist, erfülle de hartenn dyner gelovygen unde entfenge in en dat vor dyner gotliken leve, de du dorch menyfoldycheyt der tungenn de volcker der gantzenn warldet vorsamelt hefft in enycheit des waren gelovens. Costos: Amen. De prester list: O here, almechtige Got, gyff, dat by uns sy unde wane dyne hilge geist, dat he uns erluchte unde lere alle warheyt. Sterke unde boschutte yn aller wedderwardicheyt, dorch Christum, unsen herren. De coster: Amen.

The minister readeth: Misereatur. The sexton readeth: Misereatur. The almighty, merciful God forgive us our sins. And I, by the commandment of our Lord Jesus Christ, say unto you that trust in God's grace and believe his words, free, quit and loosed of all your sins. In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. The priest: Amen. The priest readeth: Come, Holy Ghost, fill the hearts of thy faithful and kindle in them the fire of thy divine love, who through the diversity of tongues hast gathered the peoples of the whole world in the unity of the true faith. Sexton: Amen. The priest readeth: O Lord, almighty God, grant that thy Holy Ghost may be and dwell with us, that he may enlighten us and teach all truth. Strengthen and defend in all adversity; through Christ our Lord. The sexton: Amen.

Note.

- The absolution. "Myseriator" (Misereatur) and the absolution are Kantz's (§2.1), but read by the sexton. The priest only adds the Amen. Sehling's editor points to Hadeln 1526 for the same practice.
- The prayers. The antiphon and collect are Kantz's (§2.2), said before the priest goes to the altar. Then the antiphon is sung again, with notes, and a troped Kyrie follows.

11.2 Preface and the bread-word

De Here sy myt jw. Unße harte yn de hogde. Wy seggen danck dem heren, unßem Gade. Warlich, ydt ys werdich unde recht, billich unde ys heilsam, dat wy, Here, almechtyge Godt, dy allenthalven danck seggen, unde sunderliken yn desser tydt tho pryßenn, wente Cristus, unse paschelum, ys vor uns geoffert. He ys dat wäre lam Gades, welk darwech genamen hefft de Bunde der werlde, de dorch synen tytliken dot unsen ewygen dot vorstoret hefft. Unde als he upgestan ys, hefft he wedder gebracht dat levent. Eyne dach to voren, do Jesus Christus wolde liden, nam he dat brot yn syne hillygen, werdigen hende unde hoff up syne ogen in den hemmel tho dy, Got, synem alemechtigen vader, unde Bede dy dank unde gesegende ydt unde brack dat unde gaff yt synen jüngerem, seggende: Nemet hen unde ethet alle darvan. Dyt ys myn licham, de dar vor jw gegeven verth in vorgevinge der sunde. Nu hevet dat cor an to syngende: Jhesus Christus, unse hylant. Eyn versch dar van.

The Lord be with you. Our hearts on high. We give thanks unto the Lord our God. Verily it is worthy and right, meet and wholesome, that we, O Lord, almighty God, should in all places give thanks unto thee, and specially at this time praise thee, for Christ our Passover lamb is offered for us. He is the true Lamb of God, which hath taken away the sin of the world, who by his temporal death hath destroyed our eternal death; and when he rose again, he hath brought life again. The day before, when Jesus Christ would suffer, he took the bread into his holy and worthy hands, and lifted up his eyes to heaven unto thee, God, his almighty Father, and said thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and eat ye all thereof. This is my body, which is given for you for the forgiveness of sins. Now the choir beginneth to sing: "Jesus Christus, unser Heiland". One verse thereof.

Note.

- The Preface is the Easter Preface: Te quidem, Domine, omni tempore, sed in hac potissimum die gloriosius praedicare, cum Pascha nostrum immolatus est Christus. Ipse enim verus est Agnus, qui abstulit peccata mundi. Qui mortem nostram moriendo destruxit, et vitam resurgendo reparavit.

- The manuscript breaks off before the Et ideo and the Sanctus (Sehling: "Der Text bricht an dieser Stelle ab").
- "Ys vor uns geoffert" keeps immolatus est (1 Cor 5:7).
- The bread-word is Müntzer's Qui pridie, with "in vorgevinge der sunde" added to the bread.
- Separate consecration. Only the bread is consecrated now. The cup is consecrated after the communion of the bread (§11.4), as Luther had suggested.

11.3 Exhortation, Fili Dei vivi, Domine non sum dignus

Dar na kert sick de prester myt dem licham Cristi thom volchke. Unde de communicanten setten syck al up de reghe vor dat altar, dat sacramento tho entfangende. Unde de prester deyt eyn vormanynge unde secht, den licham Christi yn der hant haldende: Goden frunde, Cristus, unser heylant, hefft uns in synem latesten affschede nagelaten eyn harlich klenade als synen licham unde blot eyner geystlyken artzedye unde spyse, dar wy syner scholen by gedencken, dorch welkeren licham unde blot he uns eyn enych testamente der salicheyt hefft upgerichtet unde dat sulvyge testamente synes flesches unde blödes myt synem bytteren lydende bokrefftyget. Unde ßo vaken wy uns myt sunden folet besweret unde uns na dysser spise unde na dyssem drancke hungeret unde dorstet, schole wy yth myt eyneme gruntligen unde fasten geloven entfangen. Unde so vaken wy yth tho uns nemen, schole wy andechtich ßyn, synes bytteren lydendes eme danck und loff tho seggen vor syne woldath unde dat unß desse spyse mege syn helplich unde tröstlich thom ewygem levende. Amen. Spreket my na myt ynnygem harten: O Here Jesu Christi, du sone des levendygen Gades, de du uth vederlykem willen, dorch medewarkinge des hilgen gestes, dorch dynen bytteren doth de werlt hefft wedder levendich ghemaket dorch den geloven, erlöse uns armen kynder Ade dorch dyssen dynen hylgen licham unde unschuldigen bloth van allen unsen ungerechtigeyden unde bosheyden unde vorlene uns, dat vy alle tydt gehorßam dynen gebaden myt lust unde leve volgen unde van dy nummer affgesundert werden. Amen. O Here, ick en byn nycht werdich dorch myn vordenst dynes werdigen lichames unde blödes, sunder make my werdich dorch dyne gotlike tosaage, make my salich dorch dyn heylsame wort. Amen.

Thereafter the priest turneth with the body of Christ to the people. And the communicants seat themselves all in a row before the altar to receive the sacrament. And the priest maketh an exhortation and saith, holding the body of Christ in his hand: Good friends, Christ our Saviour hath left us at his last departing a glorious jewel, to wit his body and blood, for a spiritual medicine and food, whereby we shall remember him; through which body and blood he hath set up for us an only testament of salvation, and confirmed the same testament of his flesh and blood with his bitter passion. And as often as we feel ourselves burdened with sins, and hunger and thirst after this food and after this drink, we shall receive it with a thorough and firm faith. And as often as we take it unto us, we shall be mindful to give him thanks and praise for his bitter passion, for his benefit, and that this food may be helpful and comfortable unto us unto everlasting life. Amen. Say after me with inward heart: O Lord Jesu Christ, thou Son of the living God, who by the Father's will, through the working together of the Holy Ghost, hast by thy bitter death made the world alive again through faith: deliver us poor children of Adam, by this thy holy body and innocent blood, from all our iniquities and wickednesses, and grant us that we may at all times follow thy commandments obediently with desire and love, and never be separated from thee. Amen. O Lord, I am not worthy by my merit of thy worthy body and blood; but make me worthy by thy divine promise, make me whole by thy wholesome word. Amen.

Note.

- The priest holds the host during the exhortation. The exhortation takes the place of the Canon's remembrance.
- Fili Dei vivi is the Strasbourg and Döber German text (§5.1, §8.8), said after the priest by the communicants. Three phrases are added:
 - "dorch den geloven" (the world made alive "through faith");
 - "uns armen kynder Ade";
 - "myt lust unde leve".
- Domine, non sum dignus. The Roman text is Domine, non sum dignus, ut intres sub tectum meum: sed tantum dic verbo, et sanabitur anima mea (Mt 8:8). It was said by the priest, and by the people before communion. The Kiel text changes it:
 - It drops the centurion's roof.
 - It makes the worthiness a question of merit ("dorch myn vordenst").
 - It asks that Christ's "divine promise" make the communicant worthy.
 - "make my salich dorch dyn heylsame wort" keeps sed tantum dic verbo, et sanabitur.

11.4 Communion of the bread; the cup-word and communion of the cup; blessing

Nu vordet de prester den licham Christi den communicanten, unde dat cor hevet an dat ander versus alBo: Dat wy des nummer vorgeten, gaff etc. Unde singet Bo lange, dat de licham Christi vordet is. Dar na swicht dat chor stille. Unde de prester hevet vordan an, dat bloth Christi tho consecrerende unde secht: Des sulven gelyken, do men gegeten hade, nam he den kelk yn syne hylligen, werdigen hende unde Bede dy dank unde gesegende den unde gaff an synen jüngerem, seggende: Nemet hen unde drincket alle daruth. Dyt ys de kelk mynes blödes, des nygen unde ewygen testamentes, de vor jw unde vor vele vorgaten wert yn vorgewinghe der sunde. Szo vaken gy dith don, Bo dot dat yn myner gedechnisse. Nu giffet de prester den communicanten dat bloth Christi, unde dat chor singet: Jesus Christus, unser, edder den lavesanck: Got, de sy gelavet unde gebenediet etc. Unde singet Bolange dat bloth Christi vordet is. Darna Bo ker sick de prester wedder to dem wolke [sic] unde secht: De Here sy myt jw. Unde beslut de mysse myt ener collecten. Unde na der collecten secht de prester noch eyn mal: De Here sy myt jw. Dar na list he disse nagescreven segenynghe aver dat volck unde secht, Numeri VI. capite: De Here segene jw unde bohode jw. De Her erluchte syn anghesichte aver jw unde sy jw gnedich. De Here hewe syn angesichte uppe jw unde ghewe jw frede, dorch Cristum, unßen heren. Dat Chor antwardet: Amen. Dar na synget men eynen psalm, dat men de misse dar mede besluth.

Now the priest distributeth the body of Christ to the communicants, and the choir beginneth the second verse thus: "Dass wir des nimmer vergessen, gab etc.", and singeth so long till the body of Christ is distributed. Thereafter the choir is silent. And the priest beginneth further to consecrate the blood of Christ, and saith: In like manner, when they had eaten, he took the cup into his holy and worthy hands, and said thanks unto thee, and blessed it, and gave it to his disciples, saying: Take and drink ye all thereout. This is the cup of my blood, of the new and everlasting testament, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins. As often as ye do this, do it in my remembrance. Now the priest giveth the communicants the blood of Christ, and the choir singeth "Jesus Christus unser", or the song of praise "Gott sei gelobet und gebenediet", etc., and singeth so long till the blood of Christ is distributed. Thereafter the priest turneth again to the people and saith: The Lord be with you. And concludeth the Mass with a collect. And after the collect the priest saith once more: The Lord be with you. Thereafter he readeth this blessing written hereafter over the people, and saith, Numbers the sixth chapter: The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord make his face shine upon you and be gracious unto you. The Lord lift up his countenance upon you and give you peace, through Christ our Lord. The choir answereth: Amen. Thereafter a psalm is sung, wherewith the Mass is concluded.

Note.

- "dat bloth Christi tho consecrerende". The rubric calls the cup-word a consecration.
- The cup-word is Müntzer's Simili modo, but "testamentes" (not "bundes"), and without mysterium fidei.
- No Our Father, no Pax, no Agnus Dei. The Our Father is said with the Creed and the Verba on weekdays without communicants, and at the communion of the sick.

12. Brandenburg, Kirchenordnung, 1540

Church order of the Elector Joachim II, 1540. Sehling 3, Mark Brandenburg Nr. 3, pp. 67–71.

The order is conservative. The Latin chants stay. The offertory chant stays. The Preface and Sanctus are sung in Latin. The Verba are sung aloud in German. The prayers the priest said before communion (Domine Iesu Christe qui dixisti, Fili Dei vivi, Perceptio) and after it (Corpus tuum, Quod ore sumpsimus) are kept in Latin.

In the Canon's own place, under the Sanctus, the priest says four new German collects. For the Pfalz-Neuburg version of these, Sehling notes: "Diese Gebete sind an die Stelle der in der römischen Messe teils vor teils nach der Konsekration gesprochenen Fürbittgebete gesetzt".

The order's rationale (p. 67) is given before the Mass:

Es sollen auch verba consecrationis nach der prefation öffentlich gesungen oder gesprochen werden, wie denn solchs von alters in der kirchen auch ublich gewesen [...]. Daraus abzunemen, mit was grunde solche wort den leien mögen verboten werden. Allein der ursach, das man sich vielleicht besorget, sie mochten mit der zeit aus dem gewar und innen werden, das inen das sacrament des kelchs sowol zustünde als den priestern und villeicht daneben erfahren die ungeschicklichkeit ires canons, darauf sie fast alle seligkeit gestelt und doch denselben heimlich gelesen [...].

