Explanation

This three-year series of hymn selections was produced in order to systematically offer a broad array of hymnody for congregations employing the LSB one-year series of lessons.

Several hymn lists were available to this compiler, each with its own peculiarities and focus. Generally, the more a hymn was represented among these lists, the more it became represented in the three-year series, such that a core of hymnody is used every year, not least, the Hymn of the Day.

A brief explanation of each list is in order:

Stuckwisch: Stuckwisch's list is constructed in order, opening hymn first, closing hymn last. The Hymn of the Day is underlined here and in all lists. Distribution hymns fall in between and, occasionally, offering and post-communion hymns are given (indicated by "o" and "pc" respectively). The Hymn of the Day is usually also his Catechetical Hymn of the Week (else the catechetical hymn is noted with "c"). The focus of the list overall is catechetical, presenting a core of hymnody with a fair bit of repetition of the best hymns. The list is LSB focused, employing many hymns that were not available in TLH. Several of his choices seem rather idiosyncratic but are often quite clever. The full list, including saints' days, is available on his blog: sword-in-hat.blogspot.com.

Gehrke: This list comes from Gehrke's Planning the Service: A Workbook for Pastors, Organists, and Choirmasters. If opening or closing hymns are suggested, they are placed at the beginning or end, else most are just said to be on the theme of the day and are listed below the Hymn of the Day. All selections are from TLH, but LSB hymn numbers are given where available. There are many suggestions on the execution of presenting hymns, especially the more difficult ones: antiphonal singing, employing the choir, etc.

Reuning: In this list, Hymn(s) of the Day are always noted first and then "auxiliary" hymns. On Hymns of the Day, Reuning gives some deference to chorales used in Bach's cantatas. Hymn choices are not limited to a particular hymnal, so hymns only available in TLH or LW are often given.

Eckardt: This list comes from Eckardt's The Lutheran Propers with an Appendix of Hymns. It is constructed in order of use as with Stuckwisch. He gives separate lists for congregations using LSB or TLH. His selections seem to be somewhat limited by what is available in TLH, TLH remaining in use at Kewanee. In Eckardt's text are also hymn selections for weekday masses and about 40 hymns are appended in Section IV. This list is designed for yearly, recurrent use.

LCMS: This section lists first hymn selections put out by the Synod for the Sundays in 2016 in the order of use in the service: first hymn, Hymn of the Day, communion hymns, and final hymn. After the gap are given any other hymns employed in the Synod list for Sundays in 2017, or after the penultimate gap, hymns on the Gospel text from the LSB Hymn Selection Guide that were not otherwise listed, or after the final gap, hymns from TLH Handbook associated with the Gospel text (not otherwise listed).

ELS: This list is drawn from the Evangelical Lutheran Hymnary (ELH).

SELK: HODs from their 2005 hymnal.

Zion, Detroit: This list is given in order and includes always an offering hymn. It is unclear how much deviation there might be from year to year in this list. The list from 2013–2014 is offered here (see ziondetroit.org). Choices are generally informed by Gehrke, and TLH is in use in the congregation, but hymns outside of TLH are also used. Where a hymn's stanzas may be split in use, the hymn is listed only once.

Dietrich: The hymns in this section are for catechetical use, a hymn suggested for memorization each week.

Judisch: These are Hymns of the Day selected according to Dr. Judisch's published criteria.

Thompson: In early versions of this project Ludecus's list 1589 was featured here from Rev. Sean Daenzer's translation at historiclectionary.com. Mr. Matthew Carver has provided translations to many of these hymns which were not otherwise available (see Hymnoglypt matthaeusglyptes.blogspot.com or Walther's Hymnal, referenced in the following as "HG" and "WH" respectively). Dr. Jason Thompson, however, offers a comparison of de tempore hymn assignments as Appendix 2 of his doctoral dissertation which includes Ludecus and twelve other 16th century lists. Hymns are arranged in order of use in the service. Introit hymns are noted with an "i," postlude hymns with a "p." All other hymns are Graduallieder or are indicated for use with the sermon and are arranged according to frequency of appearance among the lists. Those represented in three or more lists are underlined.

Gerhardt: These are Paul Gerhardt's selections for Sundays and feasts from among his hymns in a 1723 collection. Search "P. Gerhards geistreiche Hauss- und Kirchen-Lieder, nach des seel. Autoris" in Google Books for the source.

Carpzov: Hymns upon which he preached.

Liliencron: These are Hymns of the Day according to a de tempore hymn plan of Liliencron, circa 1700. The list may be found in Paul Graff, Geschichte der Auflösung der alten gottesdienstlichen Formen in der evangelischen Kirche Deutschlands.

Bach: This list is derived from the chorales used in Bach’s Sunday and festival cantatas. Stanzas are noted in superscript.

Stiller: This list gives Günther Stiller’s summary of the Leipzig, Weißenfels, and Dresden hymn schedules around the time of Bach’s service in Leipzig. Hymns noted as being composed for the Sunday are given in italics. See pages 230 to 254 in Johann Sebastian Bach and Liturgical Life in Leipzig.

Years A, B, and C: In these lists the compiler attempts to follow primarily and respectively Stuckwisch and the LSB Hymnal Committee; Gehrke and Zion, Detroit; and Reuning and early Lutheran assignments, but there is always a degree of interpenetration to establish the core hymnody across years. Distribution hymns are given with the number of musical systems noted in superscript. Such is a better indication of length than the number of stanzas. Enough distribution hymns are given to approximate 70 systems of music sung. Any Sequence Hymn is noted with an “s” before the Hymn of the Day. LSB is generally favored. Some care was taken to distribute more difficult hymns across years.