The words of consecration shall also be sung or spoken openly after the Preface, as this also hath been customary in the Church of old [...]. Whence may be gathered with what ground such words may be forbidden to the laity: only for this cause, that it was perhaps feared they might in time become aware thereby, and find out, that the sacrament of the cup belonged to them as well as to the priests; and perhaps besides discover the unfitness of their Canon, whereon they have set well-nigh all salvation, and yet read the same secretly [...].

12.1 Creed, offertory, Preface, Sanctus

Darauf sol der priester singen, credo in unum deum, das patrem, in thumen und stiften sol latinisch, aber in den pfarren deudsch: Wir gleuben all an einen gott gesungen werden; darauf sol der priester singen: Dominus vobiscum absque oremus; darauf sol der gesang, den man hievor pro offertorio gehalten hat, gesungen werden; darauf sol der priester die gewöhnliche prefation singen und folgend das latinisch sanctus alles in latin gesungen werden. Unter dem sanctus sol der priester folgende oration deudsch beten.

Thereupon the priest shall sing Credo in unum Deum; the Patrem shall be sung in cathedrals and collegiate churches in Latin, but in the parishes in German, "Wir glauben all an einen Gott". Thereupon the priest shall sing Dominus vobiscum without Oremus; thereupon the chant which heretofore was kept for the offertory shall be sung; thereupon the priest shall sing the customary Preface, and next the Latin Sanctus, all sung in Latin. Under the Sanctus the priest shall pray the following prayer in German.

Note.

- The offertory. "Dominus vobiscum absque oremus" keeps the greeting before the offertory but drops the Oremus that led into the offertory prayers. The offertory chant itself survives ("der gesang, den man hievor pro offertorio gehalten hat"). No offertory prayers are said.
- In villages. On p. 71 the order adds that "in den kleinen flecken ... und auf den dörfern" the offertory "von der dominica oder festen" may be replaced by a German psalm after the sermon: "darauf sol folgen die latinische prefation, das sanctus, die communio und ferrer der beschlus".
- The Preface. "Die gewöhnliche prefation" is the Latin Preface of the day. It is not printed.

12.2 The four collects under the Sanctus (in place of the Canon's intercessions)

Für die oberigkeit. Barmherziger himlischer vater, in welches hende aller menschen gewalt und obrigkeit stehet, von dir eingesetzt zur straf der ubeltheter und zum schutz der fromen, in welches hende auch stehen alle recht und gesetze aller lender, wir bitten dich, sei gnedig unserm herrn kaiser, allen königen und fürsten, sonderlich unserm landesfürsten und herrn N. und dem rath und regenten dieser stadt und aller ordenlichen obrigkeit, damit sie das weltlich schwerd, das du inen befohlen hast, recht füren mügen; umschattige sie mit der kraft des allerhöchsten, erleucht und erhalt sie bei deinem göttlichen namen, lass sie dein göttlichs wort von herzen lieb haben und darüber fest halten und sie ja dasselbig nicht lassen verfolgen, gib inen, lieber herr, weisheit und einen verstand und ein fridsam regiment, auf das sie alle ire unterthanen in der warheit und gerechtigkeit, die dir gefellig ist, regiren und beschirmen, auch, mein lieber gott, friste inen ir leben lang, nach deinem willens und weil das gerichte dein ist und sie an deiner stad sitzen, gib inen gnad, also zu regiren, das dein heiliger name durch sie geheiligt und gepreiset werde, von nu an bis in ewigkeit, das helf inen der herr Jesu Christ, dein geliebter son, amen.

Ein ander. O almechtiger gütiger gott und vater unsers herrn Jesu Christi, der du uns ernstlich befohlen hast, das wir dich bitten sollen um arbeiter in deiner ernten, das ist um rechtschaffne prediger deines worts. Wir bitten dein gründlose barmherzigkeit, du wollest uns rechtschaffne lerer und diener deines göttlichen worts zuschicken und denselben dein heilsams wort in das herz und in den mund geben, das sie deinen befelch treulich ausrichten und nichts predigen, das deinem heiligen wort entgegen sei, auf das wir durch dein himlisch ewigs wort ermanet, geleret, gespeist, getröst und gesterkt werden, thun, was dir gefellig und uns fruchtbarlich ist; gib herr deiner heiligen christlichen kirchen deinen geist und göttliche weisheit, das dein wort unter uns laufe und wachse und mit aller freidigkeit, wie sichs gebürt, gepredigt und dein heilige christliche gemein dadurch gebessert werde, auf das wir mit beständigem glauben dir dienen und in erkenntnis deines namens bis an das ende verharren, durch unsern herrn etc.

Ein ander. Almechtiger gott und ewiger vater, ein könig der ehren und ein herr himels und der erden, durch welches geist alle dinge regiret, durch welches fursehung alle dinge geordnet werden, du bist ein gott des friedes, von dem allein einigkeit zu uns komt, wir bitten dich durch unsern herrn Jesum Christum, du wollest uns unser sunde vergeben und mit deinem göttlichen friden und einigkeit begnaden, damit wir in forcht und zittern deinem namen dienen und allezeit von uns gepreiset werdest, amen.

Barmherziger gott und himlischer vater, des barmherzigkeit kein ende hat, der du langmütig, gnedig und von grosser güte und treu bist und vergibst alle missethat, ubertretung und sunde, wir haben leider gesündigt mit unsern vetern, wir haben mishandelt und sind gottlos gewesen und dich oftmals erzürnet, dir allein haben wir gesündigt und ubel für dir gethan, aber herr, gedenke nicht an unsere vorige missethat, las bald dein barmherzigkeit über uns gross sein, denn wir sind elend worden, hilf uns gott unsers heils um der ehre willen deines namens, erlöse uns und vergib uns unser sünde durch deinen son Jesum Christum, amen.

For the magistrates. Merciful heavenly Father, in whose hands standeth all power and authority of men, ordained of thee for the punishment of evildoers and the protection of the godly, in whose hands also stand all the rights and laws of all lands: we beseech thee, be gracious unto our lord the Emperor, all kings and princes, especially unto our prince and lord of the land N., and unto the council and rulers of this city and all lawful magistrates, that they may rightly bear the temporal sword which thou hast committed unto them. Overshadow them with the power of the Highest; enlighten them and keep them in thy divine name; let them love thy divine word from the heart and hold fast thereto, and in no wise suffer it to be persecuted. Give them, dear Lord, wisdom and understanding and a peaceable government, that they may rule and defend all their subjects in the truth and righteousness that is well-pleasing unto thee. Also, my dear God, prolong their life according to thy will; and forasmuch as the judgement is thine and they sit in thy stead, give them grace so to rule that thy holy name may be hallowed and praised through them, from henceforth even for ever. This help them the Lord Jesus Christ, thy beloved Son. Amen.

Another. O almighty, gracious God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hast earnestly commanded us that we should pray thee for labourers into thine harvest, that is, for right and true preachers of thy word: we beseech thy bottomless mercy that thou wouldest send us right and true teachers and ministers of thy divine word, and give thy wholesome word into their heart and into their mouth, that they may faithfully perform thy commandment and preach nothing that is contrary to thy holy word; to the end that we, being by thy heavenly, eternal word admonished, taught, fed, comforted and strengthened, may do that which is well-pleasing unto thee and profitable unto us. Give, O Lord, unto thy holy Christian Church thy Spirit and divine wisdom, that thy word may run and grow among us and be preached with all boldness, as it becometh, and that thy holy Christian congregation may be bettered thereby; that we may serve thee with steadfast faith and continue in the knowledge of thy name unto the end; through our Lord, etc.

Another. Almighty God and everlasting Father, a King of glory and a Lord of heaven and of earth, by whose Spirit all things are governed, by whose providence all things are ordered; thou art a God of peace, from whom alone unity cometh unto us: we beseech thee through our Lord Jesus Christ that thou wouldest forgive us our sins and endue us with thy divine peace and unity, that we may serve thy name in fear and trembling, and that thou mayest be praised of us evermore. Amen.

Merciful God and heavenly Father, whose mercy hath no end, who art longsuffering, gracious and of great goodness and faithfulness, and forgivest all iniquity, transgression and sin: we have, alas, sinned with our fathers, we have done amiss and dealt wickedly and oftentimes provoked thee to wrath; against thee only have we sinned and done evil in thy sight. But, Lord, remember not against us our former iniquities; let thy mercy speedily be great upon us, for we are brought very low. Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; deliver us and forgive us our sins, through thy Son Jesus Christ. Amen.

Note. The texts and translations are the same as in general_prayers.db (family L). Sehling traces the collects for the ministers and for peace to Brandenburg-Nürnberg 1533. The one for the magistrates is an expanded form of the Nürnberg collect. The penitential fourth, woven from Ps 106:6, Ps 51:4 and Ps 79:8–9, stands where the Canon's prayers for forgiveness stood (Hanc igitur's ab aeterna damnatione nos eripi, the Nobis quoque peccatoribus).

12.3 The Verba, sung, with elevation

Darnach verba consecrationis deutsch singen und eleviren wie folgt: Unser herr Jesus in der nacht, do er verraten ward, nam er das brot, danket seinem himlischen vater, gebenedeiet es und brachs und gabs seinen jungern und sprach: Nemet hin und esset, das ist mein leib, der fur euch dargeben wird, das thut zu meiner gedechtnis. Hic modica inclinatione, leva illud reverenter in altum. Deinde calicem accipe cum ambabus manibus, et dic. Desselben gleichen nam er auch den kelch nach dem abendmal, danket und benedeiet in und gab den seinen jüngern und sprach: Trinket alle daraus, das ist mein blut des neuen testamentes, das vor euch und vor vil vergossen wird zur vergebung der sunden, solchs thut, so oft irs trinket, zu meinem gedechtnis. Leua calicem in altum. Nach der elevation sol man in Thumen und stiften einen latinischen gesang singen, als das responsorium tua est potencia etc., in den pfarren aber einen deutschen gesang. Es wolt uns gott gnedig sein oder sei lob und dank mit hohem preis.

*Thereafter the words of consecration shall be sung in German, and the elevation made, as followeth: Our Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was betrayed, took the bread, gave thanks unto his heavenly Father, blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take and eat, this is my body, which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me. Here, with a slight inclination, lift it up reverently on high. Then take the cup with both hands, and say: Likewise also he took the cup after the supper, gave thanks and blessed it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Drink ye all of it, this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins; this do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. Lift the cup on high. After the elevation, in cathedrals and collegiate churches a Latin chant shall be sung, as the responsory Tua est potentia, etc.; but in the parishes a German song: "Es wolt uns Gott genädig sein", or "Sei Lob und Dank mit hohem Preis".*

Note.

- The Verba. They are the Pauline and Lutheran form. "Danket seinem himlischen vater" keeps an echo of tibi gratias agens. The print's gebenedeietes is divided here as "gebenedeiet es".
- Rubrics. The Latin rubrics are those of the missal: elevat ... reverenter, accipit calicem ambabus manibus.
- The chant. The Latin responsory after the elevation takes the place of the Benedictus sung at the elevation.

12.4 Our Father and the Peace

Darauf sol, wie hernach folget, das pater noster deutsch gesungen werden. Last uns beten, wie uns der herr Christus Jesus befohlen hat, das wir aus rechter zuversicht und vertrauen dorfen sagen: Vater unser, der du bist im himel, geheiliget werde dein name, zukome dein reich, dein wil geschehe als im himel auch auf erden, unser teglich brod gib uns heute und vergib uns unser schulde als wir vergeben unsern schuldigern und für uns nicht in versuchung, sondern erlös uns von dem ubel, denn dein ist das reich und die kraft und die herrlichkeit in ewigkeit. Dicat omnis populus, amen. Vertens se ad populum cantat. Der fried des herren sei mit euch allen. Dicat omnis populus, amen.

Thereupon the Pater noster shall be sung in German, as followeth. Let us pray, as the Lord Christ Jesus hath commanded us, that out of right confidence and trust we may be bold to say: Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth; give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Let all the people say, Amen. Turning himself to the people he singeth: The peace of the Lord be with you all. Let all the people say, Amen.

Note. "Wie uns der herr Christus Jesus befohlen hat, das wir ... dorfen sagen" recasts Praeceptis salutaribus moniti ... audemus dicere.

There is no embolism. Pax Domini sit semper vobiscum is kept, with the people answering Amen where the Roman response is Et cum spiritu tuo.

12.5 Agnus Dei and the priest's three prayers before communion (Latin)

Agnus dei qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis. Agnus dei qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis. Agnus dei qui tollis peccata mundi, donna [sic] nobis pacem. Das agnus dei sol auch latinisch gesungen werden. Inclina te. Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti apostolis tuis, pacem meam do vobis, pacem meam relinquo vobis, ne respicias peccata mea, sed fidem ecclesiae tuae, eamque secundum voluntatem tuam pacificare custodire adiuuvare et regere digneris, qui cum deo, patre et spiritu sancto vivis et regnas deus per omnia saecula saeculorum, amen. Inclinatus dicat. Domine Iesu Christi, fili dei vivi, qui ex voluntate patris cooperante spiritu sancto per mortem propriam mundum vivificasti. Libera nos per hoc sacrosanctum corpus et sanguinem tuum ab omnibus iniquitatibus et universis malis nostris: Et fac nos tuis semper obedire mandatis, et a tua misericordia nunquam in perpetuum separari permittas. Qui vivis et regnas deus per omnia saecula saeculorum, amen. ALIA ORATIO. Sacramentum corporis tui domine Iesu Christe, quod nos indigni tui sumere cupimus, non nobis proveniat in iudicium et condemnationem, sed pro tua pietate prosit nobis ad tutamen mentis et corporis, et ad medelam percipiendam, qui vivis et regnas cum deo patre in unitate spiritussancti deus per omnia saecula saeculorum, amen.

O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, grant us peace. The Agnus Dei shall also be sung in Latin. Bow thyself. O Lord Jesus Christ, who saidst unto thine apostles, My peace I give unto you, my peace I leave with you: regard not my sins, but the faith of thy Church; and vouchsafe to pacify, keep, help and govern her according to thy will; who with God the Father and the Holy Ghost livest and reignest God, world without end. Amen. Bowing, let him say: O Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, who by the will of the Father, the Holy Ghost working with thee, hast by thine own death given life to the world: deliver us by this thy most holy body and blood from all our iniquities and all our evils; and make us ever to obey thy commandments, and suffer us never to be separated from thy mercy for evermore. Who livest and reignest God, world without end. Amen. Another prayer. Let the sacrament of thy body, O Lord Jesus Christ, which we unworthy desire to receive, not turn to us unto judgement and condemnation; but of thy goodness let it profit us unto the defence of mind and body, and unto the obtaining of healing; who livest and reignest with God the Father in the unity of the Holy Ghost, God, world without end. Amen.

Note. These are the three prayers the priest said before his communion. Pfalz-Neuburg 1543 (note 20–21) reports that in 1540 two were said, the third being an alternative to the second.

1. Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti.

- The two halves of John 14:27 are inverted: "do ... relinquo", where the Roman text has Pacem relinquo vobis, pacem meam do vobis.
- The verbs "pacificare custodire adiuuvare et regere" are those of the Canon's Te igitur (pacificare, custodire, adunare et regere), with adiuvare for adunare. The Tridentine text has only pacificare et coadunare.

2. Fili Dei vivi.

- The Roman singular (libera me ... meis ... fac me ... inhaerere ... a te) is made plural and congregational.
- Inhaerere becomes obedire.
- A te numquam separari becomes a tua misericordia nunquam in perpetuum separari.

- This petition, "Libera nos per hoc sacrosanctum corpus et sanguinem tuum", is not the embolism Libera nos, quaesumus.

3. Perceptio corporis tui appears as Sacramentum corporis tui.

- It is plural, and praesumo becomes cupimus.
- Tutamen stands for tutamentum. The stray tui after indigni is as printed.

12.6 The exhortation (Osiander, Nürnberg 1533)

Deinde vertens se ad populum legat hanc adhortationem. Ir allerliebsten in gott, dieweil wir itzt das abendmal unsers herrn Jesu Christi wollen bedenken und halten, darin er uns sein fleisch zu einer speis und sein blut zu einem trank, den glauben damit zu sterken, gegeben hat, sollen wir billich mit grossem fleiss ein jeder sich selbs prüfen, wie der heilig Paulus uns vermanet: denn dis heilig sacrament ist zu einem sondern trost und sterk gegeben den armen betrübten gewissen die ire sunde bekennen, gottes zorn und den tod forchten und nach der gerechtigkeit hungerig und durstig sind. So wir uns aber selbs prüfen und ein jeder in sein eigen gewissen gehen, wie uns der heilig Paulus leret, werden wir gewislich nicht anders finden, denn allerlei greuliche sund und den tod, den wir mit der sunde verschuldet haben, und können doch uns selbs in keinem wege daraus helfen. Darum hat unser lieber herr Jesus Christus sich uber uns erbarmet und ist um unser sunden willen mensche worden, auf das er das gesetz und allen willen gottes fur uns zu gut erfüllet und den tod und alles, was wir mit unsern sunden verschuldet hetten, fur uns und zu unser ledigung auf sich neme und erlitte, und das wir je das festiglich glauben und durch den glauben frölich in seinem willen mochten leben, nam er nach dem abendmal das brod, sagt dank, brachs und sprach: Nemet hin und esset, das ist mein leib, der fur euch dargeben wird, das ist, das ich mensch bin worden und alles, das ich thue und leide, ist alles euer eigen, fur euch und euch zu gut geschehen; des zu einem gewissen anzeigen und zeugnis gib ich euch mein leib zur speise. Desgleichen nam er auch den kelch und sprach: Nemet hin und trinket aus diesem alle, das ist der kelch des neuen testaments in meinem blut, das fur euch und fur viel vergossen wird zu vergebung der sunden, so oft ir das thut, solt ir mein darbei dabei [sic] gedenken, das ist, dieweil ich mich eur angenommen und eur sunden auf mich geladen hab, will ich mich selbs fur die sunden in tod opfern, mein blut vergiessen, gnad und vergebung der sunden erwerben und also ein neu testament aufrichten, darinnen die sunden vergeben und ewig nicht mehr sol gedacht werden, des zu einem gewissen anzeigen und zeugnis, gib ich euch mein blut zu trinken. Wer nu also von diesem brod isset und von diesem kelch trinket, auch diesen worten, so er von Christo höret und diesen zeichen, die er von Christo empfahet, festiglich glaubt, der bleibt in dem herrn Christo und Christus in im, und wird ewiglich leben; darbei sollen wir nu sein gedenken und seinen tod verkündigen, nemlich, das er fur unser sunden sei gestorben und zu unser rechtfertigung wider auferstanden und im darum danksagen, ein jeder sein creuz auf sich nemen und im nachfolgen und nach seinem gebot einander lieben, wie er uns geliebt hat; denn wir sind alle ein brod und ein leib, dieweil wir alle eins brods teilhaftig sind und aus einem kelch trinken.

Then turning himself to the people let him read this exhortation. Dearly beloved in God, forasmuch as we will now consider and keep the supper of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherein he hath given us his flesh for a meat and his blood for a drink, therewith to strengthen faith, we ought rightly every one with great diligence to examine himself, as the holy Paul exhorteth us; for this holy sacrament is given for a special comfort and strength unto the poor troubled consciences that confess their sins, fear God's wrath and death, and are hungry and thirsty after righteousness. But when we examine ourselves, and every one goeth into his own conscience, as the holy Paul teacheth us, we shall surely find nothing else but all manner of horrible sin, and death, which we have deserved with sin; and yet we cannot in any wise help ourselves out thereof. Therefore hath our dear Lord

Jesus Christ had mercy upon us, and for our sins' sake is become man, to the end that he might fulfil the law and all the will of God for us and for our good, and take upon himself and suffer death and all that we had deserved with our sins, for us and for our deliverance. And that we might steadfastly believe this, and through faith live joyfully in his will, he took after the supper the bread, gave thanks, brake it, and said: Take and eat, this is my body, which is given for you; that is, that I am become man, and all that I do and suffer is all your own, done for you and for your good; for a sure token and witness whereof I give you my body for meat. Likewise he took also the cup, and said: Take and drink ye all of this, this is the cup of the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins; as oft as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby; that is, forasmuch as I have taken your cause upon me and laden your sins upon myself, I will offer myself unto death for sin, shed my blood, obtain grace and forgiveness of sins, and so set up a new testament, wherein sins are forgiven and shall be remembered no more for ever; for a sure token and witness whereof I give you my blood to drink. Whosoever now eateth thus of this bread and drinketh of this cup, and firmly believeth these words which he heareth of Christ and these signs which he receiveth of Christ, he dwelleth in the Lord Christ and Christ in him, and shall live for ever. Hereby shall we now remember him and show forth his death, namely that he died for our sins and rose again for our justification, and give him thanks therefor; every one take up his cross and follow him, and according to his commandment love one another, as he hath loved us: for we are all one bread and one body, seeing we are all partakers of one bread and drink of one cup.

Note. This is Osiander's Nürnberg exhortation (§8.7) as revised for Brandenburg-Nürnberg 1533 (Sehling 11, 195). It comes after the Latin priest's prayers and immediately before the distribution. Darbei dabei is a doublet in the print.

12.7 Communion

Darauf sol angefangen werden das responsorium discubuit Jesus latinisch und ob der communicanten viel weren, das man damit nicht zureichen mocht, sol man dem volk deudsch anfahren zu singen, gott sei gelobet, oder Jesus Christus, unser heiland, welcher gesenge einer, ob auch gleich das discubuit zureichet, dennoch gleichwol nach der communion sol gesungen werden. Nunc communicantes accedunt et cum eis corpus dominicum porrigitur dicat sacerdos. Nim hin und iss, das ist der leib Christi, der fur dich geben ist. Ad calicem dicat diaconus. Nim hin und trink, das ist das blut des neuen testaments, das fur deine sunde vergossen ist.

Thereupon shall be begun the responsory Discubuit Jesus in Latin; and if the communicants were many, so that it might not suffice therewith, one shall begin to sing to the people in German "Gott sei gelobet" or "Jesus Christus, unser Heiland"; one of which songs, even though the Discubuit suffice, shall nevertheless be sung after the communion. Now the communicants approach, and when the Lord's body is reached to them, let the priest say: Take and eat, this is the body of Christ, which is given for thee. At the cup let the deacon say: Take and drink, this is the blood of the new testament, which is shed for thy sins.

Note. The communion formula is Lutheran, not Roman. Corpus Domini nostri ... custodiat is not used. The Latin responsory Discubuit Jesus (from the Maundy Thursday office) serves as the communion chant.

12.8 Thanksgiving and the two Latin ablution prayers

Deinde vertens se ad populum legat sequentem graciaram actionem. Last uns bitten. O almechtiger ewiger gott, wir sagen deiner göttlichen mildigkeit lob und dank, das du uns mit deinem heilsamen fleisch und blut deines einigen sons Jesu Christi, unsers herrn, gespeiset und getrenket hast, und bitten dich demütiglich, du wollest durch deinen heiligen geist in uns wirken, wie wir dis heilig sacrament mit dem munde haben empfangen, das wir auch also dein göttlich gnad, vergebung der sunden, vereinigung mit Christo und ewigs leben, so darinnen angezeigt und zugesagt ist, mit festem glauben mögen begreifen und ewiglich behalten. Wir danken dir auch, allmechtiger gott, das du uns durch diese heilsame gabe des leibes und bluts Christi, deines sons, hast erquicket, und bitten dein barmherzigkeit, das du uns solchs gedeihen lassest zum starken glauben gegen dir und zu brünstiger lieb unter uns allen, durch unsern herrn Jesum Christum, deinen son, der mit dir in ewigkeit des heiligen geists lebt und herschet, warer gott imer und ewiglich, amen. Deinde inclinet se et dicat. Corpus tuum domine quod nos peccatores sumpsimus, et calix quem potauimus, adhaereat visceribus nostris, et praesta omnipotens deus, ut ibi nulla remaneat peccati macula, ubi tua pura et sancta introierunt sacramenta, per eundem Christum dominum nostrum. Quod ore sumpsimus domine pura mente capiamus, et fiat nobis remedium sempiternum, per Christum dominum nostrum.

Then turning to the people let him read the following thanksgiving. Let us pray. O almighty, everlasting God, we give praise and thanks unto thy divine bounty that thou hast fed us and given us to drink with the wholesome flesh and blood of thine only Son Jesus Christ our Lord; and we humbly beseech thee that thou wouldest work in us by thy Holy Spirit, that as we have received this holy sacrament with the mouth, so we may also with firm faith apprehend and for ever retain thy divine grace, forgiveness of sins, union with Christ and everlasting life, which are therein set forth and promised. We thank thee also, almighty God, that thou hast refreshed us through this wholesome gift of the body and blood of Christ thy Son; and we beseech thy mercy that thou wouldest let the same prosper in us unto strong faith toward thee and unto fervent love among us all; through our Lord Jesus Christ thy Son, who with thee in eternity [read: unity] of the Holy Ghost liveth and reigneth, true God, ever and eternally. Amen. Then let him bow and say: May thy body, O Lord, which we sinners have received, and the cup which we have drunk, cleave unto our inward parts; and grant, O almighty God, that no stain of sin may remain there where thy pure and holy sacraments have entered; through the same Christ our Lord. What we have received with the mouth, O Lord, may we take with a pure mind, and may it be unto us an everlasting remedy; through Christ our Lord.

Note.

- The German thanksgiving. It comes from Brandenburg-Nürnberg 1533. "In ewigkeit des heiligen geists" is evidently a slip for "in einigkeit"; Pfalz-Neuburg reads einigkeit.
- The two Latin prayers. They are the priest's prayers at the ablutions.
 - Corpus tuum is in the plural, with the wording "ut ibi nulla remaneat peccati macula, ubi ... pura et sancta introierunt sacramenta". The Tridentine text reads "ut in me non remaneat scelerum macula, quem pura et sancta refecerunt sacramenta".
 - Quod ore sumpsimus lacks et de munere temporalis. Pfalz-Neuburg restores it.
- The blessing. Sehling notes that the 1540 and 1542 prints end here. The blessing printed in Mylius's edition is not in them.

13. Calenberg-Göttingen, Kirchenordnung, 1542

Church order of Duchess Elisabeth for the principality of Calenberg-Göttingen, drawn up by Antonius Corvinus, 1542. Sehling 6, III, pp. 813–817 (eko.db doc 2036), with the Masses for the church year on pp. 819–834 (doc 2037).

The Sacrament is taken from Brandenburg 1540 (§12), put into German throughout:

- the collect for the magistrates prayed by the priest under the Sanctus;
- the Pax Domini;
- the Brandenburg thanksgiving.

To these Göttingen adds a custodiat at the distribution, which Brandenburg lacks.

Brandenburg's Latin Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti becomes a German postcommunion collect. The proper Masses for the church year take many of their introits, collects, readings and Prefaces from Müntzer's German Mass (§4). Sehling's notes to doc 2037 say so at each place, e.g. p. 821 n. 84: "Vgl. dieselbe Präfation bei Müntzer, Deutsch ev. messe v. 1524". The route is given in Sehling's note 26 (p. 812): "Corvinus hat hier auf dem Wege über die Erfurter Kirchenämter z. T. die Altargesänge und liturgischen Texte Thomas Müntzers übernommen". The Erfurt Kirchenamt of 1525 added a Trinity Mass to Müntzer's five, and a second Erfurt print added the Ascension, the Sacrament and the Apostles.

13.1 Offertory, Preface, Sanctus, and the collect under the Sanctus

Darnach gehet der priester wider vor den altar und singet der chor in mittler zeit: Es wolt uns Gott gnedig sein etc. ader Gott der Vater wone uns bey etc. Darnach singet der priester: Der Herre sey mit euch! Antwort der chor: Und mit deinem geiste. Darnach volget das offertorium. Anstat des offertorii sol man mit der gemein einen deutschen psalm singen. Gott sey preis von ewigkeit zu ewigkeit. Amen. Der Herre sey mit euch, und mit deinem geiste. Hebet auf euer herzen! Die erheben wir zum Herren. Lasset uns danksagen dem Herren, unserm Gotte! Das ist billich und ist recht! Warlich ist das billich und recht und heilsam, das wir dir danken, heiliger Herr, almechtiger Vater, ewiger Gott, durch Christum, unsern Herren, der das ware osterlamb ist, der ist warlich das lamb, das der welt sünde tregt, der unsern tod mit seinem sterben verstöret hat und das leben mit seiner auferstehunge erworben hat. Darumb singen wir mit seinen engeln und erzengeln deiner ehr ein lobgesang, ohn end sprechende: Das Sanctus. Jesaia dem propheten das geschach, das er im geist den Herren sitzen sach auf einem hohen thron in hellem glanz, seines kleides saum den chor füllet ganz. [...] Heilig ist Gott, der Herre Zebaoth! Heilig ist Gott, der Herre Zebaoth! Heilig ist Gott, der Herre Zebaoth! Sein ehr die ganze welt erfüllet hat. [...] Unter dem Sanctus bete der priester dieser oration oder collecten eine. Für die oberkeit. Barmherziger himlischer Vater, in welches hende aller menschen gewalt und oberkeit stehen, von dir eingesetzt zur straffe der übeltheter und zum schutz der fromen, in welches hende auch stehen alle rechte und gesetze aller lender, wir bitten dich, sey gnedig unserm keiser, allen königen und fürsten, sonderlich unser landesfürstinnen und der jungen herschaft, rath und regenten dieser stad und aller ordentlicher obrigkeit, damit sie das weltliche schwerd, das du ihnen befohlen hast, recht füren mögen. Umbschetige sie mit der kraft des allerhöchsten, erleuchte und erhalt sie bey deinem göttlichen namen! Las sie dein göttlichs wort von herzen lieb haben und darüber vesthalten und sie ja dasselbige nicht lassen verfolgen. Gib ihn, lieber Herr, weisheit und einen verstand und ein friedsam regiment, auf das sie alle ihre underthan in der warheit und gerechtigkeit, die dir gefellig ist, regiren und beschirmen. Auch, mein lieber Gott, friste ihn ihr leben lang nach deinem willen. Und weil das gerichte dein ist und sie an deiner stat sitzen, gib ihn gnade, also zu regiren, das dein heiliger name durch sie geheiligt und gepreiset werde von nu an bis in ewigkeit. Das helf ihn der Herr Jhesu Christ, dein geliebter Sohn. Amen.

Thereafter the priest goeth again before the altar, and the choir singeth in the meantime: "Es wollt uns Gott genädig sein", etc., or "Gott der Vater wohn uns bei", etc. Thereafter the priest singeth: The Lord be with you! The choir answereth: And with thy spirit. Thereafter followeth the offertory. In the stead of the offertory a German psalm shall be sung with the congregation. Praise be to God from everlasting to everlasting. Amen. The Lord be with you, and with thy spirit. Lift up your hearts! We lift them up unto the Lord. Let us give thanks unto the Lord our God! That is meet and is right! Verily this is meet and right and wholesome that we should give thanks unto thee, holy Lord, almighty Father, everlasting God, through Christ our Lord, who is the true Passover lamb; he is verily the Lamb that beareth the sin of the world, who hath destroyed our death by his dying, and hath won life by his rising again. Therefore we sing with his angels and archangels a song of praise to thine honour, saying without end: The Sanctus. Isaiah the prophet, it befell him that he in the spirit saw the Lord sitting upon a high throne in bright splendour; the hem of his garment filled all the choir. [...] Holy is God, the Lord of Sabaoth! Holy is God, the Lord of Sabaoth! Holy is God, the Lord of Sabaoth! His glory hath filled the whole world. [...] Under the Sanctus let the priest pray one of these prayers or collects. For the magistrates. Merciful heavenly Father, in whose hands stand the power and authority of all men, ordained by thee for the punishment of evil-doers and for the protection of the godly; in whose hands also stand all the rights and laws of all lands: we beseech thee, be gracious unto our emperor, all kings and princes, specially unto our sovereign lady and the young lordship, the council and governors of this city and all orderly authority, that they may rightly bear the temporal sword which thou hast committed unto them. Overshadow them with the power of the Most High, enlighten them and keep them in thy divine name! Let them love thy divine word from the heart and hold fast thereby, and never suffer the same to be persecuted. Give them, dear Lord, wisdom and understanding and a peaceable government, that they may govern and defend all their subjects in the truth and righteousness that is pleasing unto thee. Also, my dear God, prolong their life according to thy will. And because the judgement is thine and they sit in thy stead, give them grace so to govern that thy holy name may be hallowed and praised through them from henceforth for evermore. This help them the Lord Jesus Christ, thy beloved Son. Amen.

Note.

- "Anstat des offertorii". The offertory keeps its name and place ("Darnach volget das offertorium") as a German hymn.
- "Gott sey preis von ewigkeit zu ewigkeit. Amen." This is Per omnia saecula saeculorum. Amen, the end of the Secret, sung before the Preface dialogue. Müntzer has it in the same place as "durch alle ewigkeit der ewigkeit. Amen" (§4.1).
- The Preface is the Easter Preface. Sehling's note refers it to the Roman Easter Preface.
- The Sanctus is Luther's German Sanctus (Deutsche Messe).
- The collect is the first of Brandenburg's four collects under the Sanctus (§12.2), adapted to a duchess-regent ("unser landesfürstinnen und der jungen herschaft"). As there, it stands in the place of the Canon's intercessions. The Masses for the church year (doc 2037) repeat it or give other collects "so der priester unter dem Sanctus betet".

13.2 Our Father, Verba, communion with the custodiat, the Peace

Last uns beten, wie uns der Herr Christus Jesus bevolen hat, das wir aus rechter zuversicht und vertrauen dorfen sagen: Vater unser, der du bist im himel, geheiligt werde dein nahme, zukom dein reich, dein will geschehe als im hymel und auf erden. Unser teglich brod gib uns heute, und vergib uns unser schulde, als wir vergeben unsern schuldigern! Und führ uns nicht in versuchung, sondern erlöse uns von dem übel; denn dein ist das reich und die kraft und die herligkeit in ewigkeit. Amen. Verba consecrationis. Unser Herr Jhesus in der nacht, da er verrhaten ward, nam er das brod, danket seinem himlischen Vater und brachs und gabs seinen jüngern und sprach: Nemet hin und esset, das ist mein leib, der fur euch dargegeben wird, das thut zu meinem gedechtnis. Desselbigengleichen nam er auch den kelch nach dem abentmal, danket und gab den seinen jüngern und sprach: Trinket alle daraus, das ist mein blut des neuen testamentes, das vor euch und vor vil vergossen wird zur vergebung der sünden, solchs thut, so oft ihrs trinkt, zu meinem gedechtnis! Hiemach sol der priester den leuchten das sacrament reichen und sagen: Nim hin und iss, das ist der leib Christi, der vor dich gegeben ist, der behüte deine sele zum ewigen leben. Amen. Nim hin und trink, das ist das blut des neuen testaments, das vor deine sünde vergossen ist, das sterke deine sehle zum ewigen leben. Amen. Und sing man indes das Discubuit odder Jhesus Christus, unser heiland etc. oder Gott sey gelobet. Wenn die letzten zugehen, so beschliesse der chor mit demselbigen versen. Darnach singe der priester: Der friede des Herrn sey mit euch! Der chor singt: Und mit deinem geiste!

Let us pray, as the Lord Christ Jesus hath commanded us, that out of right confidence and trust we may be bold to say: Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors! And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen. The words of consecration. Our Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was betrayed, took the bread, gave thanks unto his heavenly Father, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take and eat, this is my body, which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner he took also the cup after the supper, gave thanks, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Drink ye all of it, this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for you and for many for the forgiveness of sins; this do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me! Hereafter the priest shall give the sacrament to the people and say: Take and eat, this is the body of Christ, which is given for thee; the same preserve thy soul unto everlasting life. Amen. Take and drink, this is the blood of the new testament, which is shed for thy sins; the same strengthen thy soul unto everlasting life. Amen. And meanwhile let the Discubuit be sung, or "Jesus Christus unser Heiland", etc., or "Gott sei gelobet". When the last go up, let the choir close with the same verses. Thereafter let the priest sing: The peace of the Lord be with you! The choir singeth: And with thy spirit!

Note.

- The Our Father. Brandenburg's recast Praeceptis salutaribus (§12.4) is kept.
- The custodiat. "der behüte deine sele zum ewigen leben" is the custodiat. "das sterke deine sehle" varies it for the cup. Brandenburg's own formula ("Nim hin und iss ...") has no custodiat.
- The Pax Domini follows the communion, as a greeting of peace before the thanksgiving. The Roman response is kept.
- The communion chant. Discubuit Iesus is the responsory that Brandenburg also prescribes (§12.7).

13.3 Thanksgiving, Agnus Dei, and Qui dixisti as the final collect

Hir auf volgt die danksagung, so man in allen messen nach geschעהner communion thun sol, und keret sich der priester zu dem volk und spricht: O almechtiger, ewiger Gott, wir sagen deiner göttlicher mildigkeit lob und dank, das du uns mit deinem heilsamen fleisch und blut deines einigen Sons Jhesu Christi, unsers Herrn, gespeiset und getrenket hast, und bitten dich demütiglich, du wollest durch deinen heiligen Geist in uns wirken, wie wir diss heilige sacrament mit dem munde haben entpfangen, das wir auch also deine göttliche gnaden, vergebung der sünden, voreinigung mit Christo und ewiges leben, so darinnen angezeigt und zugesagt ist, mit festem glauben mögen begreifen und ewiglich behalten. Wir danken dir auch, almechtiger Gott, das du uns durch die heilsame gabe deines leibes und bluts hast erquicket, und bitten dein barmherzigkeit, das du uns solchs gedeien lassest zu starkem glauben gegen dir und zu brünstiger liebe gegen uns allen durch unsern Herrn Jhesum Christum, deinen Sohn, der mit dir in ewigkeit des heiligen Geists lebt und herschet, warer Gott ymmer und ewiglich. Amen. Gehet hin im frieden! Das Agnus Dei. O lamb Gottes unschuldig, am stam des kreuzs geschlachtet, allezeit gefunden düldig, wiewol du werst verachtet, all sund hastu getragen, sonst müsten wir verzagen, erbarm dich unser, o Jhesu! Hieauf volgt die collect, die singet der priester. O Herr Jhesu Christe, der du deinen apostelen gesagt hast: Meinen friden geb ich euch, meinen friden lass ich euch!, wollest unser sünde nicht gedenken, sonder ansehen den glauben deiner gemein. Die wöllestu im friden erhalten, bewaren und regiren, der du mit dem Vater und dem heiligen Geiste, warer Gott, herrschest und regirest in ewigkeit. Amen. Hienach volget die benedictio: Der Herre segne dich und behüte dich! Der Herre erleuchte sein angesicht über dir und sey dir gnedig! Der Herre hebe sein angesicht auf dich und gebe dir friede! Singet der priester: Lasset uns den Herren preisen, alleluja! Der chor: Danket dem Herren, alleluja! Beschliesse mit dem Da pacem, Verley uns friden etc. mit der collecten.

Hereupon followeth the thanksgiving, which shall be made in all Masses after the communion is done; and the priest turneth to the people and saith: O almighty, everlasting God, we give praise and thanks unto thy divine bounty, that thou hast fed and given us to drink with the wholesome flesh and blood of thine only Son Jesus Christ, our Lord; and we humbly beseech thee that thou wouldest work in us by thy Holy Ghost, that as we have received this holy sacrament with the mouth, so we may also lay hold on thy divine grace, forgiveness of sins, union with Christ and everlasting life, which are therein shown and promised, with firm faith, and keep them for ever. We thank thee also, almighty God, that thou hast refreshed us through the wholesome gift of thy body and blood; and we beseech thy mercy that thou wouldest let it prosper unto us to strong faith toward thee and to fervent love toward us all; through our Lord Jesus Christ, thy Son, who with thee in the eternity of the Holy Ghost liveth and reigneth, true God, ever and everlastingly. Amen. Go in peace! The Agnus Dei. O Lamb of God, unspotted, slain upon the tree of the cross, found patient at all times, although thou wast despised; all sins hast thou borne, else must we have despaired; have mercy upon us, O Jesu! Hereupon followeth the collect, which the priest singeth. O Lord Jesu Christ, who hast said to thine apostles: My peace I give unto you, my peace I leave with you!, vouchsafe not to remember our sins, but look upon the faith of thy congregation; which vouchsafe thou to keep in peace, to preserve and to govern; who with the Father and the Holy Ghost, true God, rulest and reignest for ever. Amen. Hereafter followeth the blessing: The Lord bless thee and keep thee! The Lord make his face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee! The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace! The priest singeth: Let us praise the Lord, alleluia! The choir: Give thanks unto the Lord, alleluia! Let him conclude with the Da pacem, "Verleih uns Frieden", etc., with the collect.

Note.

- The thanksgiving is Brandenburg's, made of two parts (§12.8). Brandenburg's Latin ablution prayers after it are dropped.
- "Gehet hin im frieden!" is Ite, missa est in German.
- The Agnus Dei is Decius' hymn, moved after the thanksgiving.
- The final collect is Domine Iesu Christe, qui dixisti in German. It is the priest's prayer for the peace of the Church, said in the Roman Mass before the kiss of peace and kept by Brandenburg in Latin before communion (§12.5). Sehling's note: "Die folgende Kollekte ist in der KO für die Mark Brandenburg von 1540 ... in lat. Fassung enthalten. Vgl. dazu Röm. Meßbuch ... (Ordo Missae, Friedensgebet)". Here it becomes a collect sung aloud to close the Mass.
 - The verbs "erhalten, bewaren und regiren" follow Brandenburg's pacificare custodire ... regere (§12.5).
 - "den glauben deiner gemein" puts "congregation" for ecclesiae tuae.
- The Easter Benedicamus. "Lasset uns den Herren preisen, alleluja / Danket dem Herren, alleluja" is the Easter Benedicamus Domino, alleluia / Deo gratias, alleluia.

13.4 From the Masses for the church year

The proper Masses (doc 2037) end with proper collects in the same slot. For Whitsun it is Müntzer's closing prayer (Sehling: "Kollekte aus Müntzers Deutsch ev. messe v. 1524"), which is a German version of the Roman Whitsun postcommunion Sancti Spiritus, Domine, corda nostra mundet infusio: et sui roris intima aspersione fecundet (§4.4):

O Herr, verleihe uns die gnad des heiligen Geists, auf das der tau deiner güte unsern grund des herzens in seiner besprengung fruchtbar mache [...].

O Lord, grant us the grace of the Holy Ghost, that the dew of thy goodness may make the ground of our heart fruitful by its sprinkling [...].

14. Pfalz-Neuburg, Kirchenordnung, 1543

Church order of Count Palatine Ottheinrich, 1543. Sehling 13, l.2, pp. 70–76 (Mass). Canon critique: pp. 64–65, Appendix.

Sehling notes that the Mass follows Brandenburg-Nürnberg 1533, with additions from Brandenburg 1540. Its shape differs from both in three ways:

1. No Preface. Osiander's exhortation is moved to before the consecration.
2. A new prayer over the elements. Before the Verba the priest says Osiander's newly written prayer over the hosts and cup. In it he "brings before thy divine majesty these thy gifts, bread and wine". It serves as both an offertory and an epiclesis.
3. The Sanctus after the Verba. The Sanctus follows the Verba, and the Brandenburg collects are said under it.

After the Our Father, the Brandenburg Latin prayers follow. There are two changes to them: Fili Dei vivi reads "ecclesiam tuam vivificasti", and Sacramentum corporis adds "et sanguinis".

14.1 Creed, sermon, and the exhortation before the Lord's Supper

Nach dem evangelio sol der priester das Credo und der chor das Patrem lateinisch singen oder, wo kein chor ist, mag es der priester selbs singen oder sprechen und das volk dieweil das teutsch gesang: Wir glauben all in einen Gott lassen singen. [...] Wo man nun unter der messe prediget, da soll der priester alsbald nach der predig wider uber den altar gehn und, damit das volk dester fleißiger und andechtiger alles, was hernach folget, vernehme, sol er oder einer aus den ministranten, wann man die hat, nachfolgende vermanung gegen dem volk lesen. Vermanung vor dem abendmal. Ir allerliebsten in Got! Dieweil wir jetzo das heilig abendmal unsers Herrn Jesu Christi wöllen bedenken und halten, darin er uns sein fleisch zu einer speis und sein blut zu einem trank, den glauben darmit zu sterken, gegeben hat, sollen wir billich mit großem fleiß ein jeder sich selbs prüfen, wie uns der heilig Paulus vermanet; dann dis heilig sacrament ist zu einem sonderm trost und sterk gegeben den armen, betrübten gewissen, die ire sünd empfinden und bekennen, Gottis zorn und den tod fürchten und nach der gerechtigkeit hungerig und durstig sein. So wir aber uns selbs prüfen und ein jeder in sein eigen gewissen gehet, wie uns der heilig Paulus lehret, werden wir gewißlich nicht anders finden, dann allerlei greuliche sünd und den tod, den wir mit der sünd verschuldet haben, und können doch uns selbs in keinen weg daraus helfen. Darumb hat unser lieber Herr Jesus Christus sich über uns erbarmet und ist umb unserer sünde willen mensch worden, auf das er das gesetz und allen willen Gottis für uns und uns zu gut erfüllet und den tod und alles, was wir mit unsern sünden verschuldet hetten, für uns und zu unserer erledigung auf sich neme und erlitte. Und auf das wir das je festiglich glauben und durch den glauben frölich in seinem willen möchten leben, nam er nach dem abendmal das brot, sagte dank, brachs und sprach: Nembt hin und esset! Das ist mein leib, der für euch dargegeben wirt, das ist: Das ich mensch bin worden und alles, das ich tue und leide, ist alles euer eigen, für euch und euch zu gut geschehen. Des zu einem gewissen anzeigen und zeugnus gib ich euch mein leib zur speise. Desselben gleichen nam er auch den kelch und sprach: Nempt hin und trinket aus disem alle! Das ist der kelch des neuen testaments in meinem blut. So oft ir das tut, solt ir mein darbei gedenken. Das ist: Dieweil ich mich euer angenommen und euer sünd auf mich geladen hab, will ich mich selbs für die sünd in tod opfern, mein blut vergießen, genad und vergebung der sünd erwerben und also ein neu testament aufrichten, darin die sünd vergeben und ewig nicht mer soll gedacht werden. Des zu einem gewissen anzeigen und zeugnus gib ich euch mein blut zu trinken. Wer nun also von disem brot isset und von disem kelch trinkt, auch disen worten, die er von Christo höret, und disen zeichen, die er von Christo empfhathet, festiglich glaubet, der bleibt in dem Herrn Christo und Christus in im und wirt ewiglich leben. Darbei sollen wir nun sein gedenken und seinen tod verkündigen, nemlich, das er für unser sünd sei gestorben und zu unserer rechtfertigung wider auferstanden, und ihm darumb danken, ein jeder sein creuz auf sich nemen und im nachfolgen und nach seinem gebot einander lieben, wie er uns geliebt hat; dann wir sein alle ein brot und ein leib, dieweil wir alle eins brots theilhaftig sein und aus einem kelch trinken.

After the Gospel the priest shall sing the Credo and the choir the Patrem in Latin; or, where there is no choir, the priest may himself sing or say it, and meanwhile let the people sing the German song "Wir glauben all an einen Gott". [...] Where now one preacheth during the Mass, the priest shall forthwith after the sermon go again to the altar; and, that the people may the more diligently and devoutly perceive all that followeth, he, or one of the ministers if there be any, shall read the following exhortation toward the people. Exhortation before the Supper.

Dearly beloved in God! Forasmuch as we will now consider and keep the holy supper of our Lord Jesus Christ, wherein he hath given us his flesh for a meat and his blood for a drink, therewith to strengthen faith, we ought rightly every one with great diligence to examine himself, as the holy Paul exhorteth us; for this holy sacrament is given for a special comfort and strength unto the poor, troubled consciences which feel and confess their sins, fear God's wrath and death, and are hungry and thirsty after righteousness. But when we examine ourselves, and every one goeth into his own conscience, as the holy Paul teacheth us, we shall surely find nothing else but all manner of horrible sin, and death, which we have deserved with sin; and yet we cannot in any wise help ourselves out thereof. Therefore hath our dear Lord Jesus Christ had mercy upon us, and for our sins' sake is become man, to the end that he might fulfil the law and all the will of God for us and for our good, and take upon himself and suffer death and all that we had deserved with our sins, for us and for our deliverance. And to the end that we might steadfastly believe this, and through faith live joyfully in his will, he took after the supper the bread, gave thanks, brake it, and said: Take and eat! This is my body, which is given for you; that is: that I am become man, and all that I do and suffer is all your own, done for you and for your good. For a sure token and witness whereof I give you my body for meat. Likewise he took also the cup, and said: Take and drink ye all of this! This is the cup of the new testament in my blood. As oft as ye do this, ye shall remember me thereby. That is: forasmuch as I have taken your cause upon me and laden your sins upon myself, I will offer myself unto death for sin, shed my blood, obtain grace and forgiveness of sins, and so set up a new testament, wherein sins are forgiven and shall be remembered no more for ever. For a sure token and witness whereof I give you my blood to drink. Whosoever now eateth thus of this bread and drinketh of this cup, and firmly believeth these words which he heareth of Christ and these signs which he receiveth of Christ, he dwelleth in the Lord Christ and Christ in him, and shall live for ever. Hereby shall we now remember him and show forth his death, namely that he died for our sins and rose again for our justification, and give him thanks therefor; every one take up his cross and follow him, and according to his commandment love one another, as he hath loved us: for we are all one bread and one body, seeing we are all partakers of one bread and drink of one cup.

Note. This is the Brandenburg text (§12.6), which Sehling traces from 1540 back to 1533. It is moved from before the distribution to before the consecration. There are two changes:

- The cup word stops at "in meinem blut". It lacks "das fur euch und fur viel vergossen wird zu vergebung der sunden".
- The consciences "feel and confess" their sins ("empfinden und bekennen").

14.2 Osiander's prayer over the hosts and cup (offertory and epiclesis)

Nach diser vermanung sol der priester uber die hostien und den kelch, die nach anzal und gelegenheit der personen, so zum heiligen sacrament gehn wöllen, auf den altar verordnet sein sollen, dises nachfolgendes gebet sprechen: Gebet. Herr Jesu Christe, du einiger warer son des lebendigen Gottis, der du dein leib fur uns alle in den bitteren tod hast dargeben und dein bluot zu vergebung unserer sund vergossen, darzu denselben dein leib und dasselbig dein bluot allen deinen jungern zu essen und zu trinken und deines tods darbei zu gedenken hast befolhen. Wir bringen fur deine götliche majestat dise deine gaben, brot und wein, und bitten, du wöllest dieselben durch dein götliche gnad, gute und kraft heiligen, segnen und schaffen, das dises brot dein leib und diser wein dein blut sei, und allen denen, die darvon essen und trinken, zum ewigen leben lassen gedeihen, der du mit Got dem Vater in einigkeit des Heiligen Geists lebst und regirest immer und ewiglich. Amen.

After this exhortation the priest shall say this following prayer over the hosts and the cup, which shall be set upon the altar according to the number and occasion of the persons that will go to the holy sacrament: Prayer. Lord Jesus Christ, thou only true Son of the living God, who hast given thy body for us all into the bitter death, and shed thy blood for the forgiveness of our sins, and hast moreover commanded all thy disciples to eat the same thy body and to drink the same thy blood, and therewith to remember thy death: we bring before thy divine majesty these thy gifts, bread and wine, and beseech thee that thou wouldest, by thy divine grace, goodness and power, hallow and bless the same, and make that this bread be thy body and this wine thy blood, and let them prosper unto everlasting life unto all them that eat and drink thereof; who with God the Father in the unity of the Holy Ghost livest and reignest ever and eternally. Amen.

Note. Sehling calls this an offertory prayer newly written by Osiander, and cites Graff's study of the epiclesis in Reformation orders. Addressed to Christ, not to the Father, it gathers four parts of the Canon into one prayer said over the elements:

Osiander 1543	Roman source
"Herr Jesu Christe, du einiger warer son des lebendigen Gottis"	Domine Iesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi
"Wir bringen fur deine götliche majestat dise deine gaben, brot und wein"	Unde et memores: offerimus praeclarae maiestati tuae de tuis donis ac datis; also Te igitur: haec dona, haec munera
"du wöllest dieselben ... heiligen, segnen und schaffen, das dises brot dein leib und diser wein dein blut sei"	Quam oblationem: benedictam ... facere digneris, ut nobis Corpus et Sanguis fiat

Osiander 1543Roman source

"allen denen, die darvon essen und trinken, zum ewigen leben lassen gedeihen"

Supplices: ut quotquot ex hac altaris participatione ... sumpserimus, omni benedictione caelesti et gratia repleamur

It meets the demand of the critique printed earlier in the same order (Appendix) only half-way. The verb there objected to, opfern, becomes bringen ... fur deine göttliche majestat, and the gifts are "thy gifts, bread and wine", not the body and blood.

14.3 The Verba, sung, with elevation

Alsobald nach disem gebet sol er anfahren, die verba consecrationis zu singen oder mit lauter, wolvernemlicher stimme zu sprechen, wie er andre gesang vormals gesungen oder gesprochen hat, wie hernach folget, und sol sich fleißigen, das seine geberd mit den worten sich vergleichen, das ist: Wann er singt: Nam er das brot..., so sol er auch die großen hostien nemen und seiner brust gleich halten, bis die wort volendet sein. Desgleichen, wenn er singt: Nam er den kelch..., sol er mit dem kelch auch also tun, wie vorgemelt ist. Unser Herr Jesus in der nacht, da er verraten ward, nam er das brot, danket und brachs und gabs seinen jungern und sprach: Nembt hin und esset! Das ist mein leib, der für euch gegeben wirt. Das tut zu meinem gedechtnus! Hie sol er die großen hostia mit geneigtem haupt aufheben und dem volk zaigen, darnach auch den kelch nemen und halten, bis er die folgenden wort singt oder spricht: Desselben gleichen nam er auch den kelch nach dem abendmal und danket und gab in den und sprach: Trinkt alle daraus! Das ist mein blut des neuen testamentes, das für euch und fur vil vergossen wird zu vergebung der sünden. Solchs tut, so oft irs trinkt, zu meinem gedechtnus! Hie sol er den kelch auch aufheben und dem volk zaigen.

As soon as this prayer is ended he shall begin to sing the words of consecration, or to say them with a loud, well-audible voice, as he hath aforetime sung or said other chants, as hereafter followeth; and he shall take care that his gestures agree with the words; that is, when he singeth "He took the bread ...", he shall also take the large host and hold it level with his breast until the words be ended. Likewise, when he singeth "He took the cup ...", he shall do so with the cup also, as aforesaid. Our Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was betrayed, took the bread, gave thanks, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, and said: Take and eat! This is my body, which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me! Here he shall lift up the large host with bowed head and show it to the people; thereafter take also the cup and hold it, until he sing or say the following words: Likewise also he took the cup after the supper, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, and said: Drink ye all of it! This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins. This do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me! Here he shall lift up the cup also and show it to the people.

Note. The Verba are sung to the Our Father tone, following Luther's suggestion in the Formula missae and the Nürnberg melody of 1533. The large host is kept, a relic of the Roman fraction host. The elevation is kept, with a bowed head.

14.4 Sanctus with three collects

Darnach sol der chor das Sanctus lateinisch singen oder, wo kein chor ist, mag es der priester selbs singen oder sprechen und anstatt desselben das volk darfur ein gut teutsch geistlich lied lassen singen, und unter demselben gesang sol er dieweil dise nachfolgende gebet sprechen. Folgen die gebet, so der priester unter oder nach dem Sanctus sprechen sol. Fur die weltlichen obrigkeit. Barmherziger, himlischer Vater, in welches hende aller menschlicher gewalt und obrigkeit stehet, von dir eingesetzt zur straf der ubelteter und zum schutz der frommen, in welches hende auch stehn alle recht und gesetz aller lender! Wir bitten dich, sei gnedig unserm herrn keiser, allen königen und fürsten, sonderlich unserm landsfürsten und herrn N. und dem rat und regenten diser statt und aller ordenlichen obrigkeit, damit sie das weltliche schwert, das du inen befohlen hast, recht füren mögen. Umbschatte sie mit der kraft deiner götlichen majestat! Erleucht und erhalt sie bei deinem götlichen namen! Laß sie dein göttlich wort von herzen lieb haben und sich demselbigen unterwerfen! Gib inen, lieber Herr, weisheit und verstand und ein fridsam regiment, auf das sie alle ire untönen in der warheit und gerechtigkeit, die dir gefällig ist, regirn und beschirmen! Friste in auch, mein lieber Got, ir leben lang nach deinem willen und, dieweil das gericht dein ist und sie an deiner statt sitzen, so gib in gnad, also zu regirn, das dein heiliger name durch sie geheiligt und gepreiset werde von nun an bis in ewigkeit! Amen.

Für die diener des worts. O allmechtiger, gütiger Gott und Vater unsers Herren Jesu Christi, der uns ernstlich befohlen hat, das wir dich umb arbeiter in dein ernt bitten sollen! Wir bitten dein grundlose barmherzigkeit, du wöllest uns rechtgeschaffene lerer und diener deines götlichen worts zuschicken und denselben dein heilsames wort in ir herz und mund geben, das sie deinen befelch treulich ausrichten und nichts predigen, das deinem heiligen wort entgegen sei, auf das wir durch dein himelisch, ewig wort ermanet, gelert, gespeist, getröst und gesterkt werden und tun, was dir gefellig und uns fruchtbarlich ist. Gib, Herr, deiner heiligen christenheit deinen Geist und götliche weisheit, das dein wort unter uns lauf und wachs und mit aller freidigkeit, wie sichs gebürt, gepredigt und dein heilige, christliche gemein dardurch gebessert werd, auf das wir mit bestendigem glauben dir dienen und in erkanntnus deines namens bis ans ende verharren.

Umb christliche einigkeit. Barmherziger Got und ewiger Vater, ein könig der ehren und ein herr himels und der erden, durch welches Geist alle ding regirt, durch welches fürsehung alle ding geordnet werden! Du bist ein Got des frides, von dem alle einigkeit zu uns kompt. Wir bitten dich, du wöllest uns unser sünd vergeben und mit deinem götlichen frid und einigkeit begnaden, damit wir in forcht und zittern deinem namen immer und ewiglich dienen und dein götliche majestat allzeit von uns gepreist werde, durch unsern Herrn Jesum Christum, deinen son, der mit dir in einigkeit des Heiligen Geists lebt und regirt immer und ewiglich. Amen.

Thereafter the choir shall sing the Sanctus in Latin; or, where there is no choir, the priest may himself sing or say it, and in place thereof let the people sing a good German spiritual song; and under the same singing he shall meanwhile say these following prayers. There follow the prayers which the priest shall say under or after the Sanctus. For the temporal magistrates. Merciful heavenly Father, in whose hands standeth all power and authority of men, ordained of thee for the punishment of evildoers and the protection of the godly, in whose hands also stand all the rights and laws of all lands: we beseech thee, be gracious unto our lord the Emperor, all kings and princes, especially unto our prince and lord of the land N., and unto the council and rulers of this city and all lawful magistrates, that they may rightly bear the temporal sword which thou hast committed unto them. Overshadow them with the power of thy divine Majesty; enlighten them and keep them in thy divine name; let them love thy divine word from the heart and submit themselves thereto. Give them, dear Lord, wisdom and understanding and a peaceable government, that they may rule and defend all their subjects in the truth and righteousness that is well-pleasing unto thee. Also, my dear God, prolong their life according to thy will; and forasmuch as the judgement is thine and they sit in thy stead, give them grace so to rule that thy holy name may be hallowed and praised through them, from henceforth even for ever. Amen.

For the ministers of the word. O almighty, gracious God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath earnestly commanded us that we should pray thee for labourers into thine harvest: we beseech thy bottomless mercy that thou wouldest send us right and true teachers and ministers of thy divine word, and give thy wholesome word into their heart and mouth, that they may faithfully perform thy commandment and preach nothing that is contrary to thy holy word; to the end that we, being by thy heavenly, eternal word admonished, taught, fed, comforted and strengthened, may do that which is well-pleasing unto thee and profitable unto us. Give, O Lord, unto thy holy Christendom thy Spirit and divine wisdom, that thy word may run and grow among us and be preached with all boldness, as it becometh, and that thy holy Christian congregation may be bettered thereby; that we may serve thee with steadfast faith and continue in the knowledge of thy name unto the end.

For Christian unity. Merciful God and everlasting Father, a King of glory and a Lord of heaven and of earth, by whose Spirit all things are governed, by whose providence all things are ordered: thou art a God of peace, from whom all unity cometh unto us. We beseech thee that thou wouldest forgive us our sins and endue us with thy divine peace and unity, that we may serve thy name in fear and trembling for ever and ever, and thy divine Majesty be praised of us evermore; through our Lord Jesus Christ thy Son, who with thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost liveth and reigneth ever and eternally. Amen.

Note. These are Brandenburg's first three collects (§12.2), with two changes to the collect for the magistrates:

- "Umschatte sie mit der kraft deiner götlichen majestat" replaces "mit der kraft des allerhöchsten". It removes the Marian echo of Luke 1:35.
- "Sich demselbigen unterwerfen" replaces "darüber fest halten und sie ja dasselbig nicht lassen verfolgen". The magistrates are to submit to the Word, not merely protect it.

Brandenburg's fourth, penitential collect is dropped. Sehling's note on this passage explains the placing: "Diese Gebete sind an die Stelle der in der römischen Messe teils vor teils nach der Konsekration gesprochenen Fürbittgebete gesetzt. Sie wurden sonst in evangelischen Kirchenordnungen ohne Ersatz gestrichen, weil sie den von der Reformation abgelehnten Opfercharakter der Messe zur Grundlage haben." In other words, elsewhere the Canon's intercessions were cut without replacement, because they rest on the sacrificial character of the Mass.

14.5 Our Father and the Peace

Wann dann das Sanctus oder andrer gesang geendet und dise gebet gesprochen sein, so sol er das Vater unser singen oder mit lauter stimme sprechen, wie hernach folget: Last uns beten! Vater unser, der du bist im himel, geheiligt werd dein name! Zukom dein reich! Dein will geschehe als im himel auch auf erden! Unser teglich brot gib uns heut! Und vergib uns unser schulde, als wir vergeben unseren schuldigern! Und für uns nicht in versuchung, sonder erlös uns vom ubel! Dann dein ist das reich und die kraft und die herlichkeit in ewigkeit. Chorus: Amen. Darnach wende er sich zum volk. Der frid des Herren sei mit euch allen! Chorus: Amen.

When then the Sanctus or other singing is ended and these prayers are said, he shall sing the Our Father or say it with a loud voice, as hereafter followeth: Let us pray! Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Choir: Amen. Thereafter let him turn to the people. The peace of the Lord be with you all! Choir: Amen.

Note. Of Praeceptis salutaribus only Oremus is left. There is no embolism.

14.6 Agnus Dei and the priest's three prayers (Latin)

*Darnach sol der chor oder, wo kein chor ist, der priester selbs das Agnus Dei, wie der brauch ist, singen oder aber sprechen und die weil das volk abermals ein gut teutsch geistlich gesang lassen singen, und unter demselbigen sol der priester auch dise nachvolgende gebet sprechen. Agnus Dei, qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis! Agnus Dei, qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis! Agnus Dei, qui tollis peccata mundi, dona nobis pacem! Domine Jesu Christe, qui dixisti apostolis tuis: Pacem meam do vobis, pacem relinquo vobis, ne respicias peccata mea, sed fidem ecclesiae tuae, eamque secundum voluntatem tuam pacificare, custodire, adjuvare et regere digneris, qui cum Deo Patre et Spiritu Sancto vivis ac regnas, Deus per omnia secula seculorum! Amen. Alia oratio: Domine Jesu Christe, fili Dei vivi, qui ex voluntate Patris cooperante Spiritu Sancto ecclesiam tuam vivificasti. Libera nos per hoc sacrosanctum corpus et sanguinem tuum ab omnibus iniquitatibus et universis malis nostris et fac, nos semper obedire mandatis, et a tua misericordia nunquam in perpetuum separari permittas, qui vivis ac regnas, Deus per omnia secula seculorum! Amen. Alia oratio: Sacramentum corporis et sanguinis tui, Domine Jesu Christe, quod nos indigni sumere cupimus, non nobis proveniat in iudicium et condemnationem, sed pro tua pietate prosit nobis ad tutamen mentis et corporis et ad medelam percipiendam, qui vivis et regnas cum Deo Patre in unitate Spiritus Sancti, Deus per omnia secula seculorum! Amen.*

*Thereafter the choir, or, where there is no choir, the priest himself shall sing or else say the Agnus Dei, as the custom is, and meanwhile let the people again sing a good German spiritual song; and under the same the priest shall also say these following prayers. O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us! O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us! O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, grant us peace! O Lord Jesus Christ, who saidst unto thine apostles, My peace I give unto you, peace I leave with you: regard not my sins, but the faith of thy Church; and vouchsafe to pacify, keep, help and govern her according to thy will; who with God the Father and the Holy Ghost livest and reignest, God, world without end! Amen. Another prayer: O Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, who by the will of the Father, the Holy Ghost working with thee, hast given life to thy Church: deliver us by this thy most holy body and blood from all iniquities and all our evils, and make us ever to obey thy commandments, and suffer us never to be separated from thy mercy for evermore; who livest and reignest, God, world without end! Amen. Another prayer: Let the sacrament of thy body and blood, O Lord Jesus Christ, which we unworthy desire to receive, not turn to us unto judgement and condemnation; but of thy goodness let it profit us unto the defence of mind and body, and unto the obtaining of healing; who livest and reignest with God the Father in the unity of the Holy Ghost, God, world without end! Amen.*

Note. These are the Brandenburg prayers (§12.5), with three changes:

1. Fili Dei vivi. "Per mortem propriam mundum vivificasti" becomes "ecclesiam tuam vivificasti". The phrase about Christ's own death goes, and the world becomes thy Church.
2. Perceptio. "Corporis et sanguinis tui" adds the cup, which fits communion in both kinds.
3. The rubric. All three may be said, each marked Alia oratio.

14.7 Communion

Darnach sollen zum sacrament gehn alle, die sich vor angesagt und die absolution empfangen haben, und der priester sol inen den leib des Herrn reichen mit disen Worten: Nimm hin und iß! Das ist der leib Christi, der für dich gegeben ist. Desgleichen, wo man ministranten hat, sol der diaconus den kelch reichen denen, so den leib Christi genossen haben, und also sprechen: Nimm hin und trink! Das ist das blut des neuen testaments, das für dein sünd vergossen ist. Wo man aber nit ministranten hat, da sol der priester den leib des Herrn erstlich jederman reichen und darnach erst den kelch und, dieweil das geschicht, sol der chor das commun lateinisch singen und, wann es zu kurz were, ander gut lateinisch gesang mer, sonderlich, was de coena Domini ist, als das responsorium Discubuit Jesus. Wo aber kein chor ist, sol man die gemein abermals ein gut deutsch geistlich gesang, als da ist: Jesus Christus unser Heiland..., oder aber: Gott sei gelobet und gebenedeiet... oder ein andern gesang, der sich nach gelegenheit der zeit schicket, lassen singen. Wann nun jederman das heilig sacrament hat empfangen, so sol es dann der priester auch empfangen. Und, wiewol er von anfang sol fleiß haben, das er alle ding dermaßen verordne und in acht habe, damit von dem heiligen sacrament nit uberbleib, so sol er doch insonderheit zu ende darauf sehen, das es alles ausgeteilt werde und aufgehe, wie Christus befohlen hat, da er spricht Luce 22: Dividite inter nos..., auf das sich kein beschwerliche oder ergerliche unschicklicheit zutrag.

Thereafter all shall go to the sacrament who have announced themselves beforehand and have received the absolution; and the priest shall reach them the body of the Lord with these words: Take and eat! This is the body of Christ, which is given for thee. Likewise, where there are ministers, the deacon shall reach the cup to them that have partaken of the body of Christ, and say thus: Take and drink! This is the blood of the new testament, which is shed for thy sins. But where there are no ministers, the priest shall first reach the body of the Lord to every one, and only thereafter the cup; and while this is done, the choir shall sing the communion in Latin, and if it were too short, other good Latin chant more, especially what is de coena Domini, as the responsory Discubuit Jesus. But where there is no choir, the congregation shall again be let sing a good German spiritual song, such as "Jesus Christus unser Heiland ...", or else "Gott sei gelobet und gebenedeiet ...", or another song that befitteth the occasion of the time. When now every one hath received the holy sacrament, then shall the priest also receive it. And although he shall from the beginning take diligent care so to order and heed all things that nothing of the holy sacrament remain over, yet he shall especially at the end see to it that it be all distributed and used up, as Christ hath commanded, where he saith, Luke 22: Dividite inter nos ..., that no grievous or offensive unseemliness befall.

Note.

- The communion chant. The Latin communio of the day survives as the communion chant.
- The priest's communion. It is moved after the people's, so that nothing is left over. Sehling gives the background: this began in Nürnberg in 1524, and Luther wished it in order to cut short the question of what becomes of Christ's body and blood in the remaining elements.
- The quotation. "Dividite inter nos" is as printed; the Vulgate reads inter vos.

14.8 Thanksgiving, Latin ablution prayers, Benedicamus, blessing

Darnach soll er dise zwo collecten unter einem beschluß in gewonlichem ton singen oder mit vernemlicher stimme sprechen. Laßt uns beten: O almechtiger, ewiger Gott. Wir sagen deiner götlichen miltigkeit lob und dank, das du uns mit dem heilsamen fleisch und blut deines einigen Sons Jesu Christi, unsers Herrn, gespeiset und getrenket hast, und bitten dich demütiglich, du wollest durch deinen Heiligen Geist in uns würken, wie wir dis heilige sacrament mit dem mund haben empfangen, das wir auch also dein göttlich gnad, vergebung der sünde, vereinigung mit Christo und ewigs leben, so darinnen angezeigt und zugesagt ist, mit festem glauben mögen begreifen und ewiglich behalten. Ein ander gebet. Wir danken dir auch, Herr Jesu Christe, das du uns durch dise heilsame gabe deines leibs und bluts hast erquicket, und bitten deine barmherzigkeit, das du uns solchs gedeihen lassesst zu einem starken glauben gegen dir und zu brünstiger lieb unter uns allen, der du mit Got dem Vater in einigkeit des Heiligen Geists lebest und regirest immer und ewiglich. Chorus: Amen. Deinde inclinet se et dicat: Corpus tuum, Domine, quod nos peccatores sumpsimus, et calix, quem potavimus, adhaereat visceribus nostris, et praesta, ut ibi nulla remaneat peccati macula, ubi tam pura et sancta introierunt sacramenta. Quod ore sumpsimus, Domine, pura mente capiamus, et de munere temporali fiat nobis remedium sempiternum, per Christum, Dominum nostrum. Amen. Darnach soll er oder seine diaconi bede oder einer unter dem ton, darunter man das Kyrieleison gesungen hat, das Benedicamus Domino singen, und der chor sol eben unter demselben ton antworten: Deo dicamus gratias. Darnach segne der priester das volk mit lauter vernemlicher stimm also: Der Herr gesegen euch und behüte euch! Der Herr erleucht sein angesicht über euch und sei euch gnedig! Der Herr erhebe sein angesicht auf euch und gebe euch frid! Amen. oder also: Got sei uns gnedig und barmherzig und gebe uns seinen göttlichen segen! Er laß uns sein angesicht leuchten und geb uns seinen frid! Amen. oder also: Gesegne und behüte uns Gott der Vater und der Sun und der Heilig Geist, Amen. oder also: Der Segen Gott des Vaters und des Suns und des Heiligen Geists sei mit euch und bleib allezeit bei uns allen! Amen. Ende der meß mit communicanten.

Thereafter he shall sing these two collects under one conclusion in the accustomed tone, or say them with an audible voice. Let us pray: O almighty, everlasting God, we give praise and thanks unto thy divine bounty that thou hast fed us and given us to drink with the wholesome flesh and blood of thine only Son Jesus Christ our Lord; and we humbly beseech thee that thou wouldest work in us by thy Holy Spirit, that as we have received this holy sacrament with the mouth, so we may also with firm faith apprehend and for ever retain thy divine grace, forgiveness of sins, union with Christ and everlasting life, which are therein set forth and promised. Another prayer. We thank thee also, Lord Jesus Christ, that thou hast refreshed us through this wholesome gift of thy body and blood; and we beseech thy mercy that thou wouldest let the same prosper in us unto a strong faith toward thee and unto fervent love among us all; who with God the Father in the unity of the Holy Ghost livest and reignest ever and eternally. Choir: Amen. Then let him bow and say: May thy body, O Lord, which we sinners have received, and the cup which we have drunk, cleave unto our inward parts; and grant that no stain of sin may remain there where so pure and holy sacraments have entered. What we have received with the mouth, O Lord, may we take with a pure mind; and of a temporal gift may it become unto us an everlasting remedy; through Christ our Lord. Amen. Thereafter he or his deacons, both or one, shall sing the Benedicamus Domino in the tone in which the Kyrie eleison was sung; and the choir shall answer in the very same tone: Let us say thanks unto God. Thereafter let the priest bless the people with a loud, audible voice thus: The Lord bless you and keep you! The Lord lighten his countenance upon you and be gracious unto you! The Lord lift up his countenance upon you and give you peace! Amen. Or thus: God be merciful and gracious unto us and give us his divine blessing! May he cause his countenance to shine upon us and give us his peace! Amen. Or thus: Bless and keep us God the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost. Amen. Or thus: The blessing of God the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost be with you and remain alway with us all! Amen. End of the Mass with communicants.

Note.

- The thanksgiving. Brandenburg's single German thanksgiving is split into two collects "unter einem beschluß". The second is addressed to Christ.
- Corpus tuum. It keeps Brandenburg's older wording but reads "tam pura et sancta" and drops "omnipotens deus".
- Quod ore sumpsimus. It has the full Roman text, with et de munere temporali.
- Benedicamus. Benedicamus Domino is answered "Deo dicamus gratias", the form used at Lauds and Vespers.
- The blessings. They are Numbers 6:24–26, Psalm 67:1 and two Trinitarian forms.

15. Bugenhagen: the preparatory prayer, and "Hic est noster canon"

Johannes Bugenhagen's Masses keep nothing of the Canon. His Braunschweig order of 1528 (Sehling 6, I, pp. 440–442; doc 1983) runs as follows after the sermon:

- the chalice is prepared during a German hymn;
- an exhortation;
- on feasts, a Latin Preface and Sanctus;
- the Our Father, sung;
- the Verba over the bread, then communion of the bread;
- the Verba over the cup, then communion of the cup;
- the German Agnus Dei;
- Luther's thanksgiving collect and the Aaronic blessing.

Bugenhagen's own comment on the Preface: "wente de exhortatie vamme sacramente is de rechte prelatie, dat is eyne vohrrede" ("for the exhortation on the sacrament is the true Preface, that is, a foreword"). The same order says of the Canon that it is "tosamende flicket van velen stucken alse eyn praccherhoyke" ("patched together out of many pieces like a beggar's cloak", p. 440).

What his later orders do keep is a preparatory prayer of the priest at the altar step (Stufengebet). It is the evangelical counterpart of the Roman Iudica me, Confiteor and Aufer a nobis, and it is what is usually meant by "Bugenhagen's preparatory prayer". It appears in three forms.

15.1 Braunschweig-Wolfenbüttel, Christlike kerken-orderinge, 1543

Sehling 6, I/2, pp. 54–55 (eko.db doc 1972). The order came out of the visitation of 1542 by Bugenhagen, Antonius Corvinus and Martin Görlitz (Sehling 6, I, p. 12). It prints the German Benedictus and a psalm at the beginning of the Mass. The prayer is said while they are sung.

Under dem psalme edder gesange geyt de prester vor dat altar, knyet sick mit dem köster und bedet vor sick und vor dat volk und vor alle nött der christenheit also: Pater noster etc. De köster secht: Amen.

Domine non secundum peccata nostra etc. De köster: Neque secundum iniquitates nostras etc. Domine ne memineris etc. De köster: Cito anticipent etc. Adiuvā nos Deus etc. De köster: Et propicius esto etc.

Darna steyt de prester up und geyt vor dat altar, schicket sick tho singen und tho lesen.

During the psalm or hymn the priest goeth before the altar, kneeleth down with the sexton, and prayeth for himself and for the people and for all the need of Christendom thus: Our Father, etc. The sexton saith: Amen. O Lord, deal not with us after our sins, etc. The sexton: Neither reward us according to our iniquities, etc. O Lord, remember not, etc. The sexton: Let thy mercies speedily prevent us, etc. Help us, O God, etc. The sexton: And be merciful, etc. Thereafter the priest standeth up, and goeth before the altar, and prepareth himself to sing and to read.

Note.

- The versicles in full. The versicles and responses are the Lenten tract Domine, non secundum, from Ps 103:10 and Ps 79:8–9, which also stands in the preces of the Office:
 - Domine, non secundum peccata nostra facias nobis: neque secundum iniquitates nostras retribuas nobis.
 - Domine, ne memineris iniquitatum nostrarum antiquarum: cito anticipent nos misericordiae tuae, quia pauperes facti sumus nimis.

- Adiuva nos, Deus, salutaris noster: et propter gloriam nominis tui, Domine, libera nos: et propitius esto peccatis nostris, propter nomen tuum.
- What it replaces. The Roman prayers at the foot of the altar were said by the priest and server in dialogue: Ps 43 Iudica me, the Confiteor and Misereatur, the versicles Adiutorium nostrum and Deus, tu conversus, and Aufer a nobis. Bugenhagen keeps the form: kneeling, in dialogue with the sexton as server, during the opening chant. He replaces the confession of sin with the Lord's Prayer and the tract's plea for mercy, "vor sick und vor dat volk und vor alle nött der christenheit". Sehling's editor calls it a "Stufengebet".

The rest of the Wolfenbüttel Sacrament, for comparison with the orders above:

Na dissem alle geschut de gewöntlicke predige. Wen de uthe is und denn gefunden werden, de sick berichten laten willen, schal de prester bereiden brod und wyn na dem talle syner communicanten und scholen sick thom altar vorvögen und ordentlick tho der communion schikken de manne thor rechten, de frouen und jungfrouen thor lüchter syden. Denne so kert sick de prester thom volke, welck sick berichten lathen wil und lest en vohr eine vormaninge thom sacramento also: Myne allerlevesten, uns werd stedes dorch de predige des evangelii Christi vohrgehalten, dat wy van uns sülvest unweten, arme sündere und verlaren sind. [...] He secht: Dit is myn lyff, dat vor ju gegeben werd. Dit is myn blut, dat vor ju uthgelaten werd tho vorgevinge der sünden. Sülck schole gy loven. He gebüt avers: Nemet hen und ethet. Drinket alle daruth und gedenket myner. Sülck schole gy dohn na syner gnaden worde und bevehele. Amen.

After all this the customary sermon taketh place. When it is out, and there are found such as will be communicated, the priest shall prepare bread and wine according to the number of his communicants; and they shall betake themselves to the altar and orderly dispose themselves to the communion, the men on the right, the women and maidens on the candle side. Then the priest turneth to the people that will be communicated, and readeth them an exhortation to the sacrament thus: My dearly beloved, it is continually set before us by the preaching of the Gospel of Christ that we of ourselves are ignorant, poor and lost sinners. [...] He saith: This is my body, which is given for you. This is my blood, which is shed for you for the forgiveness of sins. That shall ye believe. But he commandeth: Take and eat. Drink ye all thereout, and remember me. That shall ye do according to his gracious word and command. Amen.

Note.

- "schal de prester bereiden brod und wyn" is all that is left of the offertory, as in Braunschweig 1528 and Schleswig-Holstein 1542.
- The exhortation (Braunschweig 1528, pp. 443f.) is Bugenhagen's "rechte prefatie". The order also allows Luther's paraphrase of the Our Father to be read before it.
- What follows. The sung Our Father, the Verba over the bread, communion, the Verba over the cup, communion, the German Agnus Dei, Luther's thanksgiving collect ("Wy danken dy, almechtige Here Got ...") and the Aaronic blessing.
- On feasts. In towns the priest may sing a Latin Preface (Christmas, Easter, Whitsun; the Trinity Preface on other feasts; "de quotidiana lasse men slichtes ligen alse unnödich"). The whole congregation then sings a German Sanctus, "Hillich is Got, de Vader, hillich is Got, de Sone, hillich is Got, de hilge Geist ...". After it the exhortation may be left out.

15.2 Hildesheim, Kirchenordnung, 1544

Sehling 7, V, pp. 852–855 (eko.db doc 2136). This is the order for the city of Hildesheim, drawn up by Bugenhagen, Winkel and Corvinus. It has the same prayer, and at the end a private thanksgiving of the priest:

Int erste mach me singen vor dem introitum einen düdeschen psalm edder ledt, ut der hilligen schrift gemaket. Under dem gesange geit de prester vor dat altar unde kneet sick mit dem oppermanne, bedet vor sick unde vor dat volk unde vor alle nodt der christenheit also: Pater noster etc. De opperman secht: Amen. Domine non secundum peccata nostra etc. De opperman: Neque secundum iniquitates nostras etc. Domine ne memineris etc. De opperman: Cito anticipent nos etc. Adiuva nos Deus etc. De opperman: Et propitius esto etc. Darna steit de prester up unde geit vor dat altar, schicket sick to singen unde to lesen. [...] So hevet de scholmester an einen düdeschen, korten psalm, edder wat öhme gefellich unde darmede ein ende etc. Dewile överst de sank waret, tüt sick de prediger ut unde lecht dat missgewand tohope, kneet wedder nedder vor dem altare unde danket Godde hemelick vor sick sülvest.

First one may sing before the introit a German psalm or hymn made out of the holy Scripture. During the singing the priest goeth before the altar and kneeleth down with the sexton, prayeth for himself and for the people and for all the need of Christendom thus: Our Father, etc. The sexton saith: Amen. O Lord, deal not with us after our sins, etc. The sexton: Neither reward us according to our iniquities, etc. O Lord, remember not, etc. The sexton: Let thy mercies speedily prevent us, etc. Help us, O God, etc. The sexton: And be merciful, etc. Thereafter the priest standeth up and goeth before the altar, and prepareth himself to sing and to read. [...] Then the schoolmaster beginneth a short German psalm, or what pleaseth him, and therewith an end, etc. But while the singing lasteth, the preacher unvesteth and layeth the Mass vestment together, kneeleth down again before the altar, and thanketh God secretly for himself.

Note.

- The sexton is the "opperman" (Opfermann, the offertory-man).
- The closing thanksgiving is the evangelical form of the priest's private thanksgiving after Mass (Gratiarum actio post missam: Trium puerorum, Ps 150 and collects), still said kneeling and "hemelick".

15.3 Schleswig-Holstein, Christlyke Kercken Ordeninge, 1542

Sehling 23, A, Nr. 7, p. 89 (eko.db doc 1576). This is the Low German form of the Danish Ordinatio ecclesiastica (1537), which Bugenhagen drew up. The text is fixed only by rubric:

Ein Prester, de Misse holden wil, valle yn de kne vor dem Altar und lese by sick Confiteor. He bidde vor de Prediger des Evangelii, vor den Könninck unde vor dat Rike, ock vor desse Förstendöme. Darna handel he de Misse na older gewanheit. Doch dat he se nicht beflecke mit dem Titel des offerhandes effte werckes, wo denne der Papisten Hüchelic unde honspottinge vorhen gewesen ys. [...] Dewile averst de Sanck wäret, thut sick de Prester uth unnde lecht dat Missegewandt tho hope, Knyet wedderumme nedder vor den Altar unde dancket Gade hemelick vor sick sulvest.

A priest that will hold Mass, let him fall on his knees before the altar and read by himself the Confiteor. Let him pray for the preachers of the Gospel, for the King and for the realm, and also for these duchies. Thereafter let him conduct the Mass according to the old custom; yet so that he defile it not with the title of sacrifice or work, as the hypocrisy and mockery of the papists hath been heretofore. [...] But while the singing lasteth, the priest unvesteth and layeth the Mass vestment together, kneeleth down again before the altar, and thanketh God secretly for himself.

Note.

- The Confiteor is kept in its Roman place and posture, said privately ("by sick").
- The intercession (preachers, king, realm, duchies) gathers into the preparation what the Canon's Te igitur and Memento had prayed for.
- "na older gewanheit". The Mass is to be kept "according to the old custom", but without "the title of sacrifice or work".
- At the Verba. The Latin Ordinatio allows an elevation at this point, "si ita visum fuerit ministro", with the bells.

15.4 "Hic est noster canon"

Bugenhagen names the evangelical replacement of the Canon in two places. The first is the Pia ordinatio caeremoniarum for cathedral chapters and monasteries. Sehling prints it among the Pomeranian orders (4, pp. 345–352, doc 1857). Its Danish hymn incipits show it belongs with the Danish Ordinatio. The second is its Low German form in Schleswig-Holstein 1542 (p. 147).

Post verbum dei admoneantur, ut orent pro omnibus omnium hominum conditionibus, pro ecclesia, pro pace, salute etc. Hic est noster canon. Papistae autem heac seria cum suis mendaciis simul congresserunt in ullum occultum missae canonem.

Na der Predige schollen de Lüde vormanet werden, dat se bidden vor allerley Stende der werlt, vor de Kerckheren, vor einen frede, vor de salicheit etc. Unde datsulvige gebedt ys unse Canon. Averst de Papisten hebben solck ernstlick dinck mit eren lügen thosamende geflicket yn den heimeliken Canon der Misse.

After the word of God let them be admonished to pray for all conditions of all men, for the Church, for peace, salvation, etc. This is our Canon. But the papists have patched these serious things together with their lies into that secret Canon of the Mass.

After the sermon the people shall be admonished to pray for all manner of estates of the world, for the pastors, for peace, for salvation, etc. And that same prayer is our Canon. But the papists have patched such an earnest thing together with their lies into the secret Canon of the Mass.

Note.

- The Canon has become the general prayer. For Bugenhagen, the Church's intercession after the sermon is the Canon: the prayer "pro ecclesia ... pro pace" that Te igitur had once been. The German Masses of Strasbourg (§5.1–5.2) and Döber (§8.11) put the same intercession into the Canon's own place after the Sanctus. Bugenhagen moves it to after the sermon, where the general prayers of the later church orders stand.
- "in ullum" is Sehling's print, for in illum.

Appendix: the Canon critique of 1533/1540/1543

This is Pfalz-Neuburg 1543, Sehling 13, l.2, p. 65. Sehling traces it through Brandenburg 1540 (Sehling 3, 64f.) to Brandenburg-Nürnberg 1533 (Sehling 11, 183f.). These are the register references 11:183 and 13:65. Sehling's footnotes to the three quotations give the Canon's own words; they are supplied here in brackets.

Und ob die widersacher wolten sagen (wie sie dann durch angezeigte schrift gedrungen werden, wann sie nicht gar verstockt sein), sie opferten nicht, sonder meinten nur ein gedechtnus und representation des ersten opfers zu machen, so sol man inen antworten; Wenn sie die wort, darmit sie gestracks opfern (furnemblich aber dise: „die wir dir opfern für dein heilige christliche kirchen etc.“ [Te igitur: ... rogamus, ut accepta habeas ... haec ... sacrificia ..., quae tibi offerimus pro ecclesia tua sancta catholica] und: „Wir bitten dich, du wöllest dises opfer gnediglich annemen und uns von der ewigen verdamnus erlösen etc.“ [Hanc igitur: Hanc igitur oblationem, quaesumus, ut placatus accipias ... atque ab aeterna damnatione nos eripi ... iubeas] und: „Wir opfern deiner herrlichen majestat etc.“ [Unde et memores: ... offerimus praeclarae maiestati tuae ...]) heraus tun und setzen darfur: Wir gedenken des opfers deines einigen Sons etc., so wölle wirs glauben, das ihnen ernst sei, und sie seinds auch schuldig zu tun und könnens on ergernus wol ausrichten. Dann haben sie Kilianum und Totnanum umb gelts willen hinein gesetzt, das nichts nutz ist, so sollen sie nun billich umbs glaubens und der warheit willen dise wort endern, da es not ist.

And if the adversaries would say (as they are then driven by the scripture alleged, if they be not altogether hardened) that they offer not, but mean only to make a memorial and representation of the first sacrifice, then shall one answer them thus: if they take out the words wherewith they plainly offer (but chiefly these: "which we offer unto thee for thy holy Christian Church, etc.", and: "We beseech thee that thou wouldest graciously accept this sacrifice and deliver us from eternal damnation, etc.", and: "We offer unto thy glorious majesty, etc."), and set in place thereof, "We remember the sacrifice of thine only Son, etc.", then will we believe that they are in earnest; and they are also bound to do it, and can well perform it without offence. For if they have set Kilian and Totnan therein for money's sake, which is of no profit, they should now rightly, for faith's and truth's sake, change these words where it is needful.

Note. The three passages condemned are the offering clauses of Te igitur, Hanc igitur and Unde et memores. Sehling's note explains "Kilian and Totnan". The Würzburg missal (Speciale missarum, Würzburg 1495) added these Würzburg martyrs, with Colonat, and confessors to the saints of the embolism Libera nos: "nec non et sanctis martiribus tuis Chiliano, Colanato, Totnano sanctisque confessoribus tuis Martino, Nicolao, Burchardo, Benedicto". The argument is that a Canon already changed for local saints can be changed for the truth.

The orders in this file answer the demand in two ways:

- Worms 1524 had already done what the critique asks. It kept the Canon but turned each offering into prayer: "anbieten unser demütiges gebet" (§6.8); "wöllest dich unser und aller unser gebet ... annemen" (§6.5).
- Osiander's prayer in Pfalz-Neuburg 1543 (§14.2) does it half-way. It "brings" the gifts before the divine majesty, but offers bread and wine, not the body and blood.
